BERLIN, May 27.—The wild strains of the "Internationale," and the solemn notes of "Deutschland Ueber Alles" shook the walls of the German Reichstag today for the first time in its history when the Communists and their rivals, especially the Nationalists of the extreme Right, tried to sing each other down at the close of the first session of the new Reichstag.

The Communists, who in former Reichstags were a mere handful, today had a compact delegation occupying more than sixty seats at the extreme left of the great Reichstag chamber and they celebrated their increased strength by indulging throughout the proceedings in tumultuous misbehavior. No sooner had the presiding officer closed the session than the Communists surged down the aisles singing the "Internationale" at the top of their lungs. For a moment only outbursts of laughter and scattered hisses met this unprecedented act. Then with heads proudly thrown back and glaring defiantly at the Communists the group at the extreme right launched into Deutschland Ueber Allea."

Immediately scores of other members and spectators swung into Haydn's grand hymn-like melody. The Communists, reinforced now by the lusty voices of sympathizers in the galleries, flung back in stentorian tones their proletariat battle song, seeking to drown out their rivals. Finally they did. Waiting until the other side had finished they suddenly struck up their song anew with such vigor that the last word was theirs.

"Was anything like this ever seen before in the Reichstag?" I asked a German standing beside me.

"Never," he replied, and there was amusement in his voice.

History had been made in the big Reichstag building, before which stands a huge statue of Bismarck, symbol of old imperial Germany, when the knot of Communists struck German parliamentary tradition the worst slap it had ever received.

Reds Make Trouble From the Start

From the very beginning of the session the Communists started in to make all the trouble they could. Among all the other factions only one member disputed with them the centre of the stage. That one was General Ludendorff. It had been freely prophesied that the ex-Commander of the German Imperial armies would not dare show his face at the Reichstag opening. But he did.

From the moment he appeared he became the centre of feverish interest. The entire Völkish delegation to which he belongs, who were seated about the table in the restaurant, which is maintained inside the Reichstag Building for members, leaped to their feet when he arrived and stood at attention as if Ludendorff were back in the days of his military glory.

Before the session he held a regular levee. His adherents pressed devotedly around him, some wearing the Iron Cross, "Hakenkreuz" and other insignia proving them to belong to the most rabid Right Wing in the German political line-up. Ludendorff bowed stiffly as man after man came up to shake his hand. Also he drank a glass of beer. Then he and the other members trooped into the Reichstag chamber.

Herr Bock, a Socialist delegate, and the oldest Reichstag member—his age is 78—rang a bell signifying that the second Reichstag of the German Republic was in session for the first time. Immediately the Communists burst into derisive howls. They rang cow bells They blew whistles. From the right of the hall angry hisses were flung back at them and cries of "Throw them out." The presiding officer finally restored quiet. Then an official started reading the roll call.

The spectators nudged one another and whispered: "Just wait till he reads the name of Ludendorff." But there was trouble even before that. As names were read of Communist Reichstag members not present because they were in prison in Bavaria their comrades burst into frantic yells—also when the name of some member distasteful to them happened to be read.

Outburst at Ludendorff's Name.

Finally the letter "L" was reached. Silence fell. The name "Ludendorff" rang out. It was the signal for a wild outburst from the Communists which eclipsed all their earlier efforts. Cowbells again clanged discordantly, whistles blew, shrieks of derision rose. From the right came a counterblast of hisses and yells of "Shame on you, you convicts!"

Ludendorff, his arms folded and smiling grimly, leaned back in his seat, looked squarely at the Communists and bowed to them again and again, bobbing his head back and forth mechanically like a Chinese idol.

GREENWICH, Conn., May 27.—George Kovacik, student of New Lebanon school of East Port Chester, who died several weeks ago, won first honors, it became known today, in the contest offered by the Connecticut Humane Society for the best poster design depicting the aims of the society.

More than 4,000 posters were submitted to the judges at Hartford, and out of these twenty cash prizes and thirteen honorable mentions went to Greenwich schools. New Lebanon school captured nine prizes.

PLAN LABOR STRIKE TO OUST MILLERAND

HE MAY YIELD TO PRESSURE

Herriot May Have to Side With Socialists or Renounce Idea of Forming a Cabinet.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 27.—The fight of the Unified Socialists to force the resignation of President Millerand is fast assuming serious proportions. The Socialist leaders have now begun to plan a general strike throughout France if the President of the Republic does not yield. With the Communists the Unified Socialists control the organized labor of the country.

Resolutions demanding that M. Millerand leave the Elysée have been passed by a large number of departmental organizations of the Unified Socialists, but the formal action which will control their Deputies will be taken at the National Conference, which opens in Paris on Sunday.

While M. Herriot and the Radical Socialists have taken no position in the fight against M. Millerand, probably preferring not to make an issue of it at this time, the importance of the stand of the Unified Socialists comes from the fact that their 108 votes in the Chamber are essential to M. Herriot's majority. Without them he would have only one-third of the Chamber.

If in June the Socialist Congress carries out the ideas of the leaders M. Herriot will be placed in an extremely difficult position, for a resolution which will be presented with the backing of MM. Blum and Longuet will declare that not only will the Socialists not take part in any Government the chief of which is named by the present occupant of the Elysée, but will vote against it. Facing such a situation M. Herriot would probably have to renounce forming a Government or else make an issue of the resignation of President Millerand, which would create a domestic political situation of such heat as to render extremely doubtful his ability to accomplish anything in any direction.

Should M. Herriot refuse to espouse such a cause there would naturally, in the event of M. Millerand maintaining his position, be formed a Government of the Centre, which would have a majority without the Unified Socialists and communists.

M. Millerand was once a Unified Socialist, but was put out of the party years ago. His present difficult position is due to his ambition to make the President of France a powerful figure in French political life instead of being a figurehead. Had M. Poincaré's partisans won the recent election M. Millerand would have gone a long way toward accomplishing his object. But he bet on the wrong horse.

Views of Millerand's Supporters.

The Nationalist papers favorable to M. Millerand take the stand that the President had as much right as any private citizen to his opinion on the elections, and therefore had the right to say he favored the Right rather than the Left, and in so doing by no means invalidated his title to remain in office until the expiration of his term three years hence. They see peril to the Constitution and the Republic if the minority, fewer than 20 per cent. of the Chamber, can force his resignation, and predict that, come what may, he will stay at the Elysée.

Impartial observers are not so confident, and think it not at all likely that M. Millerand will resign. If his resignation comes it is believed that it will be in the form of an expression of unwillingness to be the cause of serious

WESTERNER IN HIS STEAD

SUBSTITUTE NOT YET NAMED

National Committee to Canvass Situation Next Week—Vice Presidency Now Looms Big.

Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., until recently regarded as virtually the unanimous choice of his party's leaders for Permanent Chairman of the Republican National Convention, probably will not be selected for that honor, according to information in well-informed circles last night.

Senator Wadsworth's name was first suggested for the position of Temporary Chairman of the convention in January. In that capacity he would have sounded the keynote of the national campaign. At that time is was suggested that the Permanent Chairmanship should go to a far Western Republican, and the post was offered to Senator William E. Borah of Idaho. He refused it. Then when President Coolidge finally favored Representative Theodore E. Burton of Ohio for keynote orator, Senator Wadsworth was slated for Permanent Chairman.

Last night it was said Senator Wadsworth was not at all averse to the new change, especially because it was being made on the ground that one of the chairmanships should go to a Republican from a State west of the Mississippi.

"Senator Wadsworth has maintained a very fine attitude in this matter," said a prominent Republican. "He is quite willing to step aside for another man if that will promote the good of the party."

Senator Wadsworth, it was said, was never keen to preside over the convention, although he appreciated the spirit which actuated the party leaders in tentatively selecting him. He suggested at the outset that some other man be chosen.

Senate Unpopular, Is Belief.

Of late a survey of sentiment throughout the country has convinced the Republican leaders that the Senate has become so unpopular as to render it extremely unwise to name a Senator for a position that would keep him in the convention limelight. One difficulty with which the keynote orator will be confronted, according to Republicans, will be to reconcile the course of President Coolidge with that of the Republican Senate and to gloss over the differences between the Republican Congress and the Republican President.

It was said no decision had been reached with regard to the substitute to be selected in Senator Wadsworth's place. The matter probably will come up for informal discussion next week when the Republican National Committee meets in Cleveland to make up the temporary roll of the convention.

Of course, the National Committee, as such, has no power even to recommend a candidate for Permanent Chairman, but its membership is made up of the national party leaders whose conclusions undoubtedly carry weight in the convention.

There is little likelihood that a choice for second place on the ticket will be made until after the convention is under way. From statements made in Republican quarters, it is safe to say, however, that the nominee for Vice President probably will be a Republican from some State in the Mississippi Valley, possibly further west.

Vice Presidency Looms Big.

Not that geographical considerations will dominate in the selection of President Coolidge's running mate, according to Republican leaders. The Vice Presidency under the unsettled conditions that prevail this year looms more important in the eyes of party leaders than in any year of a Presidential election that most of them can recall.

Should a third party enter the field, there is a possibility that the election might be thrown into the House of Representatives. The House, failing to agree—which is regarded by some party leaders as not out of question—it would devolve upon the Senate to make the choice, and in that event the Senate would be confined to the selection of one of the two candidates for Vice President of the parties polling the highest and next highest vote in the election.

President Coolidge is said to be taking

Borah Won't Go to Cleveland Convention And Some One Else Must Name Coolidge

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 27. — Senator Borah, who has been mentioned as the man who would nominate President Coolidge, will not attend the Cleveland convention, and this honor will go to some one else. This was announced today by Republican leaders who were busy making the final preparations for the convention.

John T. Adams, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, conferred with William M. Butler, Chairman of the Coolidge Campaign Committee, about the permanent Chairman and the man who would place the President's name before the convention. No decision was reached, although Mr. Butler said that announcement as to both places will be made very soon. The permanent Chairman will go to the West and a Massachusetts man place the President in nomination, since Senator Borah cannot be obtained.

Mr. Adams left tonight for Cleveland, where with Dave W. Mulvane, Chairman of the Committee on Arrangements, he will work out the preliminary details and sit as Chairman of the committee to hear the four or five contests. Mr. Adams said that the Platform Committee had received a number of suggestions and would present a tentative draft of the platform to the Resolution Committee.

President Coolidge will pass on the platform and will have an important say as to his running mate. The trend today is strongly in favor of Governor Hyde of Missouri for the Vice Presidential nomination.

Craig's Demand for Prayer Blocks Action By Board of Estimate on Its New Rules

Insisting that the sessions of the upper house of the Municipal Assembly, the new name of the Board of Estimate, should open with prayer, Controller Charles L. Craig again succeeded in postponing action by that body yesterday.

The committee, composed of Aldermanic President Murray Hulbert and Borough President Miller of Manhattan and Riegelmann of Brooklyn, appointed to draft a set of rules, presented its report and the meeting seemed to be under way, when the Controller said he had not seen the rules and would undoubtedly want to suggest some amendments to them.

"For instance," he said, "I shall offer an amendment at the next meeting to provide that prayer be offered at the opening of the meetings. I don't believe the Municipal Assembly will want to abandon that custom. Surely the City Legislature will not want to be responsible for the innovation of legislative sessions without an invocation."

"I would be in favor of a prayer, if I thought we would agree on it," said President Miller.

"We might have to rotate on the prayer giver in order to eliminate quarrels over the prayer," suggested the Controller.

"The public should do the praying," put in Maurice E. Connolly, Borough President of Queens.

Mayor Hylan suggested that the Controller should have an opportunity to look over the proposed rules and have the privilege of suggesting any amendments he saw fit.

"Oh, thank you," bowed the Controller. "That is very kind of you."

"I just suggested it," retorted the Mayor, "in order to obviate your obstructive tactics."

MAY STILL BE EXPELLED

Pastor or Class Leader May Punish Those Persisting in Forbidden Diversions.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 27.—Despite the expressed fears of Judge W. M. Short of Fort Worth, Texas, that Methodist young people would be tempted to try the "bunny hug," "tango" and "the shimmy" we hear about, the Methodist General Conference today adopted the majority report of the Committee on State of the Church, radically modifying the ban on amusements. Not more than 100 delegates opposed the change.

The rigid law adopted fifty-two years ago, holding a member liable to expulsion from the church for attending theatres, dances, horse races, circuses, &c., has been dropped. In its place a provision has been adopted leaving indulgence in such amusements to the conscience of the individual member, with the proviso, however, that he still may be tried and expelled if he persists in going to entertainments of which his pastor or class leader does not approve. In judging the character of the entertainments, the individual member and the pastor are to consider whether they are "diversions which cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus." This is a phrase written into the church constitution by John Wesley.

To check any idea among Methodists in general that amusements, previously banned, are openly approved by the Church, the Conference promulgated special advice against frequenting various types of amusement and also authorized the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals to lead the Church in a campaign of education and publicity against "the dangers lurking in entertainments against which we warn."

Delegates in favor of the amendment said that dance hall proprietors and theatre managers would find little comfort in the new provisions for they merely mean that the Church has dropped an old law, which was frequently disobeyed because it was not workable, and has substituted an appeal to the conscience of the church members, to be supplemented by a campaign that should hold the members in line much better than the law did. In no way, it is asserted, does the new amendment open the way to approval of dancing in churches such as is indulged in by several other denominations.

Dr. George Elliott, Chairman of the Committee on the State of the Church, in arguing for the adoption of the majority report, said:

"We know that theatres are immoral, that dances are indecent and that there is an immense amount of social immorality. Commercialized amusement debauches everything. Dancing has ceased to be esthetic and has become acrobatic and athletic. The theatres are vile in that they breath the smell of sex.

"But instead of a law against these things, we should have a religion that appeals to the conscience of a man and keeps him away from these things. We will change the minister standing in the pulpit with a police club in his hand to a minister standing there with a shepherd's crook."

The paragraph in the discipline on amusements as adopted today will read:

"In cases of neglect of duties of any kind; imprudent conduct; indulging in sinful tempers or words; taking such diversions as cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus; or disobedience to the order and discipline of the church; on the first offense, let private reproof be given by the pastor or class leader, and if there be an acknowledgment of the fault and proper humiliation, the persons may be borne with. On further offense, the pastor or class leader may take with him one or two discreet members of the church. On continued offense, let him be brought to trial, and if found guilty and there be no sign of real humiliation, he shall be expelled."

"Improper amusements and excessive indulgence in innocent amusements are serious barriers to the beginning of religious life and fruitful causes to spiritual decline. Some amusements in common use are positively demoralizing and furnish the first easy steps to the total loss of character. We therefore look with deep concern on the great increase of amusements and on the general prevalence of harmful amusements and lift up a solemn note of warning and entreaty, particularly against attendance

TAX BILL APPROVAL IS URGED BY LEADERS

MELLON'S REPORT AWAITED

President Wishes to Avoid Veto But Must Consider Possibility of a Heavy Deficit.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—A report by the Treasury on the Tax Reduction bill is expected by President Coolidge within a few days, it was announced at the White House today. Until it is received and studied the President will not make up his mind as to his course regarding the bill.

From authoritative quarters it was ascertained that Mr. Coolidge wishes to sign the bill and that he would scan the report closely to see if this could be done without forcing the Government to face a disastrous deficit. Necessarily, the advice of Secretary Mellon will guide the President largely in his action, although prominent Republicans advised the White House today to look to the political as well as the economic aspects of the situation.

Congressional leaders take the attitude that the President should sign the bill, because, they say, the Treasury figures indicate that there will be a small surplus in 1925 on the present showing.

The point was made today that in addition to the $138,900,000 surplus predicted for 1925, not counting payment of the bonus, there would probably be a large collection of back taxes, running perhaps from $75,000,000 to $100,000,000. In addition, it was said that the reduction of the public debt might be made at a lower rate, leaving perhaps $100,000,000 to $200,000,000 to be used for other purposes.

Senator Smoot said this afternoon—and Senator Simmons confirmed him—that economies in appropriations and reduced the expenditures estimated by the Budget Director for the supply bills by $6,000,000 to $7,000,000. The House cut the figures of the budget about $25,000,000. The Senate restored $18,000,000 of this. The budget includes only the customary bills for running the Government, and does not take into account appropriations in special bills of all kinds, such as the bonus.

Many questions were asked of the Treasury today about features of the tax bill. One repeated inquiry was whether the 25 per cent. reduction on taxes for individual income received in 1923 and payable this year would apply to the income received from stocks as well as from salaries. The reduction applies to all individual income received.

It was stated in THE NEW YORK TIMES of today that the admission tax applies to amusement admissions of 50 cents or less, but it should have read that the tax is imposed on admissions costing more than 50 cents, those of 50 cents and less being exempted. Under the present law, admissions of 10 cents and less are free from tax.

Likewise there was an error in saying that the jewelry tax exempts articles worth $30 or more, whereas the law exempts articles of this kind costing $60 and less. At present there is no exemption for jewelry. The House proposed to make the exemption $40 and the Senate made it $25. The Conference Committee cut the limit to $30. Watches below $60 are not taxed.

MACDONALD MAY GO TO LEAGUE MEETING

British Premier Plans Attending September Session if Political Situation Permits.

LONDON, May 27 (Associated Press). —Premier MacDonald, with the other European Premiers, will probably attend the opening of the League of Nations Assembly at Geneva in September, although no plans have as yet been made for the trip, which is entirely dependant upon the political situation here.

For the present Mr. MacDonald's attention is concentrated upon meeting Edouard Herriot, potential Premier of France, as soon as possible, and upon the general allied conference for putting the Dawes plan into effect, which, it is expected, will be held next month.

If by September a new reparation scheme is working, it is stated that the Prime Minister probably will lend his personal influence to furthering the interests of the League, to which the active support of the Labor Government has been repeatedly pledged.

HOFFMAN ON STAND GIVES ALTERED ALIBI FOR HOUR OF MURDER

ADMITS LYING TO POLICE

Disconcerted by Cross-Examination and Prosecutor Notes Several Discrepancies in His Testimony.

Harry L. Hoffman, testifying yesterday at his trial for the murder of Mrs. Maud A. Bauer, changed the essential feature of a statement he previously had made to the Staten Island authorities and declared that at the time the woman was shot to death in a Ford sedan in Chelsea, he was on a municipal ferryboat crossing New York Bay to St. George.

Hoffman's appearance in his own defense came as a surprise to the men and women who crowded the Richmond County Court.

Several little schools girls and a man and a woman had been called to testify for the defendant when his lawyer, Alfred V. Norton, unexpectedly said, "Take the stand, Hoffman." This was at 3:30 P. M. and for the next two and a half hours Hoffman, in a mild, conversational tone, answered questions put to him, first by his lawyer and later by District Attorney Albert C. Fach.

The deep pallor which had marked Hoffman's face since the beginning of his trial soon became a flush under the barrage of questions hurled at him by District Attorney Fach. Hoffman had had easy sailing up to the time the prosecutor took him over for cross-examination at 5 P. M.

Hoffman, under direct examination by his lawyer, admitted that when he had stated to District Attorney Fach, in the presence of Captain Ernest L. Van Wagner, head of the Staten Island Detective Bureau, and Detective Sergeant George F. McGann, that he was in the Liberty Theatre in Stapleton at 4:10 P. M. on Tuesday, March 25 last, the time at which Mrs. Bauer is believed to have been shot and killed by a motorist who had invited her into his Ford sedan on South Avenue, Chelsea, he had told a lie. He also admitted that he was nowhere near Stapleton at the time.

He also admitted that, with the exception of the account of this visit to the Liberty Theatre, the stenographic notes of his statement to the prosecutor on the night of April 17 last, when he was arrested on a murder charge, and which had been read to the jury on Monday last by Miss Elsa Becker, official stenographer to the Richmond County Grand Jury, were correct.

Admits He Planned False Alibi.

He also admitted that he had asked Racey Parker, motion picture operator at the Liberty Theatre, to help him in establishing a false alibi, when Parker called on him, three days after the murder, in the Palace Theatre in Port Richmond, where Hoffman was employed as the operator. This was the day that the funeral of Mrs. Bauer took place from her home in Palmer Avenue, near by.

He said that instead of returning directly to his home at 79 Cottage Place, Port Richmond, on the day of the slaying, after a visit to Chinatown in Manhattan, he really went to a Chinese restaurant in Sixth Avenue, near Twenty-eighth Street, where he ate, and then started on the elevated for the Staten Island ferry terminal at South Ferry.

Hoffman said he reached the ferry terminal around 4 P. M. and that at about the time Mrs. Bauer was killed he was reading a newspaper in the men's cabin of a ferryboat on his way to St. George, Staten Island.

There were several noticeable discrepancies in Hoffman's new story of his movements on the day of the murder which District Attorney Fach announced later would be called to his attention when the defendant resumed the witness stand this morning for a continuation of the cross examination.

The outstanding discrepancy was in

OTTAWA, May 27.—Should the hard-working bootlegger be forced to pay an income tax on profits gained in his trade?

Cecil R. Smith, a Windsor, Ontario, garage proprietor, contended in the Exchequer Court today that such profits were not subject to taxation, inasmuch as the State could not recognize an illegal occupation. The Government argued to the contrary. Judgment was reserved.

SEEK 3 MEN, A WOMAN AS FRANKS SLAYERS

PARKED CAR NEAR SWAMP

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 27.—Continuance of the search for the kidnappers and slayers of Robert Franks today centred on a search for three men and a woman who drove a dark-colored sedan into the lonely Wolf Lake Forest Preserve on the night of the boy's death and were seen to deposit a bulky package near the railroad culvert where his body was found.

This latest clue, considered by State's Attorney Crowe, who is directing the investigation, as one of the most important so far found, was furnished by John Shackleford of Gary, Ind., a switchman employed by the Indiana Harbor Belt Railroad. Shackleford was driving near 110th Street and the Pennsylvania tracks when he saw the sedan approaching from the direction of the culvert.

"Within a few yards of me the car halted," he said. "This made me suspicious and I stopped also. Three men and one woman jumped out. One of the men was carrying a bundle under his arm. At the time I thought it must be a tent. The four disappeared in the woods. In a few moments they reappeared—this time without the bundle.

"In trying to turn the car around in the road, the woman, who was driving, got stuck in the mud. I pulled them out. They seemed to be in a hurry to get away and one of the fellows leaned out and offered me a $5 bill. They did not explain why they were there. I am confident now the four were the slayers and that the bundle contained the boy's clothes."

Chief among those examined again today were Mott Kirk Mitchell, instructor in English at the Harvard School, and Walter E. Wilson, teacher of mathematics. A few hours earlier Judge Frederick de Young, in the Criminal Court, on agreement of counsel, continued action on writs of habeas corpus sworn out for the instructors until tomorrow.

It is admitted that no incriminating evidence has been found against them, but certain statements attributed to Mitchell and said to have been verified by another instructor have resulted in their detention.

Earlier in the day Samuel A. Ettelson, former State Senator, friend and adviser of the Franks family, was publicly quoted as saying:

"One instructor at the Harvard School killed Robert Franks. Another wrote the polished letter demanding $10,000 from the family."

Mr. Ettelson denied making the statement, although he appeared with the State's Attorney's forces in Judge de Young's Court at the hearing of the habeas corpus writ and admitted he was interested in seeing that the movements of Mitchell and Wilson on the night of the crime were checked.

Mr. Ettelson, the article stated, had declared his intention of appearing as the "friend of the Court" and demanding that Judge De Young refuse the writ.

"I shall say, 'your honor, you wouldn't let a man who has admitted he is a moron go free when such an atrocious crime has been committed,'" ran the quotation. "The instructor who wrote the letter was a cultured man—a man with perverted tendencies—the man who committed the actual crime is a man who needed money and who had a mercenary motive."

Discovery was made that a semi-annual interest payment on a $10,000

Special to The New York Times.

PEORIA, Ill., May 27.—Hanna City police tonight arrested Norma Anderson, a good looking woman, 18 years old, with a babe in her arms, who during the afternoon held up and robbed the A. G. Steenburg bank at Farmington, getting $1,500 in cash.

The girl covered Clyde Steenburg, the cashier, with a shotgun, seized the money, which was near the teller's window, and escaped by forcing a taxicab driver to speed her away. During the hold-up she clasped the baby in her arms.

The woman first appeared at a coal mine near Farmington about 10 A. M., telephoned for David Fetties of Farmington, and had him drive her to the bank. There she had him sound the horn until Clyde Steenburg, son of the owner of the bank, and cashier, stepped out to see what she wanted. She explained that she wanted money, and he invited her into the bank. When he turned after getting inside the bank she had a white cloth mask over the lower portion of her face and a blue-barreled shotgun in her hand.

Adopting the strategy of politeness, Steenburg told her to be quiet and she could have what she wanted. Two other men and a woman employe in the bank followed her command to put up their hands while Steenburg took a sack which she pulled from her jacket, telling him to "fill that up."

He opened the money drawer and filled the sack with money, principally one dollar bills. As he handed the sack to her she said: "Is that all?" and he answered: "Here, take this; I overlooked it," and handed her a dollar bill which had fallen to the counter.

She warned every one to keep still, walked back to the taxi, put her gun on Fettles's shoulder and told him to "drive like the devil."

At Hanna City she dismissed the taxi and entered the home of Joe Manuel, with whom she was acquainted. There she was found soon afterward by City Marshal Settels, Policeman Lane and Steenburg, who were hot in pursuit. They were met and directed to the house by the taxi driver, who had telephoned to Farmington.

She was searched and $1,158 was recovered. She is now in the Farmington jail.

RENDIGS CONFESSES PART IN JURY FIXING; FALLON IS MISSING

GOT A $1,000 NOTE, HE SAYS

Charles W. Rendigs, convicted last week of perjury in giving false testimony when examined for jury duty, made a confession yesterday. As a result of his statement, made to the Federal and New York County authorities and to General Sessions Judge Alfred J. Talley, Department of Justice agents have been assigned to find William J. Fallon, of counsel for Rendigs at his recent trial.

Fallon is under indictment by a Federal Grand Jury on the charge that he gave $2,500 to Rendigs for Rendigs's vote for the acquittal of Durrell-Gregory & Co., bankrupt stock brokers, and others accused in the Federal Court of using the mails to defraud investors. The defendants were acquitted. Rendigs was indicted at the same time on charges of accepting bribes and conspiring with Fallon to obstruct justice.

Fallon's whereabouts have been unknown to the authorities since he appeared Monday morning in the Criminal Courts Building when Rendigs was being arraigned before Judge Talley for sentence. Fallon did not enter the courtroom, leaving the proceedings in the hands of associate counsel, Leonard A. Snitkin. Judge Talley deferred sentence until Monday and directed the District Attorney to bring perjury evidence before the Grand Jury next Monday against two of the men who testified in behalf of Rendigs.

Rendigs Confessed All.

This announcement was made late yesterday afternoon by District Attorney Joab H. Banton:

"Charles W. Rendigs, convicted of perjury after trial before Judge Talley and a jury, came to the office of the District Attorney on Saturday, yesterday and again today and made a full and complete confession to Assistant District Attorney Hugo Wintner, in the presence of Assistant United States Attorney William J. Millard and Judge Alfred J. Talley of the Court of General Sessions. This information has been withheld at the request of the Federal authorities, who are making an investigation."

It was established that the reason the announcement had been delayed was because the search for Fallon had been fruitless. The announcement was made finally because it was recognized that it was generally known Fallon was being sought and that further efforts to conceal that fact from him would be futile.

Rendigs's confession was made yesterday in the presence, in Mr. Wintner's office, of Edward M. Fuller and W. Frank McGee, partners in the bankrupt bucketshop of E. M. Fuller & Co. Outside the room sat Mrs. Rendigs, confident that her husband's confession would result in leniency. Besides the possibility of a Federal Court conviction and a sentence in a Federal prison, Rendigs, because of the General Sessions conviction last Wednesday night, is confronted with a sentence of from ten to twenty years in Sing Sing.

What Juror Is Said to Have Told.

According to apparently reliable information from one who was familiar with the language of Rendigs's confession, the convicted juror told his story to the authorities about like this:

"Fallon bribed me to vote for acquittal in the Durrell-Gregory case. He gave me $2,000 and promised me $3,000 additional and never made good, so why should I stick by him?"

Rendigs is understood to have verified every detail of testimony at his trial about his meetings with Fallon at the Woodmansten Inn. A waiter named Beccaris testified to Fallon having had a $1,000 bill when he was at the inn on Oct. 6, 1922, while the Durrell-Gregory trial was in progress and to the lawyer's having given a check for his bill when the cashier was unable to change the bill.

Rendigs, it was said, told in his confession how he met Fallon at the inn on that date, having been brought into touch with the lawyer through a gambler who knew that he, Rendigs, was in financial difficulties. He said that he found Fallon sympathetic over his plight and discovered that the lawyer was equally sympathetic over the plight of his broker clients whom Rendigs, as a juror, was trying. Rendigs declared that Fallon told what "good boys" the accused men were and what a shame it would be if they should be convicted. Persuasively, he approached Rendigs on the question of voting for acquittal and finally got Rendigs's promise to "help." Then, according to this report of the confession, Fallon reached across the table and shook hands with him.

"I found a $1,000 bill in my hand," Rendigs is quoted as saying.

Rendigs quoted Fallon as saying:

"That'll be worth $5,000 to you, old pal. You'll get the rest as soon as you make good."

The trial was a long drawn affair, and it still was in progress on Oct. 25 when Rendigs, the confession is revealed, went to the Knickerbocker Grill expecting to see Fallon whom he had been pressing for a further payment. Fallon was not there, but Rendigs

Biddits, who figured in the trial as an aid of the New York American, which was interested in uncovering the case, offered Rendigs a check for $1,000 signed by Mrs. Aimee Fallon, the lawyer's wife.

As Rendig's reported story runs, he demurred at taking a check with the name Fallon on it, when he was a juror in a case and Fallon was a defense lawyer in the same case. After some discussion it was agreed that a check drawn by a man connected with the management of the restaurant be substituted.

Rendigs said he had that check certified and deposited it in his own account.

The convicted juror, having detailed that much of his dealings with Fallon, is understood to have declared that the three other jurors had been reached in the case. Acquittal did not come until Nov. 17 and meantime, on Nov. 12, Rendigs said, he became impatient at not receiving his balance. So he made an appointment to meet Fallon again at the Woodmanston Inn.

"Fallon didn't show up," Rendigs said, "but Eray Biddits did. We waited and I got impatient. Finally a phone call came from Fallon in W. Frank McGee's flat. He told 'Eray' to bring me down there. When we got there, there was quite a crowd, most of them drunk. Fallon took me into the bedroom and we had a conference. I was frightened and bawled Fallon out for leading me into such company.

"Fallon laughed. He was very bold and told me not to worry. I'd get my other $3,000. I was very anxious and I chased myself away from there without getting it."

While the confession was made largely to the county authorities, it proved of greater importance to the Federal officials. Mr. Banton said that he had no charge in hand against Fallon, and that in this instance he was cooperating with the Federal authorities in their case against him. Nevertheless, it was said that the confession left room for a charge of subornation of perjury to be made by the county prosecutor's office.

There was no attempt to conceal the fact that the bonding company which gave $5,000 bail for Fallon in the Federal Court was anxious to surrender the attorney, in view of the revelations made by Rendigs and in fear that because of these disclosures Fallon might disappear. It became known that the Department of Justice men, since Fallon's disappearance from the Criminal Courts Building, have been watching outgoing steamships and trains. Efforts to locate Fallon's law partner, Eugene F. McGee, have also proved unavailing.

When examined for the jury at the third trial of Fuller on the charge of bucketing, Rendigs swore that he had never met Fuller or Fallon. The jury disagreed. Rendigs holding out for acquittal from the beginning of the balloting. Fuller and McGee pleaded guilty before Judge Nott in General Sessions when they were about to be tried a fourth time. They are under sentence to Sing Sing in that case.

Rendigs was taken from the Tombs yesterday morning to the Criminal Courts Building and to Mr. Wintner's office. His wife arrived later. Federal Prosecutor Millard was called. Deputy United States Marshals brought Fuller and W. Frank McGee from Governors Island where they have been held for several months for contempt of court for not producing certain records of their bankrupt firm.

At the Rendigs trial the bankrupt brokers testified that Rendigs had known Fallon and W. Frank McGee and told of the conferences in W. Frank McGee's apartment before Fuller's first trial.

It could not be learned whether his statement related to the two trials of Fuller before the one in which Rendigs was a juror. It has been rumored for months at the Criminal Courts Building that the prosecutor was suspicious of the attitude of certain members of the first two juries and that a quiet investigation had been under way to determine whether there had been any tampering with juries in those cases, both of which resulted in disagreements. Whether the Rendigs confession threw any light on these cases the authorities would not make known. "Go as far as you like in your conjectures and you won't be far wrong," was the answer of one official.

What promise of leniency, if any, had been made to Rendigs in return for his assistance to the authorities could not be learned. Rendigs completed his statement shortly before 5 P. M. and was taken back to the Tombs after a brief conversation with his wife. Fuller and W. Frank McGee left in custody of Deputy Marshals.

Attorney Snitkin early in the day had insisted to reporters that no confession would be forthcoming from Rendigs. "I have seen him in the Tombs" he and have asked him if he had made any statement," said Snitkin. "He assured me in most positive terms that he had not made any statement and that there was nothing to make. He urged him to say anything, of a truthful nature, to the authorities and to do anything he could to make it easier for himself."

Said He Wished to Appeal.

"He said to me, 'Yes, I know, you have told me to do that before, but I have no statement to make.' I asked him whether he wanted me to go ahead with an appeal from his conviction and he directed me to proceed with the appeal."

It was rumored that Rendigs might appear as a witness before the June Grand Jury in the perjury proceedings which Judge Talley said he would give precedence over every other case. This would mean that if Rendigs were sentenced Monday, as scheduled, he might be held for a time in the Tombs.

Federal Prosecutor Millard was asked last night whether Fallon would be brought before a Federal Judge if found. He replied: "It is not necessary to arraign a Federal prisoner before a Federal Judge to hold him overnight."

"But it would be necessary, wouldn't it, if it is a matter of revoking bail?" he was asked.

"Oh, yes," he replied.

Mr. Millard would not say whether a bench warrant had been sworn out. A subpoena has been issued by Colonel William Hayward, Federal Prosecutor, for Fallon's appearance in the Federal Building. Mr. Millard repeated his assertion of the previous day that if Fallon desired quick action on the bribery and conspiracy charges he could get a trial next Monday.

BUDAPEST, May 27.—The Criminal Courts have pronounced a sentence of six years' hard labor against the anarchist Sztaron, who attempted to assassinate Admiral Horthy, the Regent, on three different occasions. Sztaron openly declared that he belonged to the "Red Army," and described his three attempts at assassination cold-bloodedly, saying he would do the same again if free and would kill the Regent wherever he could find him.

WILBUR DEFENDS SUPREME COURT

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 27.—Curtis Dwight Wilbur, Secretary of the Navy, declared tonight that a constitutional amendment permitting Congress to override decisions of the Supreme Court, or otherwise intertering with the court's present status, would destroy the present American system of executive, judicial and legislative powers.

The Secretary's address was delivered during the annual dinner of the American Cottoon Manufacturers' Association in the Hotel Traymore.

After asking, "Shall the courts be deprived of the power of overriding the will of Congress by declaring laws void?" the Secretary pointed out that the true growth of the country is based upon cooperative action of the various branches of the Government.

"Much has been said," the Secretary continued, "about four-to-five decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States, and the inference is stated that five men, Justices of the Supreme Court (and it has even been said one man, the fifth) control the destiny of the Republic.

"As a matter of fact, a constitutional question of grave importance only comes before the Supreme Court of the United States after it has been considered and determined by many, if not most, of the States' Supreme Courts, and by many of the lower Federal Courts, so that the Supreme Court Justices have the advantage of this wealth of research and opinion."

The Secretary concluded by stating that the proposed limitation of the power of the Court would require it to substitute voting power for logic, a change which would lead to political controversies over the selection of such Judges.

"While the wholesale price of cotton goods has sunk lower recently than in recent years, the public has been compelled by the retailers to pay continued high prices, according to speakers at the convention.

"The price of raw cotton today is from 30 to 35 cents a pound," said Norman Johnson, secretary of the Southern Wholesale Dry Goods Association, "but if it were 41 cents there would be no reason on earth for retailers to advance their price even one cent a yard."

The primary cotton markets, from mill to wholesaler and from wholesaler to retailer, have lowered their prices, Mr. Johnson said, but the retailer has refused to pass any portion of the benefit to the buying public.

This censure of the retailers was generally approved by the entire convention.

The convention was opened by William E. Beattie of Greenville, S. C., the President. He asserted the recent fluctuations in the cotton market have embarassed members of the association that the large attendance was due partly to the fact that "misery loves company." He said the Southern cotton mills are facing an acute situation, due to excessive importation, exchange rate differences and lack of sufficiently high cotton tariffs.

Mr. Beattie urged tax reduction policy which would relieve the masses of the people not only directly, but also indirectly by allowing an expansion of industry.

He called attention to the tremendous amount of cloth now being imported from England, while exports to the Far East have decreased, owing to the development of weaving among the Orientals.

Wilbur Visits Newport Today.

NATIONALIZATION FAILS NARROWLY IN BRITAIN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 27.—A motion presenting a bill to nationalise all lands, minerals, rivers and streams was defeated in the House of Commons tonight by only twelve votes.

It was a private member's bill, introduced by Ben Turner, Laborite, under the ten-minute rule of the House, and was not taken very seriously. The narrowness of the majority against it, however, created some excitement, and brought home to Parliament some of the possibilities in the situation should Socialism come in power as well as in office.

The rest of the evening was devoted to continuation of the budget debate. Neville Chamberlain, a former Chancellor of the Exchequer, said it was in truth a Labor budget, being characterized by narrow pedantry, adhesion to doctrinaire notions divorced from all reality, and inability to understand the feeling of kinsmen overseas, coupled with a keen sense of electioneering possibilities. He condemned the dropping of the McKenna duties as having already produced unemployment.

The second reading of the budget was carried without division.

The Government is awaiting with some anxiety the result of Thursday's resumed debate on the Conservative amendment to reduce the salary of the Minister of Labor by £100. The Prime Minister has resolved to treat this as a vote of censure, so that upon its outcome depends the political history of the immediate future. The Government members know that if the Liberals vote as they would like to defeat is inevitable, but they pin their faith to the theory that the Liberals will once again save the Government rather than run the risk of an early election.

The Labor members hold that defeat in Parliament on a question of unemployment could not possibly be regarded as a minor matter of departmental administration, and urge that the only possible course open for the Prime Minister would be to ask the King to dissolve Parliament. They realize that nobody wants an election at this juncture. None of the three parties is properly prepared, and there is no desire in the country for a further political upheaval at present. Still, if they are defeated, the Laborites wish to go to the country with credit for the budget still attaching to them.

The Conservatives will poll their full strength in favor of the amendment, regardless of consequences, so that once more the decision rests with the Liberals.

BIGGER NAVY BILL UP IN HOUSE TODAY

Butler Measure Calls for 8 Scout Cruisers and Repairs on 6 Battleships.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The first step in the direction of establishing the American Navy on a basis of 5-5-3 in its relationship to the navies of Great Britain and Japan, as contemplated by the Washington Treaty, will be taken in the House tomorrow, when that body will begin debate on the pending Butler bill authorizing an expenditure of a little more than $144,000,000 for additions to the fleet and the modernization of six first-line battleships.

Administration leaders are keenly interested in the fate of this measure, which embodies the first big naval building program that has been presented for the consideration of Congress since the conference on the limitation of armaments, held early in the Harding Administration.

Friends of the bill are confident that it will be passed by the House, and that the Senate will concur before the adjournment of Congress in June. The measure has been endorsed by Secretary Wilbur and Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, and House leaders assert that President Coolidge is hopeful that it will become a law.

At least one important amendment will be offered to the bill tomorrow. This will provide for the elevation of the guns on thirteen battleships so as to give them a range equal to those installed on British and Japanese ships. This amendment, which has been endorsed by the Navy Department, will be presented by Representative Fred H. Britten of Illinois, a Republican member of the Committee on Naval Affairs. Its adoption would involve an expenditure of $6,500,000, in addition to the $144,000,000 already carried by the bill.

This measure, which, according to Mr. Collins, is almost certain to be adopted, will be drawn under authorization of a bill passed by the last Legislature, which continued for another year permission for municipalities to accept the tax exemption whereby construction of dwellings and apartment houses to relieve the housing shortage might be stimulated.

MORGENTHAU ASKS HELP FOR GREECE

Urges American Loan to the Republic, and Tells of Its Care of 1,250,000 Refugees.

DESERVE AID, HE DECLARES

Ambassador Calls Guest at Dinner a "Great Citizen of Humanity"—Others Praise His Work.

Henry Morgenthau, former United States Ambassador to Turkey, and now Chairman of the Greek Refugee Settlement Commission of the League of Nations, who recently returned to this country, was the guest at a dinner given in his honor last night at the Hotel Astor by the Greeks of New York and the Near East Relief. Constantine Xanthopoulos, Consul General of the Republic of Greece, was the toastmaster.

In his address Mr. Morgenthau spoke in glowing terms of the performance of the Greeks in aiding the refugees from the Smyrna massacre. He said his mission here was to stimulate support for the refugee work, particularly to aid the Greek Government in getting larger international loans that were needed to enable it to establish the million and a quarter that had been added to its population by the influx of the refugees and to put them all on a self-sustaining basis.

"I assert today that if Greece is given from fifty to a hundred millions," he said, "she will be able to come back, her exchange and her credit will rise and she will become a sustaining, self-sufficient country. If there is only this sum to consider, which, if it is not a 'mere bagatelle' is nevertheless not a tremendous sum, why should not she be given this chance?"

He urged American citizens of Greek extraction to help their mother country by buying her bonds.

"I assure you there is a stable Government now in Greece," he said. "I have been there and have seen it, and I know. The former Royalists are today called cooperatives with the Government. On the Sunday when the elections were held, at 7 o'clock that evening the Royalists claimed they had won the election.

"The next morning, when it was assured that the Republicans had won, the latter wisely left out the statement that the Royalists were forever estopped from saying that the election had not been a proper one, because they had given testimony to their belief in it by having been conducted properly by claiming they had won it.

"Venizelosim and Constantinism should be buried together in the same grave, and the new republic should be allowed to rise phoenixlike from the funeral pyre."

Mr. Morgenthau said his commission has so far in its six months' work rehabilitated 300,000 refugees on farms and 97,000 families in cities. The sum of $55 is necessary for each family, and Mr. Morgenthau said that soon a big loan will be sought to obtain this money.

Mr. Morgenthau was introduced as a "great citizen of humanity" by Constantine Xanthopoulos. The other speakers, all of whom paid a high tribute to the guest of honor were: Michael Tsamados, Greek Minister; Dr. James G. Barton, Chairman of the Near East Relief; Dr. Frank P. Graves, State Commissioner of Education, and Charles V. Vickrey, General Secretary of the Near East Relief.

Wins $5,500 Suit Against Dentist.

A jury in the Bronx Supreme Court awarded $5,500 to Miss Sarah Pisetsky, 354 Elsmere Place, yesterday, as the result of her suit against Dr. Louis Finkelstein, a dentist, who, she alleged, caused her to lose part of her tongue and jawbone by injecting carbolic acid in her gums instead of novocaine. The sum asked for was $100,000. Miss Pisetsky told the court that she had almost lost her speech and was unable to obtain employment.

HOFFMAN ON STAND GIVES ALTERED ALIBI

his statement regarding the manner in which he induced Parker to help him framing an alibi. At one point in his story, answering questions by Mr. Norton, his attorney, Hoffman said Parker asked him if he owned a .25 calibre Colt pistol, which was the type of weapon used in the slaying of Mrs. Bauer, and, afraid to answer in the affirmative he told Parker, "No." A few minutes later he explained to the jury, he told Parker that if the police knew that he had a .25 calibre Colt gun, I'd be cooked."

Before he was turned over to District Attorney Fach for cross-examination, Mr. Norton, his lawyer, asked:

"Hoffman, did you know anything about the murder of Mrs. Bauer?"

"No," replied the accused man.

"Did you have anything to do with it?"

"No, sir."

Denies He Ever Saw Mrs. Bauer.

"Did you ever see Mrs. Bauer in your life?"

"Never in my life," replied Hoffman, talking to the jury.

"Were you anywhere on South Avenue near Merrill Avenue on March 25 last?"

"I was not," answered Hoffman. "I had nothing to do with the murder of Mrs. Bauer, despite the lies that have been told against me here."

At the beginning of Mr. Norton's direct examination Hoffman said that he was a motion picture operator for fourteen years and that for nine years he had been employed in that capacity at the Palace Theatre in Port Richmond. He added that his regular day off for the last year and a half had been on Tuesday, which was the day on which Mrs. Bauer was slain. Hoffman under further questioning by his lawyer said that for the first six years of his employment at the theatre he had worked every day in the year.

A hush fell over the courtroom when Hoffman began to testify. He started in in a low, timorous voice, but as he went on his answers became louder as he appeared to gather composure.

Under Mr. Norton's questioning Hoffman said that on the day of the slaying of Mrs. Bauer he arose about 10:30 A. M. and left his home "as near as I recall, about half-past 12, or possibly a little later. He said that he went to his garage, about four doors from his home, and got his Ford sedan. Then he drove the car to a point on Richmond Terrace, about two blocks west of the Court House, he said, and parked it there at the end of a long line of cars. He said that he walked past the Court House and the Borough Hall at St. George to the viaduct, which spans the rails of the Baltimore & Ohio freight yards in front of the St. George Municipal Ferry terminal. Hoffman said that he caught a ferryboat which left the terminal at 1:10 P. M. and arrived on the Manhattan side of the ferry at about 1:30 or 1:40 P. M.

He said that he walked straight up Broadway to the building at No. 61 and rode in the elevator to the thirteenth floor, to the office of Hutton & Co., Stock Exchange brokers, from whom he had bought a few shares of stock on margin. He said that he looked at the board in the brokerage office for two or three minutes and then went down to Broadway again, and continued on north to Park Row.

When he left his home he had decided to visit the Oriental Restaurant in Pell Street, Chinatown, Hoffman went on, but as he was about half way up Park Row in the direction of Chatham Square he recalled that a few months before the Chinese cashier in the Oriental Restaurant had been killed by bandits in a hold-up of the place.

"The Oriental was my favorite Chinese restaurant," Hoffman then told the jury, "but when I thought of this hold-up and murder, it occurred to me that there might be some gun play or something of the kind there while I was in the place and I decided to go to another place.

"So I walked over to the Chatham Square elevated station and took a train for South Ferry. When I got there I walked around to a Fulton Avenue train and rode to the Twenty-eighth Street station. This was about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. I walked up the east side of Sixth Avenue to a Chinese restaurant. I think it is over Childs's Restaurant, between Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth Streets."

"Do you recall the name?" asked Mr. Norton.

"I'm not certain, but I think it is something like Bin Nom Low. I went to a table in the restaurant and gave a Chinese waiter my order for chicken chow mein, with green peppers. I must have got out of the place in half an hour. I got on an elevated train at the Twenty-eighth Street station again and went back to South Ferry and came back to Staten Island. I think I got the 4 o'clock boat. I didn't look at my watch, but I think we crossed the bay in twenty-five or thirty minutes. I read a newspaper on the way over to Manhattan and on the way back I bought another newspaper, as near as I can recall, and read it in the men's cabin.

Went Directly Home, He Says.

"When we got to Staten Island I walked across the viaduct again, and got my car. Then I went home, up Richmond Terrace, as far as Lafayette Avenue, to Henderson Avenue, to the end, and turned down Castleton Avenue to Jewett Avenue, as far as New Street and around into Cottage Place. I stopped the car on the opposite side of the street from my home, got out and walked over to the sidewalk and talked to two little girls, Helen Harbord and Alice Goldenberg, who were playing there.

"As soon as I saw these youngsters, I wondered where my youngster, Beenie was. I asked, 'Where's Beenie?' and one of the little girls answered, 'She's down to her aunt's house.' Then I got into my car again and went around to the home of my sister-in-law, Mrs. Rowan, who lives at 7 North Street.

Hoffman said that Mrs. Rowan told him that his wife had just left for their home in Cottage Place, and then he returned to his home in the car. He said he left the car outside of his home, went inside and took off his overcoat, sack coat and hat, "because it was a kind of warm day," and remained at home until 7 P. M., when he got into his car again and drove to the homes of three members of a band in which he played the slide trombone that night at a dance in the clubhouse of the B. & O. Railroad employes in the Livingston Station on the Kill van Kull. He played from 8 P. M. till after midnight, Hoffman said.

"Did you talk to anybody in the club that night?" asked Mr. Norton.

"Yes," replied Hoffman. "We were joking and fooling around during the intervals between the twenty or more numbers we played."

Hoffman then told of taking the other members of the band and some of the dancers to their homes and getting to bed at 2 A. M. Hoffman declared that all that day he wore overalls, a sweater, gray hat and nose glasses. The police description of the slayer, obtained from Barbara Fahs, 12 years old, the only witness to see Mrs. Bauer get into the slayer's car, was that the motorist wore a brown coat and hat and tortoise shell glasses.

Hoffman said that the nose glasses which he has worn since the beginning of the trial were the first glasses he had worn in the street in the last three years. Hoffman then was shown a pair of tortoise shell glasses which the police seized in his motion-picture projection booth in the theatre, identified them as his. He declared that he only wore the shell glasses when he was at work. He explained that he wore them there because it was difficult to keep on the nose glasses when he perspired in the booth, but that occasionally he kept the shell glasses on when he ran into the street "to get a drink of soda."

Hoffman also explained that the tortoise shell glasses were shaded to eliminate the ultra violet rays of the motion-picture machine. He added that on Monday, March 24, the night before the murder, he placed the tortoise shell glasses in a cigar box on a shelf in the booth and took the nose glasses with him, because Tuesday would be his day off. He didn't have a case for the shell glasses in which he could take them home, he explained, and so concealed them in the cigar box to prevent his substitute for the day from disturbing them.

The Day After the Murder.

Mr. Norton then skipped to the day after the murder, and Hoffman, after explaining that he arose at about 10:30 A. M., said that he practiced on his slide trombone for a short time and left for the theatre at about 1:30 P. M. He said he put on the shell glasses again when he got into the booth. Almost all of the witnesses for the prosecution who knew Hoffman said that they had never seen him on the street wearing other than tortoise shell glasses.

Girl ushers at the theatre testified for the prosecution that Hoffman secreted himself in his booth for five days after the killing, or until detectives first called to question him at the theatre on the night of March 30. Hoffman, explaining this in answer to a series of questions by his lawyer, said that a change of bill at the theatre made it unusually busy for him, for the first and last acts, an unusual thing, required the spotlight, which he operated, and "the intervening acts used the spotlight almost continuously."

"Did anybody speak to you on March 27 about the killing of Mrs. Bauer?" asked Mr. Norton.

"Yes," Hoffman replied. "Somebody said something to me about my having heavy horn-rimmed glasses and a brown hat. It seemed to be a standing joke around Port Richmond. Everybody was saying it. Joe Venditto, the policeman, said to me on that Thursday: 'Hello, Harry. Hey'—you know, laughing like—'you answer that description pretty good.' I asked: 'What description?' and he said, 'Why, that killer they are looking for in that murder.'"

Policeman Venditto, a witness for the prosecution, declared that he never spoke to Hoffman about the slaying of Mrs. Bauer.

Hoffman, a little further on in his testimony, said: "I had read about the murder and I had read the description, but it never occurred to me that suspicion would fall on me. It had been a common thing up there: 'Where were you Tuesday?' and everybody who owned a Ford sedan was nervous."

Hoffman then told of a visit by Parker to the booth in which he was working at the Palace Theatre at 1:30 P. M. on Friday, three days after the killing.

"Parker said that he had been over to Palmer Avenue, where the Bauer funeral was being held, and that he had never seen such crowds in so small a section," Hoffman went on. "He said, 'The newspapers have given this case plenty of publicity and it's pretty sad,' and I said, 'Yes, it's pretty sad.'

"Then," said he to him, 'Rae, do you know that your coming here today is a godsend,' and he said, 'Why?' and I said, 'Do you know that the Bauer case you have just mentioned has me worried?' He looked at me, his mouth opened and I said, 'Shut your mouth; don't become afraid. You know they are picking up everybody who owns a Ford sedan.'

"Then I said to Parker: 'Let me ask you where were you last Tuesday?' and he said: 'Dammed if I know. Why?' and I said: 'Well, I'm in the same predicament. I visited New York on my day off, but I didn't see anybody I know.'"

Hoffman then said that he told Parker of his movements in Manhattan, including the trip to the restaurant in Sixth Avenue, and Parker asked: "How about the two women at the restaurant?" Hoffman declared that he told Parker: "Candidly, if you were to ask me to point out the waiter there, I couldn't." If the latter asked by the police about it they would be deaf, dumb and blind. If I ever thought while I was there that I would need an alibi, I would have broken a couple of dishes to draw attention."

The Plan for the False Alibi.

The witness then led up to his arrangement with Parker for the alibi. He said: "I said to him, 'Rae, I've done you lots of favors. I wonder if you will do me one day that I was up to see you at the time of that murder.' Rae said: 'You don't own one of them guns, do you?' I was afraid if I told him, did, he'd be out of luck for fair, and I told him, 'No.'"

Hoffman said here that he told Parker that "some kids" had described the murderer to the police and, after replying, to further questions, unguardedly declared, "I told him that if the police knew I had a .25-calibre gun I'd be cooked."

The defendant then told of a meeting with Parker that night in Hoffman's home, in which Parker drew attention to the fact that Hoffman had never visited the projecting room in the Liberty Theatre and Parker made three sketches of the room so that Hoffman could describe it to the police if interrogated. These sketches were made, Hoffman said, on a sheet of music on the piano.

Hoffman denied that he had removed a motormeter from his motor a few days before his arrest or that he had sold the car after having failed to induce a painter to paint it right away. Then he declared that when the detectives brought Barbara Fahs into St. George Police Headquarters to identify him after his arrest the little girl said he was not the murderer. He insisted that she told the truth when she stated to the prosecutor at the time of his arrest that he had burned the holster of the automatic pistol before he sent the weapon to his brother, Albert, on March 29, two days before suspicion fell on him.

District Attorney Fach subjected Hoffman to a severe cross-examination. Hoffman admitted that he had been divorced by his first wife, now Mrs. Lewine, and who was identified by him in court. He had stated when arrested that he had been married only once. He also declared under Mr. Fach's grilling that he had met nobody whom he knew from the time he left Staten Island until he returned on the day of the Bauer murder.

Hoffman was preceded on the witness stand by William A. Jones, a pistol expert, who formerly was a police captain on the city force. Captain Jones repudiated the testimony of Professor Frank Whittier of Bowdoin College last Saturday that two shells found near the body of the slain woman had been discharged from Hoffman's pistol. He said that it would have been impossible for Professor Whittier to identify the shells as from the Hoffman pistol through microscopical photographs of them and the firing pin of the Hoffman pistol.

Further Assails Whittier's Testimony.

Captain Jones said that the cartridges used in an automatic pistol explode with a gas expansion of from 12,000 to 15,000 pounds to the square inch, and that this pressure would force the soft primers of the shells back after the firing pin had struck them, thus obliterating the possibility of the exact shape of the firing pin being impressed on the primer.

He also declared that microscopical markings on the primers of the two shells had been made by the breech-block of the weapon which discharged them, and not by the firing pin, as Professor Whittier had stated. He also declared that scratches on the bullet with which Mrs. Bauer was killed were made by corrosion in the pistol which fired it, and not by steel fillings, as Detective Sergeant Butts, Police Department pistol expert, had declared.

Captain Jones swore that the two shells could not have been fired from Hoffman's pistol, because there was no corrosion in it, but admitted that they had been fired from one pistol and that it was a Colt automatic.

District Attorney Fach put down such a barrage of questions on Captain Jones regarding his qualifications as an expert in the use of the microscope that the witness found difficulty in making himself understood.

Mr. Norton called the little Goldenberg girl and her playmate when Mr. Fach announced that the prosecution had ended its case. They said that Hoffman came up to them on the street in front of his home at 5 P. M. on the day of the Bauer murder and they sent him to the home of his sister-in-law in search of his wife and daughter. They said he didn't have his sedan with him at the time. Mrs. Rowan then was called by the defense to state that Hoffman came to her home after his talk with the little girls.

The trial will be resumed this morning.

BRITISH TO FORCE SOVIET SHOWDOWN

Will Embody Pre-War Debt Proposals in Treaty Form for Discussion.

LONDON, May 27 (Associated Press).—The Russian delegation to the Anglo-Soviet Conference was informed by the British at today's session that further exchange of memoranda and declarations on the subject of pre-war debts and property claims held by and against Russia "seemed unlikely to advance things."

The British therefore proposed to submit immediately counter-proposals drafted as a treaty, which could be discussed at the next session. They did not indicate what their proposition would be, but said they would not be uncompromising in their proposals.

A long report of the session issued at the Foreign Office tonight makes it manifest that the Russians and British are still far apart on pre-war debts. With reference to property claims the Russians made two proposals. They offered to undertake the problem of money claims by having the two Governments agree on a lump sum for the settlement of approved and well-founded "small claims," fixing a maximum amount in each category. As for claims arising out of the nationalization of private property they frankly admitted that they did not yet have a complete plan.

At the opening of the session the British delegates informed the Russians that their statement that they could not undertake to pay the pre-war debts at full value and with back interest was not acceptable. Later the British said they were not proposing that these should be paid in full and immediately. They were prepared when the time came to make an alternative suggestion to that put forward by the Soviet delegation.

The British promised to take Russia's economic plight into consideration, explaining that their policy was to invite an agreement as to methods of payment and of gradual liquidation of the debts in definite form, rather than to exact promises of immediate payment.

Schall Says Grain Corporation Head Gave $50,000 Job to a Relative.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Representative Schall, Republican, of Minnesota, announced in the House today that he had erred in charging recently that Julius H. Barnes, former President of the United States Grain Corporation, had given a $30,000-a-year post to his son, a statement which Mr. Barnes denied.

The post, Mr. Schall said, he was now informed, had been given to Frank L. Carey, who he said was a brother-in-law of Barnes. Mr. Schall asserted that Mr. Carey started out as a dollar-a-year man and later received $50,000 a year. Several of Mr. Barnes's "business associates," Mr. Schall added, also were promoted from dollar-a-year jobs to $30,000 posts.

Mr. Schall assailed Representative Larson, Republican, of Minnesota, who a few days ago read a telegram from Mr. Barnes denying the statement regarding his son and accusing Mr. Schall of violating Congressional immunity.

PEPPER COURT PLAN PUT UP AS HARDING'S

Irreconcilables Report It Also as "Not Glaringly Inconsistent" With Coolidge's Wishes.

ASK DIVORCE FROM LEAGUE

They Would Also Bar Court From Advising League—Demand Vote Equaling British.

DOUBT NATION'S SENTIMENT

"If Well Founded," It Warrants Action, They Say, but Senators Appear Unconvinced.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The resolution of the irreconcilable members of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, proposing American participation in the existing Permanent Court of International Justice if it is dissociated from the League of Nations, was reported to the Senate today by Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Pepper submitted a written report favoring the adoption of the irreconcilable plan. In view of the indications that other matters will be permitted to intervene to prevent action on the World Court resolution in the present session of Congress, the report of Senator Pepper is regarded as academic and perfunctory.

Segments of the report are devoted to an attempt to show that the irreconcilable World Court plan is not inconsistent, or at least not glaringly so, with the proposal of Secretary Hughes for entrance into the Court as at present constituted. The Hughes plan was endorsed by President Harding and by President Coolidge. Mr. Pepper presents an argument aimed to make it appear that in adopting the irreconcilable plan the Senate would be following the wishes of Mr. Harding, Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Hughes.

"In reporting this resolution," says the Pepper report, "the committee has taken affirmative and favorable action upon the recommendations of President Harding and President Coolidge that we should adhere to the Court, but not to the League of Nations."

Would Amend Court Statute.

To support this interpretation of the views of two Republican Presidents, Senator Pepper argues that the reservations to the protocol by which Governments adhere to the present Court, suggested in the plan of Secretary Hughes and approved by Presidents Harding and Coolidge, are not really "reservations" to the protocol, but "amendments" to the League statute establishing the World Court.

Therefore, the majority of the Committee on Foreign Relations proposes amendments to the statute, or fundamental law of the Court.

Mr. Pepper also points out that the messages of the two Presidents recommending to the Senate their plan for obtaining the entrance of the United States into the Court of Justice "seek not no document of signature to the Senate," and "merely present a proposal and indicate the safeguards which should surround it."

In that fact Mr. Pepper, speaking for his irreconcilable brethren of the committee, finds justification for submitting a draft of a resolution which would amend the Court Statute so as to set up new administrative bodies for the election of Judges of the Court and for Court administrative purposes.

The Hughes-Harding-Coolidge plan proposed that in order to permit representatives of the United States to participate in these purposes, such representatives should be admitted to the Council and the Assembly of the League of Nations under reservations which would free this Government from any legal connection with the League.

The Pepper report touches briefly on the claim that the World Court proposal submitted by Senator Swanson of Virginia and rejected by the majority of the Committee on Foreign Relations would carry out the recommendation of President Harding for American adherence to the League's World Court.

In an evident effort to show that this contention is not quite justified, Mr. Pepper says:

"It resembles the Harding proposal, in that it contemplates amendments affecting the United States alone; but it makes no attempt to specify what amendments are needed or to indicate how the disclaimed legal relation is to be avoided.

"It gives to the Executive an authority to bind the United States upon conditions which are those described by the Secretary of State, but it fails to present to the Senate the draft of any document in treaty form to the signature of which the Senate can consent.

"In other words, the Swanson resolution in effect approves the Executive proposal with certain amendments, but fails to perform the legislative function of giving it exact and concrete expression.

It is admitted by Mr. Pepper that the testimony taken recently by the Committee on Foreign Relations "discloses a widespread belief that adherence to the Court by the United States will be an important step in the direction of world peace," and that, "to the extent that this belief is well founded, it constitutes a sufficient reason for action."

But that it is not wholly well founded is indicated by additional comment of Mr. Pepper in behalf of the majority members of the Committee on Foreign Relations.

TEXT OF THE REPORT.

Senator Pepper's report reads as follows:

"Mr. Pepper, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, submitted the following report to accompany Senate Resolution 234, advising the adherence of the United States to the Permanent Court of International Justice, with certain amendments.

"In compliance with the message from the President of the United States (President Harding), dated Feb. 24, 1923, in which the Senate is asked to consent to the signature by the United States of the protocol of Dec. 16, 1920, establishing a permanent court of international justice, and with the message of Dec. 6, 1923 (by President Coolidge), in which the former message is commended to the favorable consideration of the Senate, the Committee on Foreign Relations reports that it has carefully considered this proposal and submits herewith a resolution with the recommendation that it do pass.

"In reporting this resolution the committee has taken affirmative and favorable action upon the recommendation of President Harding and President Coolidge that we should adhere to the Court, but not to the League of Nations.

"The resolution accepts the Court as an established institution and confirms the tenure of the present Judges. If the resolution is adopted, the President will be in a position, without further recourse to the Senate, promptly to conclude with the States now adhering to the Court a simple, direct and reasonable agreement. Under its terms the United States, without reservations and without the least interference with the business of the Court, will align itself with the forty-eight other States in maintaining and perpetuating this important international tribunal.

"On the other hand, the United States will remain, in that event, wholly free from any legal relation to the League of Nations. Not only will this be true as to the United States, but the existing legal relation between the Court and the League will be severed for all States, so that the United States will occupy no anomalous or peculiar position, but will stand upon the same footing as all the rest.

"In two important particulars the resolution goes beyond the proposal of President Harding and embodies two ideas which President Coolidge has emphasized.

"One of these is the American idea of a court to which not only League members but all States may adhere—the idea, that is, of a true world court.

"The other is the idea of a world law for a world court to interpret and apply. Without such a body of law made for it, we may call the tribunal a court of law, but it will necessarily become either a mere tribunal of arbitration or else an international law maker.

"The ideal of a world court can be attained under the resolution, because it proposes to allow adherence to the court by any State recognized by any signatory power.

"The ideal of a world law can be realized under the resolution through the calling of a third international conference, similar to the Hague Conferences of 1899 and 1907, for the clarification and further development of international law and the codification thereof.

"It is not generally known that the Committee of Jurists, of which Mr. Root was a member, on whose report the plan of the court was based, advised the Council of the League of Nations not merely to set up the court but to call a conference to clarify and develop international law. The advice was not followed. The resolution proposes that it shall be followed now.

Brief History of the Court.

"It will be remembered that the history of the Court is, briefly, as follows:

"At The Hague Conferences the representatives of the United States pressed a plan for a court of justice corresponding in a general way with the structure of the court which now exists. An obstacle was found in attempting to devise a satisfactory plan for choosing the judges.

"The attempt was not abandoned, however, because everybody agreed that the establishment of a Permanent World Court of Justice would make for international peace.

"The reasons why this is so, and why we need a supplement to The Hague Court of Arbitration, were admirably stated by Secretary Hughes in an address from which an extract is appended to this report.

"When the Covenant of the League of Nations was being drawn the project of a Permanent Court of Justice was again taken up and an article (XIV.) was inserted in the covenant which reads as follows:

"'The Council shall formulate and submit to the members of the League for adoption plans for the establishment of a Permanent Court of International Justice. The Court shall be competent to hear and determine any dispute of an international character which the parties thereto submit to it. The Court may also give an advisory opinion upon any dispute or question referred to it by the Council or by the Assembly.'

"Thereafter the Council of the League invoked the aid of the committee of jurists above referred to. The plan of the present Court was drawn up by this committee, was submitted to the Council, was amended by the Council and by the Assembly of the League, and was finally adopted by the latter on Dec. 13, 1920.

The Plan and the Protocol.

"The plan thus approved was embodied in a statute which was intended to be the fundamental law of the Court's being. In order that this statute might become operative it was necessary to prefix to it a treaty for the signature of such States as by its terms were eligible to sign.

"This prefixed treaty, which had no other function than to make the statute of the Court operative, is known as the protocol, or the protocol of signature. It became operative on Dec. 16, 1920, and to date has been signed by forty-eight of the fifty-four States which are members of the League of Nations. The protocol, by its terms, remains open for signature by any State that is a member of the League, or is mentioned in the annex to the League covenant.

"As the United States is thus mentioned, it is eligible to sign. That the United States should sign is the proposal of the two Presidents, and this proposal is now recommended for acceptance by the Senate.

"Under the terms of the statute the Judges of the Court are elected by the concurrent action of the Assembly and Council of the League of Nations. This means, in practice, that the ten States in Council and the whole body of States in Assembly act as a check upon one another. It was this expedient, supported by the Committee of Jurists, which proved satisfactory to both the larger and smaller powers.

"The system of reciprocal checks would be continued if the pending resolutions were adopted and carried into effect, except that only States enough interested in the Court to adhere to it would be permitted to vote either in Assembly or in Council. At present States represented in the League may vote for Judges of the Court, in virtue of League membership, without adhering to the Court or becoming directly responsible for its maintenance.

"The provision of the Statute that Judges shall be elected by the Assembly and Council of the League of Nations creates a direct legal relation between the Court and the League, and between the League and any State that votes in its Assembly or Council. In harmony with this relation are various other provisions of the Statute, such as the provisions of the statute, such as the shall be borne by the League and that certain administrative functions shall be discharged by the Secretary General of the League.

"Likewise, in harmony with this relation, the Covenant of the League authorizes the Council to treat the Court as the legal adviser of the League by calling upon the Court for advisory opinions. Of the nine matters so far dealt with by the Court, eight have been the subject of advisory opinions.

"The jurisdiction to give such opinions, whether or not it is implied they are sanctioned by the statute of the Court, is believed by the committee to be a highly dangerous and undesirable jurisdiction. The pending resolution gives notice that the United States would disclaim all responsibility for the exercise of such a function by the Court.

"The existence of the above described direct legal relation between the Court and the League constituted no difficulty in the way of President Harding's proposal, as far as League advocates were concerned. On the contrary, they welcomed the proposal of adherence to the Court as a first step toward membership in the League.

"But to President Harding and to Secretary Hughes the relation was a fatal obstacle to adherence, because both were as firmly determined as is President Coolidge that the United States shall remain wholly free from any such relationship to the League of Nations. Accordingly, when President Harding communicated his message of Feb. 24, 1923, he was at pains to make it clear.

"With his message he transmitted a letter from the Secretary of State in which the latter specified two of the conditions of adherence in the following language:

"'That such adhesion shall not be taken to involve any legal relation on the part of the United States to the League of Nations or the assumption of any obligations by the United States under the Covenant of the League of Nations constituting Part I. of the Treaty of Versailles.

"'That the United States shall be permitted to participate through representatives designated for the purpose and upon an equality with the other States members, respectively, of the Council and Assembly of the League of Nations, in any and all proceedings of either the Council or the Assembly for the election of Judges or Deputy Judges of the Permanent Court of International Justice, or for the filling of vacancies.

"The pending resolution was drawn in an effort to satisfy these essential conditions.

Amendment—Not Reservation.

"It has often been suggested by the advocates of precipitate adherence that these conditions can be met by making reservations when the United States signs the Protocol. A reservation merely gives notice of the terms upon which a State understands itself to be signing. If there is no objection upon the part of other signatories the reservation becomes effective, but in the present case it is not a question of terms of signature; it is a question of the inevitable consequence of signature upon any terms.

"The Assembly and Council of the League alone are entitled under the statute to vote for Judges. As long as this statutory provision is unamended the vote of the United States simply cannot be counted. Therefore, if we are to adhere to the Court the statute must be amended, at least in this particular. No reservation can possibly accomplish the result. When reservations are spoken of in this connection, the word is used in its popular rather than in its technical sense.

"It is to be noted that the Secretary of State does not describe the necessary safeguards as reservations, but as conditions and understandings.

"They are just that, and they must operate by way of amendment to the statute.

The Vital Question.

"It is at this point that the only really debatable question arises—namely, whether the United States shall suggest an amendment to the statute which, when made, will be applicable to the United States alone; or whether the suggested amendment shall be one which, once for all, severs the legal relation between the Court and the League for the benefit of all concerned.

"In other words, the question is whether the amendment shall be such as to prevent a legal relation between the United States and the League, or such as to sever for everybody and forever the existing legal relation between the Court and the League.

"Shall the other forty-eight signatories vote for Judges in virtue of their League membership, while the United States alone votes directly? Or shall everybody, including the United States, vote in virtue of being a signatory of the Protocol, so that the Judges elected in future shall derive their commission exclusively from the States that adhere to the Court?

"The proposal of amendment to the statute, as submitted by President Harding, contemplated adherence by the United States upon terms applicable to the United States alone.

"In advising favorable action upon his proposal, the pending resolution varies it to the extent to secure for all signatories what the committee believes to be of vast importance to the Court as an institution—namely, such complete dissociation from the League of Nations as would make the Court a complete and independent international institution such that if the League were ever to become discredited or were to be dissolved the Court would be absolutely unaffected by its discredit or by its dissolution.

"It will be noted that the messages of the two Presidents submit no document of signature to the Senate. They merely present a proposal and indicate the safeguards which should surround it. The pending resolution, the committee refers to Senate Resolution 220, introduced by Senator Swanson. This resolution, like the committee resolution, is based upon the Harding proposal. It resembles the Harding proposal in that it contemplates amendments affecting the United States alone; but it makes no attempt to specify what amendments are needed or to indicate how the disclaimed legal relation is to be avoided.

"It gives to the Executive an authority to bind the United States upon conditions which are those described by the Secretary of State, but it fails to present to the Senate the draft of any document in treaty form to the signature of which the Senate can consent.

"In other words, the Swanson resolution in effect approves the Executive proposal with certain amendments, but fails to perform the legislative function of giving it exact and concrete expression.

The Committee Resolution.

"The resolution recommended by the Committee aims to discharge this legislative function and since amendments are admittedly necessary, advises the President to suggest to the other Powers amendments, which have a more enduring value than merely to make possible the adherence of the United States. It was for this reason that the Committee rejected the Swanson resolution and adopted in preference to it the resolution now reported.

"Instead of perpetuating the system of electing Judges by action of the Assembly and Council of the League of Nations, the Committee resolution proposes direct action by the signatories themselves. In order to preserve the proper relation between the votes of larger and smaller States, the method of voting in Assembly and in Council is retained.

"The resolution contemplates a Council of ten signatories. But the number might well by amendment be increased to eleven, in order to make possible the inclusion of the United States and all of the ten other States represented in the Council of the League of Nations.

"But under the resolution no State is entitled to vote except in virtue of being a signer of the Court Protocol; and, conversely, all States that sign stand on precisely the same footing and occupy the same relation to the other States to the Court. Direct and universal suffrage instead of the Electoral College method is the principle which underlies the committee resolution.

"The change in the statute necessary to apply the principle relates only to the filling of future vacancies. It is embodied in Article VIII. in the Second Annex to the Committee resolution. The change is of vital importance but can be made without the least disturbance of the Court or its jurisdiction. There is no good reason why its proposal by the United States should not meet with ready acceptance by the other powers.

"The committee resolution presents to the Senate in exact language the Protocol and statute as they would read if amended.

"No room is left for misunderstanding between the Executive and the Senate. In adopting the resolution the Senate will in due form be advising and consenting to the ratification of a treaty.

The Vote of the British Empire.

"All the other amendments specified in the resolution, with one exception, are merely incident to the severance of the legal relation between the Court and the League. The exception relates to the vote of the British Empire.

"In the League of Nations, naturally enough, the self-governing Dominions of the Empire insisted upon separate and individual membership, because of the nature of the functions of the League; and, each being a member in particular, a vote in Assembly and Council followed as a matter of course.

"The resulting disparity between the United States and the British Empire was one of the reasons which led the United States to decline League membership.

"In the present situation there appears to the committee to be no good reason why, in the choice of future Judges, the vote of the United States should not weigh as heavily as that of the British Empire and its constituent States.

"The League of Nations is a device for taking action in matters which may very well divide the colonial opinion of the Empire. But the casting of a vote for the Judge of an International Court is an ideal case for the application of the theory that, in external relations, the constituent States are represented by the Empire. If, however, it should develop that the units in any imperial aggregate of States are insistent upon a vote apiece, it is always possible to meet the situation by allowing the vote of the United States to count as much as all of them together.

"The pending resolution contains a reassertion of the Monroe Doctrine and a refusal to accept the compulsory jurisdiction of the Court. The latter feature is likewise included in the Swanson resolution. The Swanson resolution, upon motion of Senator Walsh, was also perfected in committee to include a disclaimer of advisory opinions.

"The committee has had before it the testimony taken at open hearings held at the request of advocates of adherence to the Court. This testimony discloses a widespread belief that adherence to the Court by the United States will be an important step in the direction of world peace.

"To the extent that this belief is well founded, it constitutes a sufficient reason for action. The committee suggests that, by many, the peace-making value of the Court is tragically exaggerated.

"But nobody who approves the refusal of the United States to join the League of Nations can doubt that the more complete is the severance from the League the greater becomes the effectiveness of the Court as a peace organ.

"If the United States should join the League of Nations, adherence to the Court is at once accomplished by the terms of membership.

"If the United States should not join the League, it is for reasons which make severance between Court and League not merely important, but essential.

"The proposal of the two Presidents can be worked out in either of two ways.

"By one way we perpetuate a subsisting relation between Court and League, and attempt to relate ourselves to one without relating ourselves to the other.

"By the second way we sever once for all the relation between Court and League in the interest of a sound distribution of international functions, and in order that, without misgivings, and without special terms or reservations, the United States may do its utmost to promote the judicial settlement of international disputes.

"This latter way the committee believes to be the way of peace."

SAYS DAUGHERTY HALTED GAS TRIAL

Ex-Federal Attorney Alleges Effort to Avert Indictment of High Officials.

SAYS HE WAS SUPERSEDED

New Prosecutor He Accuses of Assuming the Attitude of Counsel for the Defense.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The prosecution of the United Gas Improvement Company and certain of its officials on a conspiracy charge involving violations of the Sherman anti-trust law was halted by ex-Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, and prior to the finding of the indictment it was suggested that certain high officials of the company might not be prosecuted, it was charged today before the Senate committee investigating Mr. Daugherty's administration of the Department of Justice by R. Colton Lewis, who as a special Assistant Attorney General prepared the case against the gas company.

Mr. Lewis declared that after the indictment was returned in the Southern District of New York and before he could proceed with the court action he was superseded by Harry F. West of Columbus, Ohio, who, he asserted, assumed more the attitude of counsel for the defense than for the Government.

Lewis Is Questioned.

Mr. Lewis testified that the United Gas Improvement Company case was first referred to him by Attorney General Gregory and that the investigation he made was concluded in 1916. He was then ordered, he said, to prepare a petition for the dissolution in equity of the corporation. Then followed the war and all trust cases, Mr. Lewis said, were held in abeyance pending the conclusion of hostilities.

After the war and while A. Mitchell Palmer was the Attorney General Mr. Lewis was again placed in charge of the case and proceeded to bring it up to date. By January, 1921, he added, he was ready to proceed in the courts. Soon after the Harding Administration came into power, Mr. Lewis's resignation was asked for by Mr. Daugherty, but he was only out of the department a short time when he was recalled and assigned to handle the United Gas Improvement case.

Mr. Lewis said he assembled the evidence and brought the case before a Grand Jury in the Southern District of New York. At the end of the third week's session of the jury the foreman, he added, informed him that the jury was ready to act and by a unanimous vote handed down an indictment.

"This information," continued Mr. Lewis, "was given to me by the foreman before the evidence was all in. I informed Mr. Daugherty of what the foreman had said and he told me to go ahead."

Senator Wheeler asked the witness if the Attorney General had suggested that any person or persons should not be indicted.

"There was some suggestion," Mr. Lewis replied, "that it might not be necessary to indict some of the higher officials of the company. This was at a conference I had with Mr. Daugherty and Colonel Goff. I maintained, however, that it was necessary to indict certain persons and I was told to go ahead and to use my own judgment."

"Was Mr. Stotesbury a director of the company?" asked Senator Wheeler.

"Yes, but the only directors of the parent organization who were indicted," Mr. Lewis answered, "were Mr. Bodine and Randal Morgan."

Told to Turn Over Files.

"After the indictment was returned what happened?" Senator Wheeler inquired.

"As I now recall it, the case was held up shortly after the bill for the dissolution was filed. I received a memo. from Mr. Maryon not to do anything further until I saw the Attorney General. Subsequently I received a letter from Colonel Goff directing me to turn the files in the case over to Mr. West. I did so."

Mr. Lewis said he had many conferences with Mr. West but that Mr. West had never directly told him why action in the case was halted. On one occasion, however, he said that Mr. West had said to him:

"Put yourself in the Attorney General's position. These men are his friends and have contributed to the campaign."

Senator Wheeler asked if Mr. West had mentioned any among these officials who had contributed to the campaign.

"I think," Mr. Lewis answered, "he mentioned Mr. Bodine. It was just a casual conversation following lunch."

"And the case was dismissed," remarked Senator Wheeler.

"It dragged along some months, but it was dismissed," Mr. Lewis replied.

At this point Senator Wheeler requested the representative of the Department of Justice who was present to procure for the committee various letters which he said had passed in connection with the United Gas Improvement Company litigation. One of these letters he described as the "My dear Harry letter," which he said had been written to Mr. Daugherty by Francis R. Hutchins, now a law partner of Special Assistant Attorney General Hiram Todd.

Mr. West acted, according to the witness, as if he were the counsel for the gas company.

"All of his acts," said Mr. Lewis, "his requests for information, his memoranda, showed his attitude. His attitude was, in my opinion, adverse. He addressed several communications indicating that I stood alone in the case, all indicating, to my viewpoint, a mind made up in advance."

Charges West Was Hostile.

Mr. Lewis said that he had not been able to get to the Attorney General and ascertain first hand the reason for "side-tracking the case." Finally, said Mr. Lewis, he saw Colonel Goff, who, he said, told him to take no further action in the case, as a new man, Mr. West, had been put in charge.

"Mr. West," said Mr. Lewis "was in constant communication with the defendants. He showed me papers and correspondence, and there was no doubt about it."

On cross-examination by Mr. Howland of counsel for Mr. Daugherty Mr. Lewis said he had enjoyed a very moderate practice in Virginia prior to his appointment to a position in the Department of Justice by Attorney General McReynolds. He was asked if he had been recently employed by Frank A. Vanderlip in connection with the present investigation. He said he had met Mr. Vanderlip at the latter's suggestion, but had not, he said, given Mr. Vanderlip any information. He admitted that the United Gas Improvement indictment was the only trust indictment he had drawn for the department. The indictment, he insisted, however, was approved by his superiors and Ragland Monand, who preceded him on the stand, also testified that it was approved by Archibald R. Watson, who was Corporation Counsel of New York City under Mayor Gaynor.

Mr. Monand was recalled today for cross-examination by Mr. Howland. He admitted that his troubles with the United Gas Improvement Company extend back twenty years. He also admitted that he had written President Wilson complaining of the way the case was handled by Mr. Gregory and by Mr. Palmer.

Stone Suggests Witnesses.

Attorney General Stone has addressed a letter to Senator Brookhart, Chairman of the committee, in which he requests that certain present and former officials of the Department of Justice be called as witnesses and examined as to their knowledge of certain specific matters which have come before the committee. Attorney General Stone expresses the opinion that in some instances "certain inaccuracies have crept into the testimony and in others that a false impression may well have been created because important facts having a bearing on the inquiry have not been testified to at all."

The Attorney General then suggests that the following should be called before the committee:

Augustus T. Seymour, assistant to the Attorney General since Nov. 10, 1922, who has charge, among others, of the following matters: Alien property, all matters relating to regulations of commerce under the Sherman act and Federal Trade Commission act. Mr. Seymour has also had charge of recommendations to the President on applications for pardons since Feb. 6, 1923.

Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney General since Aug. 27, 1921, who has charge, among other matters, of the enforcement of the prohibition law, tax questions, superintendence of prisons.

John W. H. Crim, Assistant Attorney General from Aug. 29, 1921, until Dec. 13, 1923, who had charge of prosecution of crimes generally, other than violation of the Volstead law.

Earl B. Davis, Assistant Attorney General since Jan. 8, 1924, in charge of prosecution of crimes generally, other than violation of the Volstead law.

Judge Charles Kerr, Special Assistant Attorney General, member of the advisory council of the war transactions sections since July 20, 1922.

Hon. Charles S. Thomas, Special Assistant Attorney General, in charge of the quartermaster unit, war transactions section, since June 5, 1923.

Roscoe C. McCulloch, Special Assistant Attorney General, in charge of camps and cantonments of the war transactions sections since May 10, 1922.

S. T. Bodine Says He Contributed No Money to Daugherty.

PHILADELPHIA, May 27.—Samuel T. Bodine, President of the United Gas Improvement Company, denied tonight that he had contributed money to former Attorney General Daugherty for campaign purposes as alleged today before the Senate Daugherty committee by R. Colton Lewis, formerly in charge of the prosecution of the gas company by the Department of Justice.

"It is untrue," declared Mr. Bodine, referring to Mr. Lewis' testimony in reference to the gas company. "I never contributed money to Mr. Daugherty for campaign purposes. The reason the indictments against the United Gas Improvement Company were dropped was because the Department of Justice made an investigation after the indictments were found which cleared the company. If the investigation had been made before, there never would have been any indictments."

WASHINGTON, May 27.—President Coolidge accepted an invitation today to present the medals awarded annually by the Roosevelt Memorial Association. The ceremonies will be held on Monday in the East Room of the White House. The medals have been awarded this year to Elihu Root for administration of public office; Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holme of the Supreme Court, for development of public law; Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University, for development of American character.

He pleaded guilty to stealing three wallets valued at $11.85 from Macy's. He had previously served a term on Welfare Island for possessing narcotics.

Stabbed Man May Die.

Joseph Sherman of 320 Classon Avenue, Brooklyn, was in a critical condition yesterday at the Kings County Hospital from a stab wound in the abdomen received during an alleged row with another man in front of 320 Clarkson Avenue, Brooklyn, last night. Police are looking for Sherman's assailant.

Thirty nurses were graduated at the annual commencement exercises of the Metropolitan Hospital School of Nursing at Welfare Island last night. The class was one of the largest in the history of the training school, and Commissioner Hird S. Coler and other speakers made addresses.

CONGRESS LEADERS AT SEA ON QUITTING

DEMOCRATS DRAFT A BILL

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Leaders of all parties in the Senate expressed doubt today about the date when adjournment would be taken, although the majority opinion seemed to be that it would be possible to reach an agreement on June 7, just before the Republican National Convention. The problem of farm legislation presents the greatest menace to adjournment, with the Republican leaders waiting action by the House on the McNary-Haugen bill, which, it is believed, will be defeated when it comes to a vote Thursday.

Just how to get farm legislation which will satisfy the agricultural interests and still be consistent with the principles of the Republican Party, was one of the embarrassments faced by the Republican leaders. The situation was further complicated when Senator Robinson, Democratic floor leader, announced that the Democrats were preparing an agricultural bill of their own which would be submitted to the Senate.

The chances are that if adjournment is taken on June 7 it will be forced by a majority vote without any "satisfactory" farm legislation being adopted. As it now seems inevitable that the McNary-Haugen bill will be defeated in the Senate, if the House should unexpectedly pass it.

The Senate got down to work today to clean up other business and prepare for the farm legislation emergency. Senator Pepper's report of his World Court plan was submitted, but early consideration of this was made impossible when Senator Shortridge, by a vote of the Senate, got before it as the pending business the proposal for a Child Labor Amendment to the Federal Constitution.

After considerable debate it was decided to have a vote on the child labor proposal on Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, the making the proposed amendment the pending business for six of the remaining legislative days. The Chair ruled that the child labor proposal could be put aside either by unanimous consent or by majority vote at any time, and that such action would make void the agreement to reach a vote Monday afternoon.

It was obvious, however, that it would be impossible to get the Pepper World Court proposal before the Senate either by unanimous consent or majority vote because of the opposition to it, although consent might be obtained for almost any other kind of proposed legislation, including farm bills.

The Democratic World Court plan is also being prepared and will be submitted to the Senate soon. It will include most of the so-called Harding-Hughes proposals not contained in the Pepper program, and Senator Swanson has announced that he will offer a motion to substitute it for the Pepper plan if the latter comes up for action.

The Democratic leaders are not very optimistic about the chance of obtaining action on any new farm proposal they may bring forward if adjournment is to be taken on June 7. Senator Robinson would not discuss the nature of the plan which is being prepared, but he said that it was quite different from those now proposed.

With the McNary-Haugen bill facing probable defeat, Administration leaders in the House planned today to put through before adjournment a measure to help the farmer by lower railroad rates on agricultural commodities, including live stock. The House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee has approved a composite measure, made up of the Hoch bill, which was already on the calendar, and the resolution of Senator Smith, which has been passed by the Senate.

WALES IS AN ESCORT TO ITALIAN PRINCESS

DENIAL ANTICIPATED EVENT

Italian Royalties Visit the Zoo Incognito—Continue State Entertainments.

LONDON, May 27 (Associated Press).—The Prince of Wales, walking side by side with Princess Mafalda of Italy at the head of the procession of the British and Italian royal families through the ancient Guild Hall to the great luncheon board where the Lord Mayor was host to the royal visitors today, was one of the rare occasions when the British heir to the throne has appeared in public with a young lady of age and rank similar to his own.

The Prince was in an army uniform and the Princess wore a jade green dress. They talked gaily during the moments when the stiff formalities gave way to the traditional Guild Hall fellowship.

As the luncheon got under way the guests, representative of every phase of British national life, could not resist the temptation to gossip a bit about the appearance of the Prince with the Princess Mafalda, for, although the Prince himself seems eminently satisfied with his state of single-blessedness, his father's subjects never lose an opportunity to speculate as to who will be their future Queen.

It was in anticipation of this inevitable talk, and in remembrance of the rumors circulated last year regarding a possible marriage of the Prince of Wales and Princess Yolanda, that the British authorities who know what is going on in royal circles stated positively a few days ago that the state visit to London of the Italian Sovereigns had neither political nor marital significance.

It was pointed out that the religious differences would be an unsurmountable barrier to such a match, for any Catholic Princess would need to renounce the Church of Rome in order to mount the British throne, and such renunciation was considered beyond the realm of probability.

The authorities, however, have little hope of silencing the gossipers who were sure that a Wales-Yolanda match would be arranged. Now they are connecting the Prince's name with Princess Mafalda, and it is pointed out that there are two younger Italian Princesses. After Princess Mafalda has made her choice, the two younger Princesses probably will be talked of as future British Queens, unless the Prince finds a Princess of his choice before they grow up.

King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena gave a dinner tonight at the Italian Embassy at which the fifty-five guests included King George and Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of York, Premier MacDonald, the Marquis and Marchioness Curzon, Viscount and Viscountess Grey, the Earls Balfour, Beatty and Cavan, the Countesses Cromer, Minto and Beatty, members of the visiting royal suite and Attaches of the Italian Embassy.

Their Italian Majesties visited Westminster Abbey and the Cenotaph in Whitehall today, where they paid homage to Great Britain's war dead.

On the grave of the Unknown Warrior in the Abbey the King and Crown Prince laid a huge, heart-shaped wreath of laurel and palm leaves, at the base of which was a large bouquet of pure white roses, tied with a broad ribbon of Savoy blue, on which was embroidered the monograms of Victor Emanuel and Helena.

After a State banquet at the palace last evening the Italian King and Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of York and many other distinguished personages attended a ball given in the residence of the Hon. Mrs. Greville in aid of the Italian Hospital in London. The dancing continued until a very late hour.

Few people knew that within two hours of their arrival in London King Victor Emanuel, Crown Prince Humbert and five members of their suite made a private and unannounced visit to the Zoological Gardens, which they entered as ordinary members of the public. Victor Emanuel, who is well versed in natural history, acted as cicerone to his companions, describing several of the exhibits and recalling some of his hunting exploits.

SLEEPING SICKNESS SUBSIDES IN EUROPE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 27.—Interesting details of the incidence of sleeping sickness, which is now so puzzling to the medical profession, are given in the monthly epidemiological report published by the Health Section of the League of Nations.

Apparently the epidemic is less prevalent than last year in all the countries from which reports are available with the exception of Great Britain and Italy, where its incidence is much greater. In England and Wales 278 cases were reported during the week ended May 3. This is higher than any previous figure of 1924, and it is pointed out that the usual time of maximum incidence is nearly three months earlier.

The prevalence of sleeping sickness has not coincided with that of influenza, as was the case in Switzerland in 1920. In Italy, the epidemic is not so serious, but 160 cases were reported from March 1 to 30, as against 55 during the previous four weeks. In Switzerland, there were 22 cases reported in April, as against 10 in preceding four weeks, and in Sweden there were 61 cases in February, but only 43 in March. In other European countries very few cases are reported.

By T. R. YBARRA.

seats and surged toward the platform like Greenwich Village let loose in Berlin. And all the time the bearded old Socialist presiding officer despairingly rang his bell and called for quiet.

Finally the business of the meeting was resumed. The Communists sank back into their seats. Ludendorff, with a sneer on his face, turned to reading a large pile of letters and telegrams stacked up on the desk before him. Several other names on the rollcall were greeted with catcalls from the Communists, especially those of the Prussian Minister of the Interior, Dr. Severing, who has distinguished himself recently by forbidding various Communist demonstrations, and Admiral von Tirpitz.

"Sea Breeze" Hiss for Tirpitz.

The latter's name was the signal for a strident hiss from the Communists intended to simulate a sea breeze and produced with such concerted vigor that it must have fanned the plentiful whiskers of the ex-chief of the German Navy, though he was seated at the extreme right far across the hall from the Communists.

After the rollcall, which lasted longer than half an hour, Communist speakers heatedly demanded the release of eight of their fellow-members of the Reichstag held prisoners in Bavaria, while speakers of other parties, notably the veteran Fehrenbach of the Centre, accused them of childish behavior and their enemies at the right of the hall volleyed contemptuous exclamations at them.

Some of Germany's most famous politicians were present. Besides Ludendorff and von Tirpitz, Chancellor Marx was there and Foreign Minister Stresemann; also Count Bernstorff, ex-German Ambassador to the United States; Prince Bismarck, grandson of the Iron Chancellor; Philipp Scheidemann, the noted Socialist leader; Bernard Dernburg, the German official propagandist in the United States during the early days of the World War; Dr. Hergt, one of the Nationalist leaders, and Counts Reventlow and Westarp, also noted Nationalists.

How much women are coming to the fore in German politics was shown by the number of female members scattered throughout the hall.

A strong cordon of police was thrown around the Reichstag Building before the session and unprecedentedly severe control was exercised over everybody seeking to enter. The showing of admission credentials was demanded again and again by officials scattered through the corridors and galleries.

Previous to the meeting special divine services for Reichstag members were held at the Protestant Cathedral and leading Roman Catholic church here.

The next Reichstag session will be tomorrow, when the first steps will be taken to tackle the enormously important business before the Reichstag. The question of the Dawes report may not come up for several days.

Leaders Predict Far Worse to Come.

BERLIN, May 27 (Associated Press).—The new Reichstag succeeded in its tumultuous session today in living up to expectations, and the party leaders frankly admit that conditions will grow worse once the new Parliament attempts to settle down to serious business.

The Government bench remained vacant, as there was no official calendar to be disposed of, and most of the members of the Government occupied seats with their respective parties.

An attempt by the Communists to force recognition of several political motions was frustrated, and the Reds thereafter reserved their sabotaging ammunition, howling down their political opponents as the names were checked off on the official roster by the House Clerk. When Prince von Bismarck's name was called the Left responded with: "Woe unto you that you are his grandson!"

General Ludendorff got the benefit of a strategem employed by his party and friends, who started up a deafening cheering chorus the moment his name was called out, but the Communists scored by sending one of their members to the Speaker's desk with a huge pair of blue spectacles—a reminder of those worn by the Quartermaster General when in disguise he took secret leave for Sweden in the early days of the revolution.

Ruth Fischer, who leads the Reds' vocal onslaughts on the floor of the Chamber, was freely in evidence, while Thomas Wendelin, the longshoreman from Hamburg and one of the Communists' strong-arm men, appeared clad in a sweater and persisted in smoking a pipe throughout the session, which half a dozen sergeants-at-arms failed to remove.

Opera glasses were heavily requisitioned by the gallery visitors, who alternately turned them on Ludendorff, von Tirpitz, von Bismarck and Ruth Fischer. Alanson B. Houghton, the American Ambassador; Lord d'Abernon, the British Ambassador, and numerous other diplomatic representatives were among the spectators.

A heavy cordon of troops kept thousands at a safe distance from the building and the Deputies. Von Tirpitz dispersed several photographers, who tried to snapshot him, with a series of swift fencing movements of his cane.

Socialists Back Dawes Plan.

The Socialist Reichstag delegation broke the silence thus far observed by a declaration this afternoon solidly supporting the execution of the Dawes report provisions and demanding a more equable distribution of the burdens arising therefrom. The Socialists are of the opinion that negotiations with the German Nationalists would seriously hurt Germany abroad, declaring:

"The quick putting into effect of the expert commission's recommendations constitutes the only possible way for freeing the Ruhr, pacifying Europe and re-establishing political and economic security, thereby easing the economic and credit basis and avoiding renewed unemployment on a big scale.

The Socialists demand of any new Cabinet continuation of the foreign policy on the basis of making effective the experts' report, and threaten to fight any Government whose foreign policy is doubtful or procrastinating or which threatens to lead Germany toward a new catastrophe.

This is interpreted to mean that the Socialists will only support a Government standing squarely on the Dawes report.

EBERT DISCUSSES CABINET WITH MARX

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 27.—President Ebert summoned Chancellor Marx to a conference at 5 o'clock this afternoon and talked with him for more than an hour, but nothing definite is known yet regarding decisions reached. It is generally supposed that two or three days will elapse before Dr. Marx forms a new Government.

President Ebert's summons to the Chancellor followed a conference between him and Dr. Hergt, the Moderate Nationalist leader, and the leaders of other important parties. Dr. Hergt was unable to assure the President that he could command a Reichstag majority in favor of a foreign policy including acceptance of the Dawes report, nor any other policy, so Ebert turned again to Marx.

Nevertheless, the Nationalists tonight maintain that another chance at cooperating in forming the new Government must be given them. It is said tonight that they have discarded Admiral von Tirpitz as their candidate for Chancellor, having realized that he is impossible under present circumstances, and have turned to Prince von Bülow, Chancellor under Emperor William. Von Bülow is reported to be on his way here from Italy. It is rumored that if he declines the Nationalists will put forward as their candidate Dr. Otto Wiedfeldt, German Ambassador at Washington and formerly director general of the Krupp works at Essen.

KELLOGG FOR DAWES PLAN.

Tells Correspondents Americans Hope Europe Will Accept It.

LONDON, May 27 (Associated Press).—Ambassador Kellogg today told the Foreign Press Association, of which he was the guest, that it was his hope and the hope of the American people that the Dawes report might be found the basis on which could be established "that settlement which we know is necessary to the progress of the people of Europe and to the prosperity of the world."

Mr. Kellogg, who is the first American Ambassador who has been honored as a guest of the association, complimented the foreign correspondents on the intelligence and ability with which they have handled the presentation and interpretation of the work of the experts' committees which produced the Dawes report.

The Ambassador said he had been asked to speak about the American attitude toward the experts' report, but declared that all he could do would be to reiterate the opinions voiced by President Coolidge at The Associated Press luncheon on April 22, which he believed could be considered the judgment of most Americans.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Mayonnaise was originally called mahonnaise by its inventor, Cardinal Richelieu's cook,

Who so named it in honor of the conquest of Minorca by Mahon.

Delightfully pungent, it enhances, but does not overpower, the food to which it is added,

And thus proves an ideal dressing for the delicious salads served at CHILDS.

TOKIO ANNOUNCES HANIHARA'S RETURN

RESIGNATION IS EXPECTED

By WILFRID FLEISHER.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, May 27.—The Foreign Office has officially announced that Ambassador Hanihara will soon return to Japan. It is stated at the same time that the Government is not recalling the Ambassador, but is permitting him to return at his own request to explain to the Government the situation in regard to the immigration bill. This announcement is generally taken here to mean the acceptance by the Government of the Ambassador's resignation.

Ambassador Hanihara's resignation had been generally expected here, where his position was regarded as untenable in view of the action of the American Senate.

His note of protest on the eve of the Senate vote on immigration is now regarded in official circles here as a "diplomatic blunder," although the popular impression is that the Senate seized upon it as a pretext to pass legislation which it would have passed anyway.

Shidehara May Return.

A successor to Ambassador Hanihara was being actively discussed in official circles this evening, and it is believed that if Baron Shidehara, former Ambassador to Washington, wants the post he can have it again, but he is more frequently mentioned for the portfolio of Foreign Affairs in the new Cabinet. Baron Shidehara is a brother-in-law of Viscount Kato, and some express the opinion that it would be better for him to accept the post at Washington than to remain in the Foreign Office, where the family connection might give rise to political criticism.

Viscount Ishii, now Ambassador at Paris, is also mentioned for the post, being well regarded here as responsible for the favorable Lansing-Ishii agreement.

The news that President Coolidge had signed the Immigration bill, including the Japanese exclusion clause, caused the greatest disappointment here, although it was not unexpected, as recent cables had indicated that this would be the course adopted by the American Chief Executive.

Although the news reached here early this morning and was made known to the public through special editions of the newspapers, there has been no evidence of excitement, nor have any disturbances occurred during the day. The Government continues, so far, entirely in control of the situation and is determined to continue its efforts to prevent any hostile acts.

The action of the President was discussed at the regular Cabinet meeting this morning, and in the absence of the full text of the President's statement which accompanied his signature of the bill, it was decided to call an extraordinary meeting of the Cabinet for tomorrow morning, when the Government will then consider what steps are to be taken to meet the situation. The complete text was received at the Foreign Office this afternoon and created a favorable impression among officials, who believed that the emphatic stand taken by President Coolidge in opposition to the exclusion clause would to some extent soften public resentment here, although great confidence had originally been entertained that the President would exercise his veto.

Protest Officially Forecast.

It is stated in official circles that the Japanese Government will protest against the enactment of the Immigration bill, and the Cabinet will consider tomorrow the wording of a new protest which will be forwarded to Ambassador Hanihara for presentation to Secretary Hughes. Officials of the Foreign Office would not state today what the features of the new protest would be, feeling that it would be a diplomatic breach of confidence if the substance of it became known before it reached Mr. Hughes. But it is generally believed that the new note will point out that Japan considers the exclusion provision of the Immigration bill a violation of the treaty of commerce and navigation existing between the United States and Japan. The protest may possibly add a general review of the immigration situation.

At the Cabinet meeting this morning it was formally decided that the Kiyoura Ministry would present its resignation to the Throne immediately following the celebrations of the imperial wedding and would leave office between June 6 and 10. Prince Saionji has approved the resignation of the Cabinet, and it is thought almost certain that Viscount Kato will be called to form the new Cabinet.

So far the Tokio editors have had little time to comment on the action of President Coolidge in signing the bill, but what little comment has appeared in the evening newspapers, while voicing strong resentment, is not violent.

Asahi says:

"The threatening atmosphere which was dispelled by the Washington conference is again created by America, who has taken advantage of Japan's weakness as a result of the September earthquake."

Nichi Nichi says:

"Today is the day of humiliation."

The usually inflammatory Yorusa says:

"The gates of America are closed to Japan. This is the greatest insult in our history."

New Treaty Not to Be Sought.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The question of Japanese exclusion under the provision of the Immigration bill which was signed yesterday by President Coolidge is a closed incident as far as the Administration is concerned, it was indicated at the White House today.

A spokesman for President Coolidge stated that the Department of State is not expected to take any further steps in the matter, and another high Administration official characterized as "without basis" a report that Secretary Hughes would undertake the negotiation of a new treaty with Japan which should supersede the objectionably phrased provisions excluding Japanese coolies from the United States.

Similarly, intimations that Secretary Hughes might resign, because of the enactment of the exclusion law in face of his vigorous protest, were denied on authority.

It can be stated that Secretary Hughes never recommended to President Coolidge that he veto the Immigration bill because of objectionable features respecting the Japanese, and therefore, there has been no issue between the Secretary and the President which would cause the former's resignation.

It was believed that the President's statement accompanying the announcement of signature of the Immigration bill was the best means of informing the Japanese Government and people of the attitude of the Administration. Officials feel now that the least said about the matter at this time the better.

Despite reports from Tokio that the signing of the Immigration bill will result in the recall or resignation of Ambassador Hanihara no confirmation was to be obtained here today. At the White House it was stated that President Coolidge had received no intimation that the Ambassador would resign.

The Ambassador declined to comment on a dispatch which stated that the Foreign Office had announced that he would soon return to Japan, not as a recalled Ambassador, but "at his own" request to explain the situation in regard to the Immigration bill.

TROTSKY SEEKS TO HEAL SPLIT IN RED PARTY

He Denies at Communist Convention That He Favors Sectional Groupings.

MOSCOW, May 27 (Associated Press).—Contrary to all expectations, War Minister Trotsky, in his address at yesterday's session of the Communist Party convention delivered what may be termed a message of peace and reconciliation.

Instead of accentuating the controversy between himself and other leaders of the party on the question of internal party affairs, Trotsky in a cautiously worded and apparently purposely vague speech said that all statements about his favoring sectional groupings within the party were absolutely false and that he fully agreed with the Central Committee, which considered such a move detrimental to the party unity.

Replying to an invitation which the convention extended to all dissenters to acknowledge that they were mistaken, the War Minister said:

"No one of us desires to be against the party. The party is always correct in its general aims. It is an easy matter to say that one's previous criticism of the party as well as one's declarations and protests were in mistake, but I am not going to say this because I know that one cannot be wholly right in his opposition to the party. One can only be right with the party and through the party.

"We are still faced with great difficulties and we shall all combine like soldiers to combat these difficulties. I hope I shall not be the last soldier in the Communist battle. I understand my duty at the present moment as a disciplined member of the party and I am ready as every other member is to admit these or other mistakes, but no one has the right to interpret these mistakes as aimed directly or indirectly against party unity and discipline."

Professor Preobrajensky, one of Russia's delegates to the London conference and former leader of the opposition, speaking on party controversies said the Central Committee had fulfilled all the opposition's demands respecting the internal party policy, and therefore no further cause for dissension existed.

POLAND REBUFFS SOVIETS.

Warsaw Declares Moscow's Protest Regarding Minorities Unwarranted.

MOSCOW, May 27 (Associated Press).—Poland has sent a strongly worded reply to the note from the Soviet Foreign Minister, George Tchitcherin, in which he complained of alleged violation by Poland of Article VII. of the Treaty of Riga, providing for settlement of the question of minorities. The Soviet note demanded better treatment of the Ukrainians and the Ruthenians in Polish territory.

The Polish reply says that the Warsaw Government considers the Russian note as unwarranted interference in Poland's internal affairs, adding that the matter complained of has nothing to do with Article VII. of the treaty.

It expresses surprise that Russia should accuse Poland of denying religious rights to minorities while Russia itself withholds such religious and general freedom to the various nationalities. It considers it a breach of international custom for Russia to criticize the expressions of State officials, such as the speech of the Polish President regarding the relations between the two countris.

The reply further declares that such unjustifiable protests by Russia will in the future remain unanswered by Poland and asserts that the best way to establish mutual friendly relationship is to carry out all the terms of the Riga treaty.

M. Tchitcherin in his rejoinder to Poland affirms that the minorities in Russia enjoy full freedom and that there is no religious persecution. He considers Poland's reply as further proof of her unwillingness to fulfill the Treaty of Riga, as the Russian note, he contends, is correctly based on violation of Article VII.

FORDHAM GREETS CARDINAL.

Mgr. Hayes Applauded By Students 10 Minutes Before He Speaks.

Fordham's faculty and students gave a formal greeting to Cardinal Patrick J. Hayes yesterday afternoon in the university auditorium. Several hundred students applauded for ten minutes when the Cardinal rose to speak. The Rev. Father Edward P. Tivnan, the rector, who welcomed the Cardinal, told of Fordham's loyalty toward him.

A short program was given by the students. Several hundred dollars collected by the students were turned over to the Cardinal for charitable work. Father Tivnan presented to him an engraved testimonial, expressing the devotion of the university.

In replying, Cardinal Hayes said: "Although I am a Manhattan College man, my association with Cardinal Farley, who was ardently interested in Fordham, almost entitles me to say that I have taken a post-graduate course at Fordham." He told the students thorough loyalty to the Catholic Church would enable them to act as good citizens of the Republic.

ETTINGER'S OUSTER DEFENDED BY HYLAN

Accuses Him of Failing to Work in Harmony With the Board of Education.

AND DELAYING BUILDING

Following speeches lauding Dr. William L. Ettinger at a testimonial given to him on Monday night, Mayor Hylan sent a letter to THE TIMES last night, defending the ouster of Dr. Ettinger as Superintendent of Schools.

The Mayor charges the former Superintendent with failing to work in harmony with the Board of Education, with favoring his own and his friends' textbooks, with delaying building construction, with resisting investigations and with playing into the hands of the "Rockefeller-Gary interests."

Dr. Ettinger read a copy of the Mayor's letter at his home last night, laughed, remarked that the Mayor seemed to be "squirming" and, to complete all the comment he cared to offer now, quoted from the Persian:

"A man who knows not and who knows not that he knows not is a fool."

CITY OF NEW YORK,
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

So that organizations and the people generally may know the truth as to the change in superintendency of schools by the Board of Education, I deem it expedient to call a few facts to your attention.

The choice of a Superintendent of Schools rests with the Board of Education. The term of office of that Superintendent has been fixed by the Legislature at six years. The definite tenure of the office makes it possible for the Board of Education to change the incumbent at the expiration of a term where such change is deemed necessary.

No educational system can function effectively unless the members of the Board of Education and those vested with the supervision of the schools work harmoniously. This harmony did not exist during the six years of Dr. Ettinger's incumbency as Superintendent of Schools.

Dr. Ettinger stubbornly resisted investigations of the educational department by the Commissioner of Accounts and the Board of Education. Though both of these official agencies had an undoubted right to make such investigations, Dr. Ettinger would not permit them to be made and sought to bolster himself in the position assumed with rulings of the State Commissioner of Education.

In 1918, the city administration desired to make, as a business proposition, an investigation of the financial condition of the educational system and of the Department of Education generally. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment, the appropriating body of the city, was desirous of obtaining a comprehensive idea of the requirements of the department for the financial support of its varied activities and the possibility of instituting economies. The Commissioner of Accounts was delegated to the task of making the examination.

Refers to Court Decision.

Dr. Ettinger flatly refused to permit the accountants of Commissioner Hirshfield to have access to the auditors' books. The matter went to the courts. By a unanimous decision of the Court of Appeals the right of the Commissioner of Accounts to undertake the examination was sustained.

At a later date the Board of Education desired to have a survey made of the various schools with particular reference to textbooks. The board wished to act intelligently and in cooperation with the supply division of the educational department. The Commissioner of Accounts was requested to make this survey to be made.

Under the law the Superintendent of Schools is vested with complete authority to select textbooks to be used in the public schools. The presence in our schools of anti-American, pro-British history textbooks would not have been possible without the sanction of the Superintendent of Schools. The continuance of the use in our schools of such history textbooks as Muzzey's and similar histories which had been condemned by patriotic societies and rejected by most American cities was also with the sanction of the Superintendent of Schools.

With complete authority over textbooks Dr. Ettinger must also be held responsible for the use of a hundred or more different textbooks for the same grade work. The adoption of a standard textbook on each subject in the various grades of school work in our city schools would have permitted the purchase of such books in great quantities. This would have meant a large saving of money to the taxpayers.

Report On Text-Books.

One of the reasons why there has been no standardization of textbooks is that Dr. Ettinger and other persons toward whom he has felt kindly disposed in the educational system are authors or co-authors of school text-books. They desire to have their books used in the public schools of this city. There was a two-fold object in this. The sale of such books to the City of New York means substantial profits for the authors. The prestige of a sale in New York City goes far toward the introduction and sale of such books in the public schools throughout the country. A report made by the Commissioner of Accounts shows that the books of which Dr. Ettinger was author or co-author have been used to the extent of about 150,000 volumes a year in the public schools of this city.

The Board of Education has never disputed that the Superintendent of Schools is the chief executive of the educational system, "under the by-laws of the Board of Education." Superintendent Ettinger, however, proceeded to have himself entrenched in power by appealing to the State Commissioner of Education to place unlimited powers in his hand. Dr. Ettinger set himself up as the alpha and omega of the whole educational system. No cooperation was extended to the Board of Education, whom he condescendingly looked down upon. Yet there was great need of cooperation.

When this Administration took office, Jan. 1, 1918, school construction, because of neglect of past Administrations, was at least $75,000,000 behind requirements. Due to war conditions, necessary construction was rendered practically impossible for several years. Lack of facilities inevitably increased.

Passing over the neglect of prior Administrations, two other factors contributed to the delay in the building construction. One was the Gary system, advocated by the Rockefeller and Public Educational Association coterie. Upon this system of education, intending to train the children of the people for the mill and factory, Dr. Ettinger smiled approvingly. Captains of industry had contended that there was need of plenty of workers for the heavy work and that the children should not be too well educated if this was to be brought about, Dr. Ettinger agreed.

The Pay-as-You-Go Law.

The other was the pay-as-you-go law. This law had been enacted with the consent and approval of the previous municipal Administration and went into full effect with the first year of our Administration. By preventing the issue of long-term bonds for school construction it made such financing impossible except through the budget. Failing to put in the budget of a single year the vast sum of $50,000,000 for school construction would have been out of the question, for it would have meant an increase in the schoolgoing population in the tax rate and the constitutional tax limitation would not allow it. The crowding of existing schools, the failure to provide facilities to meet the great increase in the school-going population and the continuance of the Gary system were assured with the pay-as-you-go law in operation. We managed to secure an amendment to this law permitting a method of financing school construction which provided more schools and at once. Had not this law been amended we would have been prevented from laying a single brick in a school building in the City of New York.

For several years we were unable to get the Building Superintendent of the school system to turn out plans sufficient in number to permit us to proceed with our school building program. The Building Superintendent seemed to be under the hypnotic spell of Dr. Ettinger, who himself was busy issuing public statements alleging neglect in the construction of public schools and placing the blame on the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. It was not until a new Building Superintendent was appointed that we were able to have plans prepared as fast as we were appropriating funds for school construction.

This new Building Superintendent has worked out a duplicate school plan, exterior as well as interior, and the policy is to purchase no school building site for the construction of public school buildings unless the Building Superintendent has certified to the Board of Education that the land purchased will be adequate for the erection of a duplicate school. The duplicate school plan as worked out makes it possible by photographic process to secure a duplication of the plans, thus saving a great deal of time in plan preparation and thereby expediting instead of retarding the school building program.

New School Construction.

From Jan. 1, 1918, to date $145,000,000 has been authorized for public school construction; ninety-five new public school buildings have already been constructed and opened, exclusive of five new high schools constructed and opened, and fifty-three new buildings, additions or temporary structures in the course of erection. This record has been made despite war restriction in building for several years, despite the pay-as-you-go law sponsored by the preceding Administration, and despite all the cunning attempts of the Rockefeller and Public Education Association coterie and what I believe to be the unintentional obstruction of many well-meaning but misguided groups of men and women who unwittingly permitted the use of their organizations' names to foster private schemes of self-seeking interests.

The initiation and progress of the world's greatest school building program called for laborious work on the part of the Board of Education. The members of that board are all men and women of integrity and with no thought but for the best interest of the school children of our city. Their motives have been honest and their work deserving of unstinted praise.

Dr. Ettinger has withheld credit for the successful accomplishments of the Board of Education in overcoming the tremendous handicaps in and out of the public school system. He has been contemptuous in references to the board and its activities, and when not leveling accusations, has maintained a lofty indifference. He would have the people believe that politics has actuated the official conduct of the members of the Board of Education, and in his efforts to create such an impression he has been the mouthpiece of outside interests which have long run our public school system.

He proclaimed himself as one to whom politics was an unknown quantity. It was due to Dr. Ettinger that the position of Director of Vocational Activities was created. He filled this new position with his own personal appointee. This position was a sop to the Gary advocates who have been treated severely, as they should be, by the present Administration. The increase of vocational subjects with the object of training the children for the mill and factory was the sole object in the creation of this position.

Refers to Reinstatements.

In some instances he has seen fit to reinstate employes who had severed their connection with the educational department. He knew that his action was illegal and without warrant. This did not deter him.

By extending the activities of the Bureau of Reference and Research he added to his channels for the dissemination of personal propaganda and the placing of himself in a favorable light. That he added expense to the taxpayers was of no concern to him.

By having the Principal, who formerly was his assistant when he himself was Associate Superintendent, reassigned to him when that Principal was made District Superintendent, Dr. Ettinger employed this high-salaried servant in the capacity of a chief clerk.

The Director of Evening Schools and Continuation Schools was another position created by Superintendent Ettinger. This, too, was filled by his personal appointee. This appointee expended city funds lavishly, at times exceeding budgetary appropriations. He developed an uncontrollable impulse to fill the educational system with teachers of every conceivable subject, including such subjects as manicuring, shampooing and hairdressing.

Although the State Commissioner of Education has upheld the right of the Board of Education of this city to examine into the procedure of the Board of Examiners, Superintendent Ettinger opposed such examination and ridiculed the investigators. It was, however, clearly established by the investigation conducted that the Superintendent of Schools did exercise a great influence over the Board of Examiners, that he used this board for the advancement of private purposes, that individuals bearing the stamp of approval of non-official bodies, such as the Public Educational Association of Rockefeller affiliation, were given unwarranted preferences, and that in the licensing of teachers great partiality was shown to those coming from outside the city notwithstanding that this was in defiance of the rules on that subject.

Though there has been long and constant shortage of elementary school grade teachers, Superintendent Ettinger did not relieve the situation by permitting the issuance of licenses without an additional examination to applicants after graduation from the teachers' training schools; and this despite the fact that it is a common practice throughout the country for graduates of training schools to teach for a probationary period without further examination.

Work-Study-Play Plan.

Dr. Ettinger approved the continuance of the practice of the additional examinations conducted by the Board of Examiners, which examinations were practically useless and expensive, as well as time consuming.

The part-time evil is rapidly being reduced to a minimum. The reduction of part-time classes has been greater by 100 per cent. during this Administration than in any other previous Administration. Part-time classes would have increased 100 per cent. if the city had depended upon Dr. Ettinger for help in its building program.

The Gary system and the work-study-play idea were in reality part-time devices. But part-time figures were disguised under various terms when the Gary system was in vogue. When the Gary system was abolished Dr. Ettinger had much to say about part time. The figures which he frequently gave to the public of the number of part-time pupils were often not in accord with the facts as actual checking demonstrated. When vast numbers of new sittings were provided in the public schools, Dr. Ettinger sought to counterbalance the favorable effect upon the public by supposed quotations from official records indicating that part time was increasing by leaps and bounds. There was one instance where about 40,000 additional seats were provided where there was an increased enrollment of only between 18,000 and 20,000 pupils. Yet Superintendent Ettinger gave out a report that part time had increased that particular year by 27,000, when the report should have shown that part time had decreased by at least 20,000.

This administration and the Board of Education were charged with personal liability for the dilapidated condition of many school buildings which we inherited. Some of these buildings had been standing for one-half to three-quarters of a century. There was not a single fire-trap among them. Dr. Ettinger inadvertently admitted this in a public statement. But he saw an opportunity to lead up the education department with additional forces of inspectors for which requisition was promptly made. These were cancelled after hearings reported by the Fire Department. A few were structural changes of the old school buildings made necessary by a change in law. Many of them were what is known as housekeeping hazards, to which the Superintendent of Schools, District Superintendents, the Principals and janitors should have given attention. As for example, a door-knob off a window-light cut, a piece of paper on or behind a radiator, &c. The remedying of these conditions was clearly the duty of the Superintendent of Schools. Through educational channels information was given out to the effect that the City Administration was directly responsible for the so-called fire hazards. Though this was not true we caused the so-called fire hazards to be eliminated when we forced the Superintendent of Schools to do his duty.

Attacks Gary Advocates.

The real motive behind the drive started by organizations used by craftier ones against the use of old school buildings was to have them shut down. This would have reduced available accommodations, forced the children into other school buildings and added to the congestion. This, in turn, would have nullified our efforts to house promptly and adequately the school children of the city and would have provided the ammunition for the Gary advocates to broadcast their propagandad to hoodwink the people.

During many years past methods, regulations and customs had grown up in the school system which not only impeded the functioning of the Department of Education, but interfered greatly with the fundamental education of the children. The efforts on the part of the present Board of Education to change these obsolete and retarding conditions met the insistent opposition of Dr. Ettinger.

Any suggestion to simplify the work of the educational department and to secure a more economical administration met the open or secret disapproval of Superintendent Ettinger. No contribution was received from him toward the substantial increase of the educational organization or the effecting of an economical administration. The help of groups and organizations with high sounding names and hostile to the Administration was availed of by Superintendent Ettinger for his own personal aggrandizement. With their assistance he did not hesitate to seek the enactment of legislation which would increase his autocratic powers, reduce the Board of Education to a mere clerical body and perpetuate himself in office with plenary powers.

The Board of Education, with the possible exception of one member, and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment have worked harmoniously and cooperatively together. But the Board of Education could do little unless that board had the full cooperation of the Superintendent of Schools and the Associate Superintendents.

Predicts Harmony Now.

From recent public statements of the President of the Board of Education and the new Superintendent of Schools, Dr. William J. O'Shea, we may now expect that there will be full cooperation between Associate Superintendents and the Board of Education. Personally I can add the assurance that there will be the heartiest cooperation between the Board of Estimate and Apportionment and the Board of Education. We have but one purpose in mind—to construct a sufficient number of school buildings, so far as we are financially able to do so, in order that every child of school age may be provided with a seat in our public schools and in order that the best possible education, with particular attention to the fundamentals, may be given to our school children.

My only reason for writing this communication is in order that the people of this city may know the truth about the public schools, that they may know that the Board of Estimate and Apportionment is prepared to give the Board of Education every dollar that the board needs for proper educational purposes, but that we are determined to permit this money to be expended only for the purpose for which it was appropriated, and that this necessary control over municipal expenditures was not possible under Superintendent Ettinger, with whom the saving of city funds was completely subordinated to his personal aggrandizement.

RAMMED AUTO KILLS WOMAN NEAR CURB

WERE CROSSING ROADWAY

Mrs. Edna Tucker, 35 years old, of 5 Bells Place, Maspeth, Queens, was instantly killed, and Mrs. Catherine McCurdy, 35, of 720 West 183d Street was seriously injured when, while crossing Broadway and 166th Street, last night, they were struck by a sedan which had just been rammed by another automobile.

George Seifter, a chauffeur, of 58 West 115th Street, was driving the owner of the sedan, John T. Donnan of 1,749 Park Avenue, east into West 166th Street, when a larger automobile, operated by John Riley, 19 years old, of 3,000 Kingsbridge Road, and which was going north, ran into the sedan.

The two women had crossed West 166th Street and were about to step on to the sidewalk when the sedan struck them. Policeman Farrell of the West 152d Street Station summoned Dr. Rosallo from Columbus Hospital, who said that Mrs. Tucker's death had been instantaneous, while Mrs. McCurdy had received internal injuries and a fracture of the left leg. Both chauffeurs then were arrested on technical charges of homicide.

Pasquale Stigliani, 7 years old, of 320 East 110th Street, died in Harlem Hospital yesterday of injuries he received when he was knocked down by a motor truck near his home. Milan Tomanik, 6 years old, of 332 East 119th Street, who was struck by the same vehicle, and removed to the same hospital, was reported to be in a serious condition. Paul De Ratrer, driver of the truck, was arrested.

Dorothy Robson, 16 years old, of 121 Twentieth Street, West New York, N. J., in crossing Twenty-fourth Street at Fourth Avenue yesterday afternoon, was knocked down by an automobile driven by Joseph Schechter of 1,422 Forty-sixth Street, Brooklyn.

Two girls, Rosalie Stence of 2,706 Newkirk Avenue, Brooklyn, and Margaret Martin of 103 West 183d Street, who witnessed the accident, held the unconscious girl in their lap while she was being hurried to Bellevue Hospital in the automobile by Policeman O'Leary. Dr. Kahn said at the hospital that the victim of the accident had received a concussion of the brain and general injuries and that her condition was serious.

Big Canadian Log Jam Broken.

MONTREAL, May 27.—The big log jam on the Upper Gatineau River, some 200 miles north of Ottawa, was reported broken today as a result of the heavy rains of Monday and today. An airship reached the scene on Sunday, following instructions from the American Pulp and Paper Corporation of Canada and after surveying the situation, flew back to Three Rivers to get supplies for the fifty lumber-jacks held behind the jam. On the return, however, it was found that the drive was under way.

HARRIMAN BANK SENDS MESSAGE ABOUT FESS

Every Member of House and Senate Gets Document Questioning the Senator's Sincerity.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The sincerity of Senator Fess of Ohio in praising President Coolidge in a Boston speech and later voting to override the veto of the Bonus bill is questioned in a communication received by every member of Congress today from the Harriman National Bank of New York. Declaring that the Boston speech of Senator Fess had "fooled it," the bank "apologizes" for having sent out the address to its "depositors and friends."

The communication received today was the same printed copy of the Fess speech in which he criticised the Senate for "reaching a new low level" and referred to the Senate investigations as a "spree of muckraking," but across the face of the printed speech was written in pen and ink these words:

This article was sent to you in our folder of April 21. Senator Fess of Ohio is a wonderful orator, but is he a sincere man? He has now recorded his vote overriding the President's veto of the Bonus bill. We apologize for having sent to you heretofore the original of this article. We were fooled by the speech of Mr. Fess. We thought him to be a sincere man and took his words at face value. This reproduction goes in this form to all of our 2,500 readers.

HARRIMAN NATIONAL BANK,
J. W. Harriman, President.

Enclosed with it was a printed circular, headed "A Question of Sincerity," being a copy of an advertisement published in New York newspapers yesterday morning.

Senator Fess and his colleague, Senator Willis, who also voted to override the Bonus veto, laughed at the action of the bank when shown the communication. Senator Willis said he welcomed the action, because it would furnish proof to constituents of the Ohio Senators that "Wall Street" disliked their attitude on the bonus.

dissension throughout the country. Others hold, however, that he will stand on the principle that the President of the Republic is not the creature of a parliamentary election.

The Chamber has no legal power to depose M. Millerand. He was elected to serve until 1927, and under the Constitution may be removed only for treason.

The situation therefore remains technically in his hands. However, there is the possibility of his not being able to form a Cabinet if M. Herriot and the Radical Socialists side with the Unified Socialists. Should this happen, there will be a majority composed of Radical Socialists and Unified Socialists, refusing to approve any Premier named by M. Millerand. This is what happened to President Jules Grévy, who resigned in consequence of being gently pushed out of the door by M. Clemenceau.

Commenting on the situation the Libre says tonight:

"It seems to us that his resignation would be the greatest error and the gravest fault M. Millerand could commit, either from the viewpoint of his party or from the interests of the Republic. The duty of the President is to remain in power until the end of his seven years. To allow the chief magistracy of the country to be transformed into a post of combat and confide it to some militant individual would be the most serious political folly he could commit."

Two men are mentioned as possible successors to M. Millerand if he leaves the Elysee—Gaston Doumergue, President of the Senate, and Paul Painlevé. It is believed M. Doumergue's chances would be the better.

CRITICIZES DAWES REPORT.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 27.—M. Caillaux gave his opinion on the reparations problem and the Dawes report in an interview with a Journal representative at Royat yesterday, as follows:

"Germany ought to pay. But technical financial difficulties must be taken into account. Of these the greatest is transferring capital, and this difficulty the Dawes plan does not definitely solve. But I must not talk politics. My time has not come yet."

At Royat, to which he had gone to follow the usual cure for the reduction of arterial pressure, the former Premier seemed to be enjoying all his former health and vigor. Exaggerated accounts of his illness have been printed, and he twitted his interviewer with having come to see whether or not he was already sinking into the grave. "I am better than I was in 1914," he said.

M. Caillaux is preparing a political speech to be made at a ceremony to be held shortly in the Sarthe Department in memory of the late Senator D'Estournelles de Constant, in which it is believed he will outline the political program which he thinks the Left majority ought to follow. With his interviewer he refused to follow the question of his amnesty or revision of his trial except to say, "The Government must understand the meaning of the shouts of 'Vive Caillaux!' which greeted the announcement of each victory of the Left at the elections of May 11."

BROWN DENIES RIGHT OF EPISCOPAL COURT

DISMISSAL OF CASE ASKED

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, May 27.—Bishop William Montgomery Brown, retired, of Galion, Ohio, the first Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church of America to be tried for heresy, denied through counsel at the opening of his trial today the jurisdiction of nine Bishops to try their peer.

The trial of Bishop Brown, who retired from the diocese of Arkansas in 1912 because of ill health, attracted many prominent churchmen to the hall of Trinity Cathedral. Of the nine Bishops chosen to act as the court, only Bishop S. Lines of Newark failed to appear. The others were Bishops John Gardner Murray of Baltimore, presiding, and Bishops Frederic F. Reese of Georgia, Theodore D. Bratton of Mississippi, Benjamin Brewster of Maine, William F. Faber of Montana, Edwin M. Parker of New Hampshire, John McCormick of Western Michigan and Herman Page of Michigan.

Bishop Brown is being tried on charges based on twenty-three quotations from his book, "Communism and Christianism," in which he rejects the literal interpretation of the Bible and attempts to have his readers view religion from the Darwinian point of view and politics from the Marxian viewpoint. The front cover of the book, which was sold in front of the church today, bears a design showing the rising sun and underneath the crossed hammer and sickle, emblematic of the Soviet Government. The design is surrounded by the inscription: "Banish gods from the skies and capitalists from earth."

The Bishop was accompanied by his counsel, Joseph W. Sharts of Dayton, candidate for Governor of Ohio on the Socialist ticket; Edward Bushnell of Cleveland, advisory counsel, and the Rev. A. S. Wratham of Louisville, Ky., his theological adviser, and his friend, Theodore Schroder of Cos Cob, Conn., former attorney of the Free Speech League.

On the other side of the counsel table were Charles L. Dibble of Kalamazoo, Mich., Church Advocate; John H. Sharts of Cleveland, Assistant Church Advocate, and other advisers. Richard Inglis of Cleveland and Henry Harlan, dean of the Law School of the University of Maryland, are acting as legal advisers to the trial court.

Disputes Bishops' Jurisdiction.

When the court opened Mr. Sharts said that before the accused could be presented for trial the court would have to pass on the question of its jurisdiction, which was disputed by Bishop Brown. He asserted that the court was irregularly constituted, as the Bishops of Mississippi, Maine and Montana had not been elected at their proper time. He also held that the court had no jurisdiction on the person of the defendant, because the latter no longer was connected with a diocese, and under canon law Bishops could not sit to try one of their peers.

"The fundamental principle upon which the Church of England separated from the Roman Catholic Church," said Mr. Sharts, "was the independence of the individual Bishop from the dictation of his fellow Bishops, especially the Bishop of Rome. If you have so far forgotten the fundamental principles of the founders of this separate church as to repudiate the independence of the individual Bishops in the matter of doctrine, the next logical step before you is to go back to the Bishop of Rome, and, kneeling in sackcloth and ashes, confess your faults and repudiate the sins of your sires."

Mr. Dibble, the church advocate, quoted authorities to prove that Bishops could try their peers, and contradicted the assertion that no court of appeals now exists to which a decision of the Bishops' Court may be taken, maintaining that in matters of doctrine appeals may be taken to the Court of Review and the House of Bishops.

Mr. Sharts contended that the general convention of the Church in 1922 was supposed to choose three Bishops of the nine who sit in the trial court, but there were six vacancies and that number of Bishops were elected to the court.

Counsel declared that those who framed the law which stated that only three Bishops were to be chosen at one time had in mind the possibility of one faction controling the judicial tribunal and making use of its temporary control to assail its adversaries. The idea was to have a system of checks and balances in order to have the make-up of the court change gradually.

"Suppose the enemies of this defendant har designed to bring this particular proceeding and had put in six of their members, a controling number," said Mr. Sharts. "We can all realize that such a situation was not intended by the framers of this canon. The framers intended to limit the power of the general convention to name three members, a minority of this court."

Mr. Sharts next raised the point whether "the complete machinery of justice" had been provided. One canon of the Church provides that the general convention may establish an ultimate court of appeals for a review of cases tried by the Bishops, but in this case no such court had been appointed.

"If this court errs, goes astray in its interpretation of the constitution of canon law, the doctrine of the Church," said Mr. Sharts, "this defendant should have open to him all the way up to a court of review, but the door is closed to him. Before it puts him into jeopardy, this court should wait until the highest court of the Church is open to him for review, and only then can it place him on trial."

The lawyer pointed to the provision in the canon law which states that a court shall be called within the diocese of the accused Bishop, and declared Bishop Brown no longer had a diocese. Adding that the framers of the canon never contemplated the trial of a retired Bishop.

"If the framers of the Church Constitution in America had wished to permit a Bishop to be tried by Bishops, they would have said so plainly," the lawyer argued.

Mr. Dibble, in reply to Mr. Sharts, argued that even if the Bishops of the six appointed at the last General Convention had not been properly elected so the court it would not make the court unconstitutional, as six members would still constitute a quorum. He contended, however, that there was no irregularity in their selection, and cited Church canons in his support.

As to Bishop Brown's contention that the trial court was not qualified to proceed because an ultimate court of appeal had not been established, Mr. Dibble maintained that in effect, though not in name, a court of appeal in the case of Bishops had been established by Canon 33, Article 5, which stated that the judgment of a court of review in cases involving errors of doctrine must be approved by vote of the House of Bishops.

Mr. Dibble contended that Bishop Brown could be tried in any diocese, even without his consent, since the court was not diocesan, but had jurisdiction anywhere in the Church.

Decision Promised Today.

After Mr. Sharts had been heard in answer to Mr. Dibble, Bishop Murray announced that the court would consider the question and would announce its decision tomorrow. If the decision is adverse to the defense, counsel for Bishop Moore will move to quash the presentment signed by Bishops C. A. Hall of Vermont, Joseph M. Francis of Indianapolis and William L. Gravatte of West Virginia. Failing in this course, the defense will demand a bill of particulars. An adverse decision on this point will be met with a demurrer to the presentment, after which a plea of guilty or not guilty will be entered. The maximum penalty, if he is found guilty, is expulsion from the Church.

Every possible technical objection will be made by the defense, it was said, because it has been allowed the minimum two months for preparing the case instead of the maximum six months.

The attempt of the defense to question other Bishops as to their views will meet with the determined opposition of the Church advocate. It is the desire of Bishop Brown to make some of the Bishops admit that they, too, reject large parts of the Scriptures, interpreting them symbolically instead of literally.

The church in which the trial is being conducted has many warm memories for Bishop Brown. It was there that he was baptized, took his first communion and was consecrated as Bishop.

"If the Church throws me out the scientists shall try me," said Bishop Brown before his trial today. "I will abide by the findings of the scientists."

He explained that he had sent scores of letters to well-known scientists asking them to pass on his religious views. He has also "summoned" many well-known clergymen, including Dr. Percy Stickney Grant and other Modernists, and if they are permitted to testify the trial may last several weeks.

The prosecution is confident that these witnesses, if they appear, will be ruled out of order. In any event, the trial will continue three or four days.

Bishop Brown Calls Dr. Crapsey.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 27.—That Dr. Algernon S. Crapsey of this city may figure prominently in the trial of Bishop Brown before an ecclesiastical court in Cleveland became probable today when Dr. Crapsey left for Cleveland in response to a telegraphic request from Dr. Brown.

Dr. Crapsey said there was serious doubt in his mind as to whether Bishop Brown would actually be brought to trial. If the trial does proceed, Dr. Crapsey said, he undoubtedly will serve as one of Dr. Brown's counselors.

"If Bishop Brown is tried," Dr. Crapsey said, "the ecclesiastical court must do one of two things—it must reject the modern conception of the universe or it must accept the modern conception of religion."

SHOW GERMANS HIGH UP IN PLOT ON VON SEEKT

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 27.—That Thormann and Grandel, now on trial for having planned the assassination of General von Seekt, were only tools in the hands of conspirators in much higher station was clearly shown during today's proceedings.

Grandel, who now pretends that all his and Thormann's efforts to pledge Lieutenant Koepke to murder General von Seekt were only made to unmask the Lieutenant as an informer of Herr Severing, was confronted today with a confession he made a few days after his arrest to the effect that he and Thormann had conspired with Councillor Clara, a notorious pan-German chieftain, to hire assassins to do away with the General.

Grandel, according to this confession, had received about $4,000 from Clara to arrange the assassination. Today Grandel stated that he made the confession when deeply depressed over his arrest, and afterward prepared to commit suicide. His statements made then were untrue, he said, and he had begged to revoke them immediately, but had been given no chance until today.

When pressed he would not deny having received money from Clara, but said it was only for political agitation. Asked if he knew that Clara had had an encounter with General von Seekt, he replied:

"Yes, I heard that Clara reproached General von Seekt for obstructing a secret extension of the army, to which General von Seekt answered, 'Yes, I am against secret military activities, and I will even shoot at them until my last cartridge is spent.'" an unusual interest in the selection of a Vice Presidential nominee and is understood to have insisted that nothing should be done to curtail or invade the province of the delegates in this respect. Possibly his own experience in the 1920 convention might have something to do with this attitude.

While the so-called "Senate oligarchy" contrived to have one of their own number selected for the first place on the ticket and had another slated for second place in the person of Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin, the delegates took matters into their own hands and broke the hold of the Senatorial junta in the selection of Calvin Coolidge for Vice Presidential nominee.

1,000 Women to Attend.

According to a statement made public by the Woman's National Republican Executive Committee, it is expected that some 1,000 Republican women will go to the convention, between 400 and 500 of them in some official capacity—that is, as delegates or alternates.

According to an estimate made by Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, Vice Chairman of the committee, there will be 125 women delegates in the convention, compared with 27 in the convention four years ago and twice the number of alternates. Of the latter 133 were women in the 1920 convention. According to the statement an elaborate program of entertainment is being arranged for the women delegates and visitors.

The Republican National Committee will meet in Cleveland a week from today and will sit in continuous session until the following Friday evening hearing and deciding contests, of which there are comparatively few this year and none involving candidacies.

Contests have been brought from one district in Arkansas, two districts in South Carolina, all of Mississippi, all of Georgia and the District of Columbia are sending contesting delegations. It will devolve upon the National Committee to declare which faction in these constituencies shall be recognized.

WEST VIRGINIA VOTES.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 27.—Returns from today's primary in West Virginia trickled in slowly tonight, only 40 of the 2,152 precincts in the State having been tabulated four hours after the polls closed. Exceptionally long ballots and a heavy vote in the larger cities delayed the count.

Nominally it was a Presidential preference primary, but only one candidate, President Coolidge, filed his name, thus binding the nineteen Republicans to support him at the Cleveland convention.

There were no Democratic Presidential preference candidates on the ballots, and the delegation will go to the New York convention uninstructed. A few of the Democratic candidates announced their intention of supporting John W. Davis, while one announced for William G. McAdoo.

The early returns showed W. E. Chilton of Charleston leading Mrs. Isetta Jewell Brown of Kingwood, 1,076 to 1,114, for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator.

In the Republican race Guy D. Goff of Clarksburg was leading a field of four. The vote of thirty-eight precincts was: Goff, 1,067; M. V. Godbey, 155; Wells Goodykoontz, 513; Walter Hallanan, 507, and B. L. Rosenbloom, 806.

36 KNOWN KILLED IN SOUTHERN STORM

UNKNOWN NUMBERS INJURED

Toll of Death Is Expected to Be Larger When Isolated Communities Report.

ATLANTA, May 27 (Associated Press).—Still maimed and in the shadow of a devastating series of tornadoes of less than a month ago, rural Alabama and Mississippi late yesterday and early today again were struck by a second visitation, and at a late hour today were taking toll of their dead and injured and the unestimated thousands of dollars damage done to farms and homes and buildings.

Available advices from the torn districts place Alabama as the greatest sufferer in loss of life, with a known total of nineteen dead; Mississippi, with an aggregate of seventeen killed and reports of many other fatalities, which, if confirmed, will greatly increase the casualty list of that State.

In Alabama more than thirty persons were injured, some fatally, and many seriously; while Mississippi with more than fifty injured already reported, probably will be hardest hit when more complete reports are received.

Already the Red Cross and other organizations of mercy are on the scenes, rendering what aid is possible and assisting in the care of hundreds of homeless.

At Collins, Miss., most of the business district was wiped out. The storm also struck Johnson Station, Vicksburg, Greenville and Bay Springs.

In Alabama great damage was done at the Owens mining community, near Empire City. Three families were reported annihilated in the little mining community. Reports from Athens place the number of dead at seven in the Ellamont neighborhood.

EMPIRE, Ala., May 27.—Two families were practically wiped out in the Owens mining camp three miles from here early today when ten persons were killed and fifteen injured in a storm that struck while they slept. The homes of Billy Robbins and John Hays were smashed into splinters.

In the Robbins household eight persons were killed. Mrs. John Hays and a young woman named Abbott met death in the Hays home and Mr. Hays was so badly hurt that it is believed he will die. Several other houses were demolished.

MERIDIAN, Miss., May 27.—Seven members of the John Broadway family were killed in a storm at Brewer early today. A girl was killed at Devoe.

GADSDEN, Ala., May 27.—Eight persons were injured, a number seriously, in a storm that struck the White Springs community seven miles from here early today.

MAKES NEAR EAST PLEA.

Bierstadt Calls Attitude of Allies "The Great Betrayal."

Calling the failure of the Allies to support the minority peoples of the Near East "the great betrayal," Edward Hale Bierstadt, author and editor, said last night at a gathering in the home of Dr. and Mrs. F. J. Fox, 148 East Nineteenth Street, that since the armistice the United States Navy had consistently supported the Turks, that the humanitarian causes for which the American people stood had been "wiped out," and that the economic factors in the situation had been dealt with according to their value to the Republican Administration.

"Oil won the last war," said Mr. Bierstadt, "and will win the next. I sincerely believe that a fair chance should be given to the Turkish Nationalists, but they certainly ought not to be given chances at the expense of the Greeks and Armenians."

NAVY DIRIGIBLE TESTED.

LAKEHURST, N. J., May 27.—The new naval dirigible, J-1, returned safely to the air station hangar here this afternoon after a four-hour test cruise which took the craft as far as New York City, Newark, Elizabeth, New Brunswick and Princeton were passed on the return trip.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur and Maj. Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, weather permitting, will be passengers in the renovated Shenandoah on a flight tomorrow afternoon, according to announcements tonight.

Lawyers Dine Abraham Solomon.

A dinner was given to Assistant United States District Attorney Abraham Solomon last night at the Hotel Astor in appreciation of his six years' work in the Federal District Attorney's office. Mr. Solomon, who has successfully prosecuted sixty cases in the Commercial Frauds Court, will go into general law practice.

FOLDED DOLLAR BILL A CLUE TO BOY SLAYER

ELLSWORTH, Maine, May 27.—Roland McDonald, 15-year-old Amherst schoolboy, was arraigned here today on a charge of murder in causing the death of Miss Louise B. Gerrish, his school teacher, 19 years old, last Wednesday night. The boy, who entered a plea of not guilty, was ordered held without bail for the October term of the Hancock County Grand Jury.

Because of the age of the defendant, the arraignment was in the office of Judge Harry L. Crabtree rather than in open court.

Sheriff Ward W. Wescott was present with a document signed by young McDonald in the presence of witnesses and purporting to be a full confession, but this was not referred to. The Judge found probable cause and Roland was remanded to the county jail, where his brother Victor, two years younger, is held as a material witness.

In the alleged confession Roland said that he stood with a shotgun in a pasture near the road and killed the youthful teacher with a charge of buckshot as she passed on her way to the Post Office. The boy admitted that he stripped the body of valuables—a watch, a ring and a small sum of money—and dragged it through the pasture to a secluded spot, where he left it for the night. Next morning he returned with a spade, he told the Sheriff, excavated a shallow grave and buried the teacher's body.

Exhibits in the hands of the county authorities include the shotgun, found near the grave, a long-handled spade with which Roland said he prepared the grave, and the jewelry and money, recovered from a cache under the sill of the barn on the farm of George Williams, in Amherst, where Miss Gerrish boarded, and where Roland and his brother were employed to do morning and evening chores. Miss Gerrish was engaged to Williams's son Russell.

A peculiarly folded $1 bill, presented at the general store in Amherst in payment for candy two days after the death of Miss Gerrish, directed suspicion to Roland McDonald and led to the boy's arrest, Sheriff Wescott made known tonight in expressing his conviction that robbery was the compelling motive for the murder.

Some time before, he said, the teacher had forgotten her purse at the store, which is also the village Post Office. Postmaster Denham, opening the purse in search of the owner's name, noticed the much-worn dollar bill, folded lengthwise and creased in unusual fashion. He returned the purse to Miss Gerrish. Last Friday, when young McDonald tendered a bill, the Postmaster recognized the money and quietly notified the Sheriff. Roland was closely questioned and admitted the crime.

FIND MEXICAN MURDERED.

West Chester (Pa.) Police Identify Him as Miguel Balero of This City.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST CHESTER, Pa., May 27.—The body of a well dressed Mexican or Spaniard, believed to be that of Miguel Balero of 424 West 110th Street, New York, was found this evening in an isolated spot beside a small stream following the King Road on the William E. Lockwood farm, East Whitland.

The man had been shot twice in the breast with a revolver of heavy calibre and had been dead about twenty-four hours.

His hat and coat were missing. Probable identification of the victim was made by a card bearing the address found in an inside pocket of his vest, together with a lady's gold watch. He also carried a small wrist watch with a topas pendant and a gold badge bearing the name of Maggie Mitchell. The same name was written on a card found beside the watch.

REPORT HOSPITAL ROBBED.

Investigation of alleged juggling of accounts by an employe in the office of Lebanon Hospital, Westchester and Cauldwell Avenues, the Bronx, was begun yesterday by District Attorney John E. McGeehan. He said that he had received no direct complaint from the institution, but understood that not long after one of the office workers had left a shortage of several thousand dollars was discovered.

George Halpern, superintendent of the hospital, refused to discuss the report. Lebanon Hospital is a semi-public hospital, being supported by funds from the Federation of Jewish Philanthropic Societies and individual contributions.

upon immoral, questionable and misleading theatrical or motion picture performances; against dancing and against such games of chance as are frequently associated with gambling, all of which have been found to be antagonistic to vital piety, promotive of worldiness and especially pernicious to youth. We affectionately admonish all our people to make their amusements the subject of careful thought and frequent prayer to study the subject of amusements in the light of their tendencies and to be scrupulously careful in this matter to set no injurious example. We adjure them to remember that often the question for a Christian must be not whether a certain course of action is positively immormal but whether it will dull the spiritual life and be an unwise example."

The Rev. David D. Forsythe of Philadelphia, was re-elected secretary of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extensions.

The conference voted to put unification of North and Souht Methodist Churches, already approved, before the Northern Conference in 1925, if the South Church accepts the plan at its special meeting in July.

An old-time custom was broken this afternoon when a woman delegate was nominated for an important office. The honor went to Mrs. Peter F. Stair of Detroit, who received twenty-five votes on the first ballot for secretary of the Board of Education. The first ballot resulted in no election and another ballot was taken, the result of which will be announced tomorrow.

Bishops' Assignments Changed.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 27 (Associated Press).—More than half the episcopal residences of the Methodist Episcopal Church have a change in Bishops as a result of the assignments approved by the General Conference at tonight's session. All of the five newly elected Bishops were sent to foreign stations.

The assignments were as follows:

Boston—William F. Anderson, from Cincinnati.
Chicago—Edwin P. Hughes, from Boston.
Cincinnati—Theodore S. Henderson, from Detroit.
Detroit—Thomas Nicholson, from Chicago.
Helena, Mont.—P. Lester Smith, from Bangalore, India.
Omaha—Frederick T. Kenney, from Foochow, China.
St. Paul—Charles E. Locke, from Manila.
San Francisco—Charles W. Burns, from Helena.

Foreign Field.

Foochow—Wallace E. Brown.
Peking—George R. Grose.
Bangalore—Francis W. Warne, from Lucknow.
Bombay—Brenton T. Badley.
Delhi—John W. Robinson, from Bombay.
Manila—Charles B. Mitchell, from St. Paul.
Singapore—Titus Lower.
Mexico City—George A. Miller.

The Bishops who have retired from age or illness are George P. Bickley of Singapore (supernumerary relation), William A. Quayle of St. Louis (merged with Kansas City), William Burt of Buffalo, Frank M. Bristol of Chattanooga and Homer C. Stuntz of Omaha.

Many of the changes were due to an order made by the conference that the Episcopacy Committee should "have in mind" an eight-year limitation to the Bishops' tenure of any one station. Bishops Hughes, Anderson and Nicholson fell in this group, as did Bishops Luther B. Wilson of New York, Joseph F. Berry of Philadelphia and William F. McDowell of Washington. The latter three were left in their present residences.

The proposal to establish a national Methodist Episcopal tuberculosis sanitorium at Colorado Springs was approved.

BELMAISON

With Old Quilted Cushions

Last Summer Au Quatrieme's chief discovered in an out-of-the-way corner of France a collection of old peasant chairs cushioned in the quilted petticoats which the women of Provence wore in bygone days. The entire group of chairs was purchased and brought to America, and so popular have they been that Belmaison cabled abroad for all the old French petticoats that could be found, and had the best of these chairs carefully reproduced and cushioned in the quaint material.

There are four models of these chairs to select from, and all belong to the Louis XV. or Directoire periods. As to the petticoats, since each covers but two chairs, and no two are alike, there is almost every color and pattern to select from. Especially fascinating are those in canary yellow dotted with tiny roses, while others in black with pink rosebuds are almost Victorian in effect. The woman who wants something different, something odd and pretty, which is not too formal for her country home, will find in these light and comfortable chairs the answer to a long felt want.

They are easily moved about, and their colorful cushions add a cheery note to any room.

The price is $95.

The models known as "Orleans" and "Brittany" are upholstered in the same picturesque petticoat material, and are also reproductions of old chairs. They may be had with painted or walnut finished frames. $175.

The EMPEROR — Nine Inches
The EMPRESS — Eight and Fifteen-Sixteenths Inches

IN the whole world there is to our knowledge only one larger crystal and that one has a flaw. The Emperor and The Empress are both perfect, and as a pair they are absolutely unique.

They were carved with infinite patience by Chinese master craftsmen from flawless rock crystal brought in from Burmah.

"Ice-so-old-it-cannot-melt" is the modern version, both in China and Japan, of the old Greek krystallos, "clear ice." The Japanese believe this quarts to be the congealed breath of the White Dragon. Out of the rough quarts, chipping away with a small steel hammer, the Chinese artist rounds out a sphere of most amazing perfection. On the polished surfaces of these two "Spheres of Life," the eye cannot trace the tiniest imaginable flaw. These crystals are treasured the world over not alone for their mystic associations but for a decorative charm and an intrinsic beauty quite unrivalled.

For years our representative visiting China has coveted possession of this matchless pair, and only recently has succeeded in bringing them to Wanamaker's.

RUSH HOUR CROWDS SEE MAN STAB GIRL

VICTIM'S CONDITION SERIOUS

In view of hundreds of persons on their way home from work, Argin Kazarian, 24 years old, a Turk confectioner of 107 Lexington Avenue, plunged an eight-inch dirk into the breast and back of Shamiram Marakjian, 22 years old, an Armenian embroidery worker of 131 East 206th Street, the Bronx, at Twenty-third Street and Sixth Avenue last night.

The wounded girl was taken to the New York Hospital in a serious condition and her assailant was locked up in the West Thirtieth Street Police Station on a charge of felonious assault. He was captured after a chase through Sixth Avenue and Twenty-second Street, in which scores of persons took part and after one shot had been fired at him by Patrolman William Carey of Traffic A.

Kazarian had been attentive to the girl and she had repulsed him. He came here three years ago from Constantinople and she arrived in America some months later. Kazarian said he first met her in an art school where she was a pupil. It was his custom to wait for her at her place of employment and ride home with her.

Last night, Kazarian told the police, he rode with her on the elevated to Twenty-third Street and Sixth Avenue, and on the way kept urging the girl to marry him, but she refused.

As they came down the stairs from the elevated station the youth was heard to renew his plea. "Will you marry me?" he shouted.

"No!" replied the girl in tones loud enough to be heard by many who were pressing down the stairway in front of and behind them.

As the two reached the sidewalk Kazarian drew a dirk, swung his arm around the girl's waist and repeatedly plunged the blade into her back, her right breast and her hip and finally cut a long slash across her face.

The girl's screams drew the crowd closely about her and in the excitement the assailant broke through and ran down Sixth Avenue, still holding the dirk in his hand. He was caught in Twenty-second Street, near Fifth Avenue, by policemen, who beat him into submission. When they came back with their prisoner the girl, who had not lost consciousness, identified him.

Before the prisoner was locked up the police asked him, "Why in the world did you stab that girl?"

"Have you ever been in love?" he retorted.

Acabic Hovafapian of 212 East Twentieth Street, a cousin of Miss Marakjian, told the police that when the girl came to this country a year and a half ago Kazarian was a passenger on the same ship. He made ardent love to her then and had continued since to haunt her home here, protesting his affection. When she repulsed him, the cousin said, Kazarian began to make threats.

TO EASE BAN ON AERIALS.

Montclair's New Town Board Will Recast Radio Ordinance.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., May 27.—Radio amateurs today won a six weeks' fight to prevent city legislation restricting the use of aerials. The old Town Commission last month passed an ordinance prohibiting extension of aerials over other than telephone wires on penalty of $100 fine. The new Town Commission, which came into office a week ago, voted at today's meeting to shelve this ordinance pending the drawing up of a milder substitute.

Two firemen were killed last month by a broken radio wire, which had fallen across a high tension electric wire, and the city authorities decided on restrictions to guard against such accidents in the future. Radio enthusiasts organized a campaign against what they denounced as infringement of their rights, and their projects became loud enough to reach the ears of the incoming regime. A hearing was held yesterday, and today the commission decided to rely upon less stringent means to meet the situation.

SMALLPOX ON ZACAPA.

103 Tourists Vaccinated and Detained When a Case Is Discovered.

The discovery of a case of smallpox among the first-class passengers on the United Fruit steamer Zacapa yesterday morning when she arrived in Quarantine from Central America and the West Indies was the cause of 103 American tourists being vaccinated and detained on the ship.

According to Quarantine officials, the Zacapa will not land her passengers at East Fifteenth Street until this afternoon after the vessel has been thoroughly disinfected.

Eight passengers who were berthed in the same section as the patient were sent to Hoffman Island for observation and the patient was sent to the Hospital for Contagious Diseases, at Swinburne Island.

Reduce Rediscount Rate.

CLEVELAND, May 27.—Easier money tendencies prevailing in the Fourth District caused directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland to reduce the rediscount rate from 4½ to 4 per cent., effective June 2. This is the first reduction here since Feb. 14, 1922, and is a reflection of the action taken by the New York bank about four weeks ago. Slackening business throughout the district, which has decreased the demand for commercial funds, is given as the reason for the cut in rate.

SEEK 3 MEN, WOMAN, AS FRANKS SLAYERS

mortgage on the Mitchell home was due on the day of the kidnaping. The records show that Mitchell and his wife jointly gave a promissory note for the amount in September, 1922. Some of the theorists recalled the coincidence that the ransom demanded of Franks's father was $10,000.

Rewards offered for apprehension of the slayers in what is admitted to be Chicago's most baffling murder mystery in years reached $16,000 today when Chief Collins offered $1,000 in the name of the Police Department.

A man known as George Johnson, the name being that signed to the letter demanding $10,000 ransom and on the card attached to the mysterious wreath sent to the Franks's home on the day of the boy's funeral, was arrested today while driving a gray automobile.

A car of this color was seen standing near the Harvard School at various times prior to the kidnapping. The prisoner's real name is Adolph Paprits.

"I expected it. Everybody with a gray car is being taken in," he said. He denied knowing anything of the kidnapping and said that on the afternoon that it occurred he was motoring with a young woman.

In a search for the clothes of the Franks boy a sewer near the home of Mitchell was dredged this afternoon.

Gertrude Barker, the girl of 16, whose disappearance had been linked with the kidnapping, was found last night. Preferring work to school, she had become housekeeper in an apartment. She said she sought adventure. She was put in the Juvenile Home until her mother should arrive from Yakima, Wash. Bert H. Jeffery, a stable keeper, in whose apartment she was discovered, was held.

FREAR CRITICIZES A TIMES EDITORIAL

BUT ADMITS SAYING 'RESIGN'

Representative Pays Tribute to the Correctness of The Times's News Reports.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—During a speech in the House today on the question of "party regularity," Representative Frear, progressive Republican of Wisconsin, took occasion to criticise references to his speech on the tax and bonus bills contained in an editorial in today's NEW YORK TIMES, bearing the caption "Congress in Excelsis."

The editorial quoted Mr. Frear as saying that Secretary Mellon had been discredited by the passage of the bonus bill and the amended tax plan, and that if he was not in sympathy with these measures Mr. Mellon should resign. Mr. Frear asserting that THE TIMES editorial writer had distorted his remarks, denounced editorial writers generally and eulogized reporters.

Mr. Frear spoke as follows:

"I shall digress for a moment from what I have to say to refer to an editorial in this morning's NEW YORK TIMES which pays special attention to a remark which I made upon the floor of the House yesterday, but distorts, as is generally done in the editorial columns.

"I asked a representative of THE NEW YORK TIMES to be in the gallery at this time, because I wish to pay a compliment to the reporters of the various newspapers who do present the facts in the same news column, correctly. It takes an editorial writer, however, to exercise the imagination of a Munchausen, and these gentlemen deliberately lie, because they distort the language as it appears in the newspaper columns, and I shall expect every member of the House to bear me out in the proposition when I quote from this leading editorial.

"I was referring, while speaking, to Mr. Mellon, and THE NEW YORK TIMES in its editorial columns quotes me as follows:

"'That is the spirit in which Congress boasts that it can run itself.'

"THE NEW YORK TIMES, as do all of the big business papers, idolizes Secretary Mellon, whom we discredited when he opposed the bonus and told us that we could not pass it, and when he opposed any tax bill except the Mellon proposition, and said that we could have nothing else.

"I said that he ought to resign from his position as Secretary of the Treasury unless he was in sympathy with the Bonus bill and the Tax bill as we had passed them. That, I insist, is a fair statement. He ought not to administer a law unless he can do it fairly. That is what I said, and I repeat it.

"I voted with 376 members of the House yesterday in opposition to the position of the Secretary of the Treasury. We put over a bill, as did the Senate, which the President must either sign or veto, and if he vetoes it we will show the sentiment of the country by passing it over his veto."

"I noticed last night The Washington Times stated that the gentleman demanded that the President should sign," interrupted Representative Snyder of New York. "I am sure that the gentleman did not say that."

Mr. Frear replied:

"Oh, no. Of course that appeared in that newspaper, but I know that any one of clear understanding or any member of the House would know that I said nothing of the kind. I said that the President could veto it or not. I did say that the financial official of the Government should resign if he could not administer this law in sympathy with it, as we expect him to do.

"Just one word further. THE NEW YORK TIMES, which is one of the best newspapers in the country, in its editorial policy is reactionary, as we all know. It is unjust, it is unfair, it is subservient to big business and it does not see straight. It is unfortunate, simply because of the class of men it has to do its editorial writing. They see little things.

"In an election in the City of New York, with all the newspapers against him, a gentleman was elected Mayor, and that shows the influence of these papers with the public. If they would get in touch with human nature and understand the ordinary people, instead of being always bowing to wealth, I think they would gain very much for their editorial policies. As I said before, I compliment the men in the gallery here who do give the news correctly, which appears in THE NEW YORK TIMES correctly."

Following his reference to THE TIMES editorial, Mr. Freer predicted that the next Congress would see substantial additions to the ranks of Progressive Independent Republicans. He added:

"Whether they agree with my conclusions or legislative judgment when they take their places here is not important, but it is vitally important that they do think and refuse to accept orders from those who blindly lead the blind."

POWDER BLAST KILLS TWO.

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., May 27.—One woman and one man were killed when the powder house of the Mount Holly Fireworks Company, in which they were working, was completely destroyed by an explosion this afternoon.

The dead are Gus Biagi, 40, a partner in the firm, and Mrs. Mary Corratto, 35, wife of the other partner. The two were working alone in the sheet iron building mixing powder when the explosion came. The woman was blown 200 feet and the man about 20 feet. The three other buildings occupied by the company were not seriously damaged. There were no workers in them. Corratto, the remaining partner, was out of town today. Both families have several children.

Frederick S. Minott, former President of the Goodyear Rubber Insulating Company, testified yesterday before Justice Burr and a jury in defense of the suit for $100,000 damages for alleged breach of promise brought against him by Miss Belle Levy, his former stenographer.

Mr. Minott said that he had never been in love with or proposed marriage to Miss Levy and that he did not recall any of the "vagaries" from which witnesses had testified he suffered while "temporarily demented." He said he had no recollection of ever having imagined himself the Admiral of a Pacific fleet or of contemplating the purchase of a battleship. He added that he was sure he had not made love to Miss Levy as he felt confident that had he done so he would have remembered it. The trial will continue today.

Another Alcohol Victim.

Bellevue Hospital reported another death from alcoholic poisoning last night when Joseph Hannon, 47 years old, a packer, of 238 West Twenty-first Street, died in the psychopathic ward. Hannon applied for treatment at the hospital on May 4, explaining that he had been drinking. The medical examiner has requested all hospitals to report deaths from alcoholic poisoning, so that the authorities may investigate the exact kind of liquor that caused death.

ASSEMBLY AWAITS FOSDICK DECISION

EACH SIDE HAS ITS LAWYERS

Special to The New York Times.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 27.—The permanent Judicial Commission of the Presbyterian General Assembly failed this afternoon to report its decision on the Fosdick case and the Philadelphia overture.

The big Fountain Street Baptist Church, where the assembly is in session, was crowded to the last seat with commissioners and visitors, waiting to hear the reports, but at 4 o'clock the Rev. Dr. Clarence Edward Macartney of Philadelphia, the Moderator, announced that the Judicial Commission would not be able to report today. This body had been reviewing the cases for several days behind closed doors. It is like a grand jury. No one can attend its sessions who is not called, and all who do are pledged to secrecy.

The Philadelphia overture, which was sent here by the Presbytery of Philadelphia, recommends that every officer and director of the church boards and other agencies and every professor and director of the theological seminaries shall be reqired to affirm or reaffirm his faith in what are known as "the five points," namely, the inerrancy of the Holy Scriptures, the Virgin birth, the sacrificial death of Christ on the cross, the bodily resurrection of Christ and the miracles.

The Permanent Judicial Commission has disposed of all lesser cases which were appealed. It is understood to have been in session until midnight last night, and there is a report that it may remain in session all night tonight. The Assembly is expected to adjourn tomorrow night if the two cases can be disposed of.

It is known that the leaders among the Modernists, especially the eight ministerial and eight lay delegates from the Presbytery of New York, have agreed on a definite strategy by which they will fight from the floor, should a decision be rendered against Dr. Fosdick.

Again all day today witnesses were called before the commission, and they gave testimony some for and some against him. Both sides are allowed to have counsel; but the lawyers must be Presbyterians, and they are not allowed to take any pay. The counsel for the Presbytery of New York is John Foster Dulles, of 49 Wall Street, who is an elder in the Park Avenue Church. He is a nephew of Robert Lansing, ex-Secretary of State. His father is a professor in Auburn Theological Seminary and one of the three theological seminary professors whose orthodoxy was assailed yesterday. The counsel for the New York Fundamentalists is James L. Rankin, of Chester, Pa.

The lawyer for the Philadelphia Presbytery is said to be the Rev. Dr. Gemmill, Stated Clerk of the synod of Pennsylvania. The Philadelphia minority, like that of New York, had to go outside to get a lawyer, because the Philadelphia delegation is composed entirely of Fundamentalists. The Philadelphia Modernists' side is being argued by Kenneth Lanning of Trenton, N. J.

Among the New York Fundamentalists who have testified before the commission are the Rev. Dr. Walter D. Buchanan of the Broadway Church, the Rev. Dr. Albert Dale Gantz of the Williamsbridge Church, the Rev. Dr. John McNeill of the Fort Washington Church, the Rev. Dr. James Palmer of the Biblical Seminary, the Rev. Dr. George E. Schibrede, until recently of Immanuel Church, a branch of the First Church.

Those who officially have defended the New York Presbytery are the Rev. Dr. William P. Merrill, pastor of the Brick Church; George B. Agnew, former State Senator, an elder in the Fifth Avenue Church, and Alfred E. Marling, an elder in the Brick Church. Mr. Agnew and Mr. Marling were the two laymen on the committee of the Presbytery which drew up the Fosdick report. There were also three ministers on the committee.

It was said tonight that the Assembly was not going home until "some stringent action" had been taken to stop unorthodox preaching in Presbyterian pulpits.

"The issue is far greater than just Dr. Fosdick," said one minister, "and this Assembly has already proved itself to have in it a majority of Fundamentalists."

The Chairman of the Judicial Commission is the Rev. Dr. Edgar Harless of Fort George, Iowa. On it are some of the most eminent lawyers in the denomination.

The committee on bills and overtures appeared before the Assembly this afternoon with a majority and a minority report on an overture handed up by the Presbytery of Northumberland, which was aimed at Dr. Fosdick and the First Church of New York City.

The minority report said "ministers of other denominations in correspondence with this General Assembly may be employed as occasional supplies, but shall not be employed as regular preachers."

The majority report added the following qualifying clause, "except in special cases, of which Presbyteries shall be the judges, and in such special cases they shall be required to acknowledge before Presbytery their unqualified assent to the standards of the Church."

The Rev. Dr. Maitland Alexander of Pittsburgh, Chairman of the committee, presented the minority report. This had nine signatures, one of which was that of William Jennings Bryan, Vice Moderator of the Assembly. The committee has twenty-one members.

Dr. Alexander said the committee had disagreed, as the Fundamentalists wanted added the further clause, "as interpreted by the General Assembly," which would include "the five points." The Fundamentalists feared that what would satisfy some Presbyteries would not satisfy others.

Just as the matter was thrown open for debate the Rev. Dr. Mark A. Matthews of Seattle jumped up and moved both the majority and minority reports be tabled. This motion was seconded and passed, while most of the commissioners were holding their breath. Mr. Bryan was on the platform, waiting to get the floor.

Dr. Matthews said he made this move inasmuch as the reports dealt with an issue that was already before the Permanent Judicial Commission, and a discussion of the subjects would be likely to "prejudice the case before a decision was rendered."

On recommendation of the Committee on Theological Seminaries the Assembly adopted a resolution which was the result of the attack yesterday upon the orthodoxy of Professor James H. Snowden of the Western Theological Seminary, Pittsburgh, and Professors Allen Macy and John Baillie of Auburn Theological Seminary, Auburn, N. Y. It directs that the theological seminaries under its charge and reporting to it be examined to see to it that the teaching and publications of their professors shall be in full accordance with the system of doctrine contained in the Confession of Faith, and be directed to the exposition and defense of the Holy Scriptures and not destructive of faith in them as the Word of God and as the rule of faith and practice for the ministers and members of our churches."

"General Assembly in session at Grand Rapids, embracing many greatly blessed by your ministry sends you love and sympathy in your illness and earnestly prays for your speedy and complete recovery and increased usefulness in your ministry."

The Assembly instructed its clerk to send a telegram to President Coolidge and to the Speaker of the House, stating that it "earnestly requests the enactment" of Senate bill No. 966, known as the San Carlos irrigation project in Arizona, which is now before the House, "as a measure of justice to the Pimah Indians."

The Assembly endorsed the Capper Hull bill which asks that the number of army chaplains be increased, and urged that the Military Committee of the Senate and House of Representatives speedily and favorably report it to their respective bodies.

The Rev. Dr. Thornton Whaling, Moderator of the Southern Presbyterian Church, delivered an address today. Dr. Whaling, who is a professor in the Kentucky Theological Seminary, Louisville, said that the Assembly of the Southern Church from which he had just come had voted to continue its share of the support of union educational institutions in the foreign field "upon the condition that there was taught historical evangelical Christianity." Both he and Dr. Macartney, who responded for the Northern Church, expressed hope of a reunion of the two churches.

GEN. DAVIS ASSUMES DIRECTION OF BONUS

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Major Gen. Robert C. Davis, Adjutant General of the Army, has taken charge of the new adjusted compensation branch of the Adjutant General's Department. He has established an office at Sixth and B Streets, where he will keep office hours in performing this duty in addition to his work as Adjutant General.

The records and activities of the World War division of the Adjutant General's office have been incorporated in the new branch. Three officers and 215 clerks, who handled a daily average business of about 2,000 communications, have been transferred to the adjusted compensation branch. Seven officers and 2,517 clerks remain to be added to the force which will be required to administer the bonus.

Major Gen. Robert C. Davis, the Adjutant General; Major John N. Smith Jr., Major Michael J. O'Brien, Major Harry Cooper, Assistant Adjutant General; Major F. Granville Munson, Judge Advocate; Captain David A. Watt and Captain Eugene M. Landrum, Assistant Adjutant General; Captain Kenneth B. Bush Infantry, and Captain Harold A. Barnes, Quartermaster Corps.

Penalties Provided for Failure to Obey Commerce Board Orders.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Penalties in the form of fine and imprisonment are applied to the officials of railroad companies which continue to evade orders of the Interstate Commerce Commission requiring all common carriers to equip their lines with train control or life saving devices, in a bill introduced in the House today by Representative Snyder of New York.

The bill is intended to supplement Section 26 of the Interstate Commerce act dealing with the safety equipment of railroads. It provides for the enforcement of the commission's orders in the matter of train control and safety devices and fixes a penalty of $1,000 for each day that any common carrier refuses or neglects to comply with an order of this character issued by the commission.

The bill further provides that any person vested with authority by action of the directors or President of a railroad to comply with safety appliance orders shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned for not more than five years if an accident involving the loss of human life occurs.

And even if you have no particular gift in mind, a visit to Flint & Horner's will suggest something appropriate and inexpensive.

An ideal simple gift is a rush seat Windsor chair. It costs $13.50.

A quaint little Martha Washington sewing table is sure to strike the correct note of domestic usefulness. It comes in solid mahogany and costs $28.50.

The Governor Winthropdesk is a worthy helper for a newly made home. It is very practical and very reasonably priced. In solid mahogany, $87.

FOUR BRADY HEIRS TO GET $3,000,000

DAUGHTERS ARE BENEFITED

Money in Question Is in Stock Dividends, About Whose Allocation Question Was Raised.

ALBANY, May 27.—Four heirs of Anthony N. Brady will receive about $3,000,000, according to a ruling made today by Surrogate George Lawyer, who determined that the amount in question was income and not principal of the trusts created by the will of Mr. Brady. The heirs to be benefited are Mrs. Francis P. Garvan, Mrs. Caryl Tucker, Mrs. Margaret Ruth Farrell and Miss Marcia Ann Gavit.

The question of what was income and what principal was submitted to the Surrogate three weeks ago in accordance with an agreement between the parties which ended the litigation over the $75,000,000 estate of Mr. Brady. Under the law "income" is allocated to Mrs. Garvan, Mrs. Tucker, Mrs. Farrell and Miss Gavit as the beneficiaries of the four trusts created by Mr. Brady. What is "principal" is incorporated as part of the trust and will go eventually to the heirs of the four beneficiaries.

"The accountants of the respective parties have agreed on the facts as the capital valuation of stocks," Surrogate Lawyer wrote in his decision, "the extent to which the dividends impaired or decreased the capital valuation and the apportionment of those dividends to capital and income accounts.

"The computation or apportionment has been made under the rule laid down by the Court of Appeals in the matter of Osborne 209, N. Y., 450. Two questions are submitted to the Court for decision:

"First, the date for the valuation of stocks as capital, whether the date of death of the testator, or the date of the formal allocation of the trusts.

"Anthony N. Brady died July 22, 1913, leaving a last will and testament, which was probated in the Surrogate's Court of Albany county, Aug. 12, 1913, the trusts were not set up until Jan. 1, 1915.

"By his will, the testator divided his estate into six parts. One part he gave to his son, Nicholas F., one part to his son, James C., and the remaining four parts were given to his executors and trustees in trust to collect and receive the rents, income and profits thereof and, after paying all necessary expenses, to pay over the same to his four daughters during their lives.

"The will speaks from the testator's death, and the language thereof must be given force and effect in order to determine the intent of the testator. Matter of Megrue, 244 N. Y., 284.

"Unless a contrary intent is expressed in the will, the trusts must be considered as set up at the date of the death of the testator. Nothing contained in the will indicates that the trusts were to be set up at a subsequent period.

"The second question submitted relates to the present effect of the rule laid down in the matter of Osborne.

"This rule, although distinguished in U. S. Trust Co. against Heye (224 N. Y., 242), has not been changed or modified, but has been recognised and followed in all subsequent cases in New York State where a similar issue was involved.

"On behalf of the accounting trustees it is suggested that the rule in the Osborne case has been overruled by recent decisions of the United States Supreme Court in Towne against Eisner (245 U. S., 418) and Eisner against Maccomber (252 U. S., 190).

"The questions involved in each of the cases last cited related to the allocation of stock dividends to income or capital, or to both, under the Federal Income Tax law, and as to those questions the decisions are controlling. But a Federal court cannot render a decision which will control in the determination of what is income and what is capital under a rule established by a State court of final authority in a case within that court's jurisdiction.

"It therefore follows that the dividends are to be apportioned between the trustees and the life beneficiaries, based upon the date of the testator's death for the capital of trust, and the shares of stock so divided."

Attorneys for Mrs. Tucker and Mrs. Garvin pointed out that by the Surrogate's decision the stock dividends, which otherwise would have been considered "principal" and held beyond the reach of their clients for the benefit of their heirs, were now available to their clients.

The dividends were received from the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Coal Company, the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, the Utica Gas and Electric Company, the United States Rubber Company, the J. B. Young Company and the British-American Tobacco Company, Limited.

QUAKERS DISCUSS DRY LAW.

Matters pertaining to prohibition laws and their enforcement were among the chief topics discussed at the first session of the 229th New York Yearly Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends, at the meeting house in Gramercy Square, yesterday afternoon. Orthodox Quakers in attendance asked that a communication be sent to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler denouncing his views on prohibition, and another to Commissioner Enright in praise of the recent action taken in closing Broadway cabarets.

Sixty representatives from all parts of this State and Vermont told of the various questions that arose in their individual localities. The necessity for an increase in facilities for providing church education for children was emphasized, for long waiting lists are now necessary in many of the churches.

The meetings today will be held jointly with the Hicksite branch of the society, at their meeting house in East Fifteenth Street. They are uniting in celebration of the tercentenary anniversary of the birth of George Fox, founder of the Church. An open meeting will be held tonight at the Town Hall.

VIOLIN COLLECTION SOLD.

Violins, violas and violoncellos, the collection of Professor Augusto Molini of Padua, Italy, sold yesterday at the Anderson Galleries for $4,570. There were sixty-seven instruments and two bows, and the highest price paid was for a bow, instead of a violin. The bow was by Tourte, Paris, 1800, and it went for $275 on "order."

Miss Helen Peck paid $175 for No. 25 of the catalogue, a violin by Giovanni Battista Ruggieri of Cremona, 1673. It was bought from Signor Dondi Orologio of Padua in 1900. I. Rohon paid $190 for No. 22, a violin, Francesca Ruggieri, 1681, varnish, yellow-gold, bought from Signor Scampella, of Mantua, 1900. J. H. Edler secured No. 6, a violin, Antonius Stradivarius, Cremone, 1711, varnish, yellow-orange, bought from Professor Gualdi, Bologna, 1915. No. 58, a violin of the French school, 1700, was bought by Paul Glasel for $120, and No. 65, a violoncello, was bought for $190 by B. E. Barzelay. The latter is an Antonius Stradivarius, 1701, varnish, yellow-orange, bought from Signor Monterumici of Bologna in 1912.

Coolidge Signs Diplomacy Bill.

MUNICIPAL COURT REFORMS PROPOSED

ANNUAL REPORT IS SOUGHT

The Municipal Court is defended in a report made public yesterday by the Committee on General Welfare of the Board of Municipal Court Justices, of which Edgar J. Lauer is Chairman. The report deals specifically with the adverse report of the Municipal Court Commission and makes several recommendations designed to obviate numerous evils.

Perhaps the chief recommendation is one for the establishment of a central jury part in each of the boroughs of Manhattan, Bronx and Brooklyn for the trial of all jury causes.

"Your committee is firmly convinced that it would aid materially in clearing up any congestion of the jury calendars," says the report, "if the establishment of central jury parts in these boroughs could be made effective."

Figures are given to show that in Manhattan parts of the court actually supplied 2,095 court days of jury trails. If all such causes were removed to a central jury part with six or eight established parts and properly docketed "we believe," says the report, "that the cases in which jury trials are demanded could shortly be disposed of and the calendars brought up to date. * * * The jury calendars in the Bronx are considerably congested and it takes, under ordinary conditions, a considerable length of time to have jury cases disposed of. In a central part this congestion could be taken care of by a concentration of Judges and, if necessary, the assistance of Justices from other boroughs."

The report of the Municipal Court Commission, taken as a whole, is termed "unfair." The figures of 33 1-3 per cent. and 37 per cent. of reversals and modifications on appeal, while perhaps correct, are not excessive, says this report, and the contention in the Commission report that there is only slightly more than a 50 per cent. chance of getting a correct determination in a contested case upon first trial is not justified.

Among the recommendations are, that the President of the Board of Municipal Court Justices render an annual report on March 1, containing a summary of the work done in his court; that each Justice make a monthly report of the work done in his court and the time spent thereat; that the clerk of each court make a similar report so that it may be determined whether extra help is needed, increased pay justified and promotions warranted; that a record be kept in the office of the President of the board of all reversals, modifications and affirmations on appeal; that "no justice of the court shall hold any office in any political party organization or political party association; that all city marshals keep records, to be approved by the President of the board, of official acts performed, fees collected and expenses incurred; that each Justice in Part I. ascertain at the beginning of the term the number of cases on the day calendar and if he deems it improbable that such cases can be disposed of, he shall notify the President of the board, so that other Justices may be assigned to help clear up the congestion.

14 TAKE WAR GAS CURE.

Experiment at Opening of Clinic Said to Have Been Satisfactory.

Fourteen individuals, including several Health Department physicians, Health Commissioner Frank J. Monaghan, and newspaper reporters and photographers were the subjects of the first chlorine gas cure treatment given at the opening yesterday of the clinic for the study of certain respiratory diseases by chlorine gas, at 345 East 116th Street. They were locked for an hour in a room containing 60,000 cubic feet of air into which one ounce of chlorine gas was injected.

The experiment, directed by Dr. Louis I. Harris, director of the Bureau of preventable diseases, was satisfactory in its result, according to Dr. Harris, who will have charge of the clinic. Those who took the cure will be treated again. The treatment, which is free, will be given daily from 2 to 5 P. M. to anyone suffering from a cold.

An additional clinic for chlorine gas treatment will be opened at the Chelsea Clinic, 303 West Thirty-third Street, tomorrow at 2 P. M. by order of Commissioner Monaghan.

ABBY ROCKEFELLER INQUIRY

Hirshfield to Question "That Red-Headed Clerk" of Court on Case.

David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts, will hold a hearing tomorrow morning in the investigation ordered by Mayor Hylan to determine why Abby Rockefeller, twenty-one-year-old daughter of John D. Rockefeller Jr. was able to get suspended sentences twice after pleading guilty to speeding.

At the beginning of his hearing in the Rabiner parole case yesterday, Commissioner Hirshfield announced the date for the Rockefeller hearing, and instructed Deputy Commissioner James McGinley to subpoena everybody in the Traffic Court except Magistrate Norman J. Marsh, whom the Commissioner has no power to investigate.

"I particularly want you to get that red-headed clerk from the Traffic Court down there," said Commissioner Hirshfield. "I don't know what his name is, but I want him here.

4 CAVE-IN VICTIMS BURIED.

Two Thousand School Children in the Funeral Cortege.

While engineers of the Building Department were investigating the cause of the cave-in last Saturday at 123 West Forty-sixth Street the bodies of the four victims were buried yesterday from St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Church, West End Avenue and Sixty-ninth Street.

Two thousand school children carrying Italian and American flags, two bands, 150 coaches and a squad of mounted police accompanied the hearses for a short distance. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

The men were Antonio Baccarossi of 310 West Sixty-ninth Street, Severino Colarossi of the same address, Giuseppi Brigila of 327 West Sixty-ninth Street and James Purcelli of 325 West Sixty-ninth Street.

STUDENTS IN TRAFFIC COURT

All vehicles entering or leaving the Borough of Manhattan today will be counted by 200 students from the College of the City of New York, acting as traffic observers, stationed at the twenty-eight points of entry. Observations will be made from 7 A. M. to 7 P. M. by two shifts of workers.

Borough President Miller, under whose direction the count is being made, said: "These local traffic counts have been of considerable aid in planning street improvements for traffic relief. It is expected that this count, which will be accurate and complete, will furnish data for use in staking future work on street improvements which I have planned for relieving traffic congestion."

WOMAN HAD LETTER, MRS. HARRIS SWEARS

COMPLAINS OF PROSECUTOR

Asks That Mr. Alexander Desist From Gestures Which Annoyed Her.

Mrs. Eleanor Elaine Lee Harris took the stand yesterday before Magistrate Charles A. Oberwager in Women's Court and swore that she received from a Mrs. Holland a letter purporting to have been written by her husband, Beverly D. Harris, a banker, in which she was exonerated of wrongdoing. Because of the letter, Harris had her arrested on a charge of forgery in the second degree.

"On April 11, while I was living at the Hotel McAlpin, I received a telephone call from a mysterious sounding woman," testified Mrs. Harris. "This woman said to me: 'I am very much interested in your case. I have read about it consistently in the newspapers. My name is Mrs. Holland. I have some letters in my possession that would show you to be perfectly innocent of any wrongdoing. I am an old friend of Beverly.'"

Mrs. Harris said she asked Mrs. Holland to come to the McAlpin, but her informant declined, saying: 'I can't do that, but I'll meet you at McCreery's.'

"But how will I know you?" Mrs. Harris testified she replied.

Mrs. Harris said that when she met the woman a few days later in the department store she recognized Mrs. Holland as a woman who had attended the annulment trial a number of times.

"Mrs. Holland showed me a number of letters," Mrs. Harris continued, 'one of them was the letter which caused the forgery complaint. I asked her if she would testify for me, but she said she couldn't. I then asked her for the letter, but she said I would have to buy it.

"I arranged to meet Mrs. Holland at the Bretton Hall. We had a number of meetings and dickered over the letters. I told her that if she would permit me to show the letter in this case to my lawyers, Max D. Steuer and Alexander Hussey, I would purchase it. She consented. At the time I did not realize the value of the letter, as evidence of that kind had been ruled out at the trial. I told Mrs. Holland I would have to submit the letter to a handwriting expert to find out whether it was genuine. I showed it to my lawyers and to Lewis, the handwriting expert. Lewis said it was in Harris's writing. My attorneys told me the letter was very important."

During her testimony Mrs. Harris interrupted herself to ask that Assistant District Attorney Henry Alexander desist from gestures which annoyed her.

Harris admitted that he did not write the letter. Asked whether he believed his wife forged the letter, he replied he did not think her capable "of executing such a clever forgery." He added, "I don't think she did it. I think she had it done." Mrs. Harris laughed.

The hearing will be resumed at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Nassau Investigators Look Into the Purchase of a School Site.

MINEOLA, L. I., May 27.—The purchase of a school site at Long Beach and the payment of $7,000 in checks by that city in December, 1923, to Louis Goldstein, Assistant District Attorney of Kings County, have become the subject of inquiry in the investigation of Nassau County affairs, it was learned today.

Louis S. Weiss, Deputy Attorney General, is trying to learn whether Goldstein was the owner of the land and to find out all the circumstances of the transaction. Goldstein appeared before the Extraordinary Grand Jury recently, but the investigators refused today to say whether he had been questioned about the school site.

Goldstein figured in the transaction which caused the indictment of Charles C. Clark, Corporation Counsel for Long Beach, on the charge of accepting an illegal fee in addition to his salary for legal services to the city in condemning property of the Long Beach Water Company. Goldstein and another lawyer who assisted Clark received fees for doing so and the other attorney is alleged to have turned over part of his fee to Clark.

Deputy Attorney General Kenneth M. Spence questioned Charles D. Lucas, employed in the office of the City Engineer of Long Beach, about certificates filed by George S. Vanderwerken, City Engineer, for various construction jobs. Vanderwerken is already under indictment on the charge of filing a false certificate in connection with a Long Beach bond issue.

TIGER LIKES WALTZ MUSIC.

Baboon Enjoys Jazz, While Elephant Thrills Over Trombone.

LOS ANGELES, May 27.—Playing a waltz puts a tiger to sleep; lions come nearest to laughing when they listen to a saxophone, and baboons are almost human in their weakness for jazz, psychologists and students from several Southern California universities and colleges have deduced. They invaded a motion picture zoo here with an orchestra and carried on numerous experiments to obtain accurate data on the reaction certain types of music might be expected to produce in various animals.

While professors and students took notes the musicians ran the gamut from lullabies to jazz tempests. Inside the cages the following results were observed:

Jazz numbers angered the tigers. The baboons danced to a tune built up on a once prevalent scarcity of bananas. The brown bear went into a tantrum when confronted with a moaning saxophone. An elephant ignored the orchestra ensemble, shied at the bass viol, trumpeted at the roll of a drum but appeared immensely pleased with the trombone. The mountain lions were not much interested.

Mary, the ape, smoked cigarettes through the whole two-hour performance.

Confirms Hearing South American Radio.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 27.—The reported reception by South American radio amateurs of signals from station IAC, operated by Louis L. Perkins of Brookline, Mass., is regarded as authentic, according to a statement issued today by the headquarters of the American Radio Relay League here. This is believed to be the only successful test between the two continents since the Pan-American tests started. F. C. Schnell, traffic manager of the league, says signals of South American stations are being sent to the United States and Canada, but severe atmospheric conditions prevent their reception.

Mr. Patch writes that Kellogg's Bran "solved his problem." It has solved the problem of constipation—mild and chronic—for thousands of others. It has brought relief when all else has failed because Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective. Read Mr. Patch's letter:

Dear Sirs:
I have been a constant sufferer from constipation and have wondered what was the cause of it. I have tried about all the cereals I could think of, and finally tried Kellogg's Bran. This solved my problem. I feel 100 per cent better and I owe it to your Bran. Thanking you very kindly for this great cereal, I am,
Very respectfully,
Chester C. Patch,
961 Main St., Greenwood, Mass.

For the permanent relief of constipation, eat Kellogg's Bran regularly—two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. It sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestines. It rids them of the dangerous poisons that lead to other diseases. It is guaranteed to bring results, or your grocer will return your money.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and crumbled, is delicious with milk or cream. You will like its nut-like flavor—so different from ordinary, tasteless brans. Sprinkle it over the cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Eat it in Kellogg's Bran muffins, griddle cakes and many other wonderful recipes given on the package.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and crumbled, is made in Battle Creek and is served by the leading hotels and cafes everywhere. It is sold by all grocers.

FRIEND IDENTIFIES WOMAN IN SHOOTING

TO GO BEFORE GRAND JURY

"Dorothy Brown," the young woman held in the death of Samuel Brown, a garage owner, who was found dying from a pistol wound in a room in the Broadway Central Hotel last Sunday morning, was identified yesterday as Dorothy Sautman, a former show girl, who came here from Toronto four years ago. She admitted her identity after a friend, Ruth Weinberg of 21 East Eighth Street, had identified her and told some of the incidents of the relationship between Brown and Miss Sautman.

Although the charge of homicide against the prisoner was continued, Assistant District Attorney Morgan A. Jones said that he was "almost convinced," from information given by Miss Weinberg and from other evidence, that Brown had shot himself. Brown, married and the father of five children, told the police in an ante-mortem statement that the girl had shot him. His companion replied, "Well, if I did, it was accidental."

The Homicide Court was crowded with women curiosity seekers when Miss Sautman was arraigned before Magistrate House. She was sent back to Jefferson Market Prison, after a formal plea of not guilty, to await the action of the Grand Jury. At her own request, Miss Sautman will testify before that body, probably Friday. Her parents, living in Toronto, are expected here before that time.

Miss Sautman held a large bandana handkerchief to her face to avoid being photographed. Otherwise she was entirely composed.

"Dorothy and I were friends in Toronto," Miss Weinberg told Assistant Prosecutor Jones. "Four years ago she came to New York. We corresponded. She wrote that she was prospering and urged me to join her. I did. I obtained employment with her in a clothing factory.

"I knew of her friendship with Brown. Two weeks ago I visited them in their room at the hotel. Brown was very drunk. He had two pistols, one in his pocket and one in the dresser. He pulled out the one in his pocket and placed it against his stomach. He said to me, 'What would you do if I shot myself?' We became nervous and got him to put the gun away.

"Dorothy's father is a capmaker and she has relatives living in Howard Avenue, Brooklyn. She used to work in the Hotel Woodstock and in the Hotel Cumberland. She had a furnished room in Greenwich Village and met Brown in a dancing place there. She is not married. She sometimes used the name of Simpson."

The police said that Miss Sautman formerly was a show girl in Chicago, playing under the name of Dorothy Brown. Two young women met her as she was being led from the Homicide Court to the prison van. They said they were "Jackie" Burke and "Jerry" Richards, show girls. For the first time since her arrest, Miss Sautman broke down and wept when she saw them. Her friends wanted to accompany her in the motor van, but were refused permission.

At the Woodstock and the Cumberland the managers denied the prisoner had been employed at those hotels.

FRITZ KREISLER SAILS.

Says Test of Music Is the Thrill That It Gives.

Fritz Kreisler, the noted violinist, sailed yesterday with his wife on the United American liner Reliance for Hamburg to spend the Summer in the Austrian Tyrol. In speaking of music Mr. Kreisler said that the only and final test of any composition in music, or playing by an artist, is whether or not it gives one "a thrill up and down the spine."

"That is the last word," he said. "It is the primitive registering of impressions; and when I get such a thrill I know what I am listening to or playing is all right. Often I sit listening to some new composition, trying with all my might to grasp the genius of the thing, but if I do not get the thrill along the spine, I know there is something wrong; and it is not with me but with the composition. Others find they get the same reaction." Mrs. Kreisler was in mourning for her father who died a month ago.

WHITE PLAINS, May 27.—Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins today set $1,000 as the value of each of two teeth extracted by mistake from the jaw of seven-year-old Adolf G. Bansener of Mount Vernon.

The youth's mother brought suit on his behalf against Dr. Louis B. Lutler, a Manhattan dentist, alleging that a year ago he pulled two permanent teeth instead of the baby teeth, as directed.

"I suppose you would like to have all your teeth pulled at that price," the Justice remarked to the boy just after he had awarded $2,000.

Herman Mansbarth, 20 years old of 479 South Street, Jamaica, arrested a week ago at Elmhurst as his pal, Harold Guintsel of 239 East Eighty-ninth Street, Manhattan, was shot dead in holding up Deitis Hansen of 101 Maurice Avenue, was indicted yesterday by the Queens Grand Jury for robbery in the first degree, grand larceny in the first degree and assault in the second degree.

The indictment charges that in addition to waylaying Hansen, Mansbarth held up Louis J. Levithan of 38 Justice Avenue, Elmhurst, and Walter C. Renkwits of 83 East Polk Avenue.

Tie-Up on Brooklyn Bridge.

A broken feed wire tied up trolley traffic on the Brooklyn Bridge last night for more than a half hour. The wire snapped near the Brooklyn anchorage on the north roadway and the Manhattan-bound passengers in trolley cars were forced to walk the structure to Park Row. The passengers bound for Brooklyn were given transfers to the elevated trains on the Manhattan side, transferring to Brooklyn trolley cars on the Brooklyn side of the bridge.

Optometrists' Convention Ends.

The New York State Optometric Society ended its three-day convention last night with a dinner at the Waldorf in celebration of its twenty-ninth anniversary. The officers elected to serve in the ensuing year are Dr. Leo M. Mayer, President; Dr. Herbert C. Watts, Vice President; Dr. Walter R. Prouty, Secretary, and Dr. Stephen Preston Jr., Treasurer.

It won't cover him!

You can't blanket the United States with a magazine or a few magazines. This is particularly true of the South. Many advertisers do not realize that a great group of all-American people, comprising some 20,000,000, cannot be covered with a magazine having, say, less than 200,000 circulation in ten great states. The way to reach the Southern people is through the Southern newspapers.

The Southern Newspaper Is The Paramount Influence In The South

In the South the people take their newspapers more seriously. They do not read them in the street cars and throw them away. They do not go out on the streets at various hours of the day and buy numerous editions, looking at the comics one time and the market news another time, and throw them in a trash pile. In the South the newspaper is an institution; it goes into the home and is part of the daily lives of the people. A Southern man swears by his newspaper. In the Southern states the advertiser can find the greatest group of all-American people, that is, people of American extraction, people whose ancestors have been in this country for one hundred years or more. With the same ideas, the same social customs and the same institutions, they live alike, vote alike and buy alike. An advertiser ought to take advantage of this fact and reach the great Southern market in the best and most efficient way.

There Is No Business Depression Here

Plan your Fall campaign now. The South is the most prosperous part of the country. Statistics and business figures prove it. While it is agricultural—yet, with mineral resources, lumber and manufacturing interests so diversified—these states report little unemployment and brisk business.

For over a year cotton has sold around 30c a pound or more. This means prosperity and plenty of money in circulation south of the Mason and Dixon Line.

The number of automobiles has doubled in the South for the past two or three years; and the miles of improved roads have increased four or five times.

Enterprising manufacturers are reaping their reward by going after business in the Southern states. Plan an intensified selling and advertising drive in the South. Write Mr. Walter Johnson, Secretary of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association, Chattanooga, Tenn., or to any of the following papers.

HOW TO PROLONG YOUR LIFE

As a man's hair whitens, and his features become furrowed, his back bent and his girth unduly expanded, we say, "He shows the marks of time." Time, however, has nothing to do with such things. "Old age" is not a matter of years. It is a matter of health—of the condition of the body mechanism. Growing old is simply a process of physical deterioration. It may come at any period of life.

Diseases of the heart, blood vessels and kidneys are diseases of this so-called "old age." By that is meant that they are due to physical deterioration. A man of 25 and a man of 75 may die of the same kind of "old age." That is to say, they die because of the same degenerative changes.

Traces of albumin, high blood pressure, and sometimes low blood pressure, and slight thickening of arteries, are signals that suggest the importance of taking preventive measure against the degenerative class of diseases which are now so heavily on the increase and which are responsible for the increasing mortality in the United States at middle life and later.

Many of these diseases are due to persistent, insidious infection by various forms of bacteria. These bacteria find lodgment in diseased gums and tooth sockets, nasal cavities, tonsils and other localities favorable for the development of germ life. From these localities they move out into the circulation and into the tissues like submarines from a base of supply and often attack the vital organs of the body, especially the heart, blood vessels and kidneys.

These diseases do not come out of the clear sky. They are always due to some poison or infection or injury. The earlier we discover such spots of trouble and the quicker we correct them, the longer and happier our life's journey will be.

In reply to the question, "How shall I live to avoid these organic maladies?" the answer is a simple one: Get yourself critically examined at least once every year either by your family physician or by the Life Extension Institute; correct your physical defects and any sources of infection; adjust your diet, exercise, work, rest and play in accordance with your physical condition and cultivate a right mental attitude toward life. Where such preventive measures are taken such diseases can be avoided or at least held in check and controlled for many years.

Since the Life Extension Institute was organized in 1913 over 300,000 men and women have taken its examinations and in this group are included about every type of citizen in the world. The services of the Institute include a thorough examination of the whole body; extensive detailed reports; suggestions as to needed medical treatment; and instructions in all phases of correct personal hygiene, including diet, exercise, work, rest, play and correct living generally.

The Institute renders no treatment, performs no operations, but makes a scientific survey of your life and body and submits a report which, if some form of medical treatment is needed, assists your physician in making the final diagnosis and applying the necessary treatment for the correction of your physical defects.

The Institute offers several different health services to the public either at the Head Office of the Institute or in the subscriber's home town or city. Among these are included a General Health Service costing $10.00 a year and Standard Health Services costing $20.00 and $25.00 a year. The Institute has medical examiners in all leading cities and towns in the United States and Canada. There are separate departments for women and children at the Head Office with both men and women examining physicians in attendance.

If you have never sent in a coupon for complete information and the Institute's free booklets, use the coupon below. If you are interested in any particular phase of hygiene, name it.

RABINER IN PRISON HAD A DEAF KEEPER

TWO DENY HE LEFT ISLAND

Evidence that Jules C. Rabiner might have been able to conduct a brokerage business or speculate in stocks over the telephone from the office in the Administration Hall while he was in the Welfare Island penitentiary from Feb. 9 to April 25 was brought out yesterday at the hearing before David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts, who is investigating Rabiner's parole.

Bernard Joseph Finnegan, a keeper at Welfare Island since 1921, testified that between Feb. 23 and March 11 he was on duty from 4 P. M. to midnight in the office where some of the inmates, including Rabiner, acted as clerks. He admitted he was deaf, and might not have heard all the telephone conversations going in and out of the prison, but denied he ever had knowingly allowed Rabiner or any other prisoner to use the telephone.

Finnegan said it would have been difficult for any inmate to telephone without his knowledge, except at times when he was busy at the rear gate, leading to the yard, which he had to guard when on duty in the office. He said his deafness was such that he could not distinguish what inmates were saying when they were talking among themselves, and that he had finally applied for a transfer from the office because of his ailment.

No Record Now Available.

The keeper said inmates working in the office were allowed to leave the office for meals, and that he wrote down the time they left on slips of paper. When a prisoner returned from his meal, Finnegan said, he destroyed the memorandum. It would have been impossible for an inmate to leave the island without knowing it, however, for, to do so, he would have to pass through the office, according to Finnegan. The keeper said Rabiner had never left the island as far as he knew.

Commissioner Hirshfield pointed out the significance of Finnegan's testimony about the possibility of Rabiner having telephoned from Welfare Island. The Commissioner recalled that a private detective, testifying at a recent hearing, said Rabiner, when supposed to be on Welfare Island, telephoned several times to a certain downtown brokerage house in connection with the business of Harris & Co., 25 Broad Street, where Rabiner had been employed as manager while out on bail awaiting sentence. Further testimony will be taken about the telephone calls.

Maurice J. O'Connor and Philip J. Kearney, keepers at Welfare Island, asserted that Rabiner had never left the penitentiary as far as they knew. O'Connor, a night keeper, said Rabiner remained in the prison office until 10 or 10:30 o'clock at night because of his clerical duties, although most of the inmates were sent to their cells at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

O'Connor said he guarded the front gate of the penitentiary at night and was the only one who had the keys to that gate.

"No man has ever passed me and no one ever will pass me as long as I have that post," he declared.

Day Keeper Is Rebuked.

Kearney, a day keeper, testified that Mrs. Rabiner had visited her husband about six times while he was in the penitentiary. He said he had opened the gate to let her in and out. She went right into the office to see Rabiner, he said, and usually stayed from forty-five to fifty minutes. Her longest visit, he said, was an hour.

Whenever Mrs. Rabiner arrived after 1 o'clock, Kearney said, he had to take her pass to the Warden and get the Warden's approval of the visit.

Kearney incurred a rebuke from Commissioner Hirshfield by saying that in sixteen year's service at Welfare Island he had never seen any special passes issued by the Warden. Commissioner Hirshfield asserted he had seen such passes on his visit to Welfare Island last Thursday and that it was inconceivable that Kearney should not know about them. The Commissioner said he intended to make a report to Mayor Hylan on the testimony of Kearney and other keepers in the Department of Correction.

Commissioner Hirshfield will hold another hearing this morning. The manager of the Hotel Monterey and the proprietor of the Pomerants restaurant have been asked to testify.

"I want to get at the bottom of a report," said the Commissioner, "that Rabiner and his friends had midnight parties at the hotel and restaurant while he was supposed to be sleeping on a six-foot cot at the penitentiary."

MAUGHAN WILL TRY AGAIN.

Army Aviator Seeks to Cross Continent in One Day.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan, Army Air Service speed pilot, will try again next month to fly from Mineola, L. I., to San Francisco between sunrise and sunset.

Official approval of the venture, it is understood, has been granted by Air Service officials, while mechanics and engineers already are at work preparing a new plane for the flight. This machine will be similar to the Curtiss plane used by Lieutenant Maughan in his two previous attempts and will have a 12-cylinder low compression motor capable of propelling it at an average of at least 200 miles an hour.

The distance from New York to San Francisco over the route mapped out for the flight is approximately 3,570 miles. Selecting a time in June when the maximum amount of daylight may be enjoyed, it is believed that at least 18 flying hours can be utilized and Air Service officials here believe that Lieutenant Maughan is certain of success this year.

EXECUTE MEXICAN RAIDERS.

BISBEE, Ariz., May 27.—Seven men, alleged to have participated in the raiding of several Chinese ranches south of Cananea and in burning four railroad bridges of the Southern Pacific de Mexico Railroad, were captured on Friday by forces of General Jesus Aguilar and on Saturday were executed at Cananea, according to word reaching here.

The men were taken to the cemetery near Cananea, given spades and picks and told to dig a shallow pit. After they had finished they were lined up before a firing squad and executed, falling into the grave they had dug.

Mrs. Josef Stulz Sues for Divorce.

CARMEL, May 27.—Through papers filed in Carmel, Putnam County, it was learned today that Mrs. Josephine Hinckley Stulz has brought action for a divorce from her husband, Josef Stulz, now said to be in Baden, Germany. The plaintiff is the daughter of J. A. Hinckley, who was at one time Chairman of the Democratic State Committee. She has obtained permission to serve notice of the suit upon Stulz by advertising, as he is beyond jurisdiction of the court for personal service.

ONE PADLOCK IS REMOVED

Plea of New Owner, Who Gives Bond, Is Granted—Eight More Closure Suits Started.

A new method of proceeding against violators of the Volstead act was started yesterday when Federal Judge A. N. Hand, on complaints prepared by Assistant United States District Attorney Lyman Ward, issued injunctions restraining the defendants from selling liquor in any part of this district.

Mr. Ward explained that saloon and restaurant men often had timely warning that action was about to be taken against them, so that when the officers arrived to serve warrants and to seize contraband they sometimes found the places empty, while the men who had occupied them were doing a flourishing business near by.

It was pointed out that under a ruling by Judge Hand the court might entertain a motion for the removal of a padlock if a new owner agrees to obey the law and supports his promise with a substantial bond to guarantee observance. Recently Louis Cuvillier, as counsel for August Gentile, the new owner of a padlocked saloon at 2,432 Second Avenue, obtained permission from Judge Hand for the removal of the padlock which had been ordered to remain there for six months. Gentile was required to give a bond of $1,000.

Eight padlock suits were begun yesterday in the Federal courts. One of them is in connection wtih the place at 889 First Avenue, said to be owned by Michael Cusamano, Joseph Caligula and Louis Irace. Cusamano has been referred to as the "bootleg king." Recently fourteen charges of dry law violations filed against him were dropped. Then Cusamano went to Italy.

ANDERSON APPEAL DELAYED

Ex-Governor Whitman and Prosecutor Will Argue Case Today.

Argument on the appeal from the conviction of William H. Anderson, erstwhile Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, who was convicted of third degree forgery, was to have been heard yesterday by the Appellate Division, but the case was not reached before adjournment at 6 o'clock.

Former Governor Charles A. Whitman, counsel for Anderson, and Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora were on hand, ready to proceed. The preceding case, however, took longer than had been contemplated. That case will be disposed of within a few minutes after court convenes at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and the Anderson case will then be called. Governor Whitman said that his argument will deal only with the law and will be quite brief.

HELD IN WOMAN'S DEATH.

Bail of $10,000 Fixed for Waiter Accused of Selling Whisky.

Accused of selling alcohol to a woman and contributing to her death, Anthony Bannisi, a waiter in a restaurant at 167 East Thirty-second Street, was held yesterday by Magistrate House, in Homicide Court, in $10,000 bail for examination June 3. This action was taken after an autopsy by Assistant Medical Examiner Benjamin Schwartz showed that death was due to natural causes superinduced by acute alcoholism.

The woman was Claire Breslin, 33 years old, of 309 Pine Street, Freeport, L. I. In a short affidavit by Detective Herman Levine, the waiter was charged with having sold several drinks of whisky to the woman last Friday. She became ill shortly after and died in Bellevue Hospital.

APRIL PAYROLLS DECLINED.

State and City Witnessed Curtailed Manufacturing.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 27.—April, usually the peak month in many industries, saw payrolls of New York State manufacturing plants smaller than in any month since February, 1923, and average weekly wages dropped 46 cents from the March average to $27.76, according to the monthly report of State Industrial Commissioner Bernard L. Shientag.

The reduction was accompanied by a 3 per cent. decrease in factory employment, the report indicated. Employment totals were 5 per cent. less than a year ago. Declines in payrolls were noticeable chiefly in the apparel and textile trades, with marked declines of more than 10 per cent. in the automobile, glass, cutlery, tool and stove plants, but with increases in brickyards and lumber mills.

Average weekly earnings in New York City were $19.79 for women, as compared with $15.09 up State, and $32.04 for men, as compared with $30.04 up State.

Payroll totals showed no change over last year in the machinery and electrical apparatus plants in the Albany district and the instrument and optical goods factories of Rochester, but there was a decline of 20 per cent. in Syracuse automobile factories and declines also in the Buffalo and Utica metal industries. Binghamton payroll decreases were attributed to a reduction in shoe plants.

DENIES TOLEDO IS BANKRUPT

City Finance Director Says Bonds Are Safe.

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, O., May 27.—"Toledo's present financial plight does not in any sense impair the city's sinking fund, nor does it affect the strength of the bonds the city contemplates issuing," Finance Director Stewart said today, following telegrams and telephone inquiries from New York bond dealers regarding reports that Toledo was bankrupt.

"These reports are misleading and most unfortunate," he said. "The City of Toledo is in the same general condition that all Ohio cities are in at this time, all being deprived of adequate operating funds due to existing State laws limiting the cities' incomes too closely.

"These matters, however, do not affect our sinking fund, nor do they affect our reserve for annual retirement of serial bonds and interest. These things, being by law a matter of first consideration, are simply protected."

Traffic Court Fines George Tiffany.

George Tiffany, an engineer of 125 Madison Avenue, was fined $10 yesterday in Traffic Court for driving an automobile without a New York license. He had only a Michigan license when in a collision with a milk truck on Broadway on May 16. He is a son of Mr. Cameron Tiffany.

One Minute, Sir

Let us send you—free—a real Shaving Cream delight

By V. K. CASSADY, Chief Chemist

GENTLEMEN:

You are hurried when you shave. You want quick-acting lather. And that is one of the five new factors that we bring you.

Note the new delights, the new results we list below. If they appeal to you, let us show you how to get them.

Our crowning creation

We consider Palmolive Shaving Cream as our supreme creation. And we've done many things in soap.

For many years this laboratory has been devoted to soap study. Some of the greatest soaps for every purpose have been our creations. One of them—Palmolive Soap—is the leading toilet soap of the world.

We brought to bear on this new problem all of our skill and experience. First, we consulted 1000 men, to learn what men most wanted. Then we worked 18 months to meet those ideals as no one else had done.

We advanced step by step—made up and tested 130 separate formulas—before we attained what we offer you today.

Never such shaving cream

The result has brought to millions surprise and delight. The demand developed in three years is one of the great business sensations.

We want to men who were wedded to other shaving creams. We offered them a ten-shave test. They quit their old-time methods and told others. The result is that morning shaving is far different from what it was.

These are not vital things. They are mere satisfactions. But we ask you to learn what they mean to you.

If you have made anything of equal value to us, we will gladly test it. Do the same with us. Clip coupon now, so you don't forget.

EXCELS IN THESE FIVE WAYS

1—Abundant lather. It multiplies itself in lather 250 times, so a tiny bit suffices for a shave.

3—Lasting lather. It maintains its creamy fullness for ten minutes on the face. No replacing.

5—Fine after effects. The palm and olive oil content makes the Cream lotion-like in its effect. It soothes irritation, leaves the skin in fine condition.

To add the final touch to shaving luxury, we have created Palmolive After Shaving Talc—especially for men. Doesn't show. Leaves the skin smooth and fresh, and gives that well-groomed look. Try the sample we are sending free with the tube of Shaving Cream.

There are new delights here for every man who shaves. Please let us prove them to you. Clip coupon now.

SILENT FLOORS!

Where Silence is Golden

Go into a smart shop. What is your first impression? Harmony—quiet.

Enter an up-to-date salesroom, showroom or business office and you find the same atmosphere. Why?

Because people prefer to do business in a quiet, tasteful environment. They shun the garish, noisy places. For noise jars the nerves, taxes the vocal chords, distracts the mind. And it is a well-known fact that most of the noise in stores and salesrooms and offices comes from the floors. Therefore, floors that make for silence are a distinct business asset.

How to get a quiet floor is only one of the things we can tell you about floors. Many years' experience qualifies us to assist you in selecting the type of floor most suited to your needs. Those same years of experience have taught us to install floors which combine durability with attractiveness and comfort.

Every floor laid according to Bonded Floors specifications is backed by a Surety Bond issued by the U.S. Fidelity and Guarantee Company. The bond insures freedom from repair expense due to defects in material or workmanship.

WORCESTER, Mass., May 27.—With the first eighteen holes of the qualifying round to determine what Eastern golfers are to be eligible to compete in the national open championship now a matter of record, practically every one of the top-notchers has passed the test with flying colors, and indications are that, barring upsets tomorrow, the whole quota of outstanding stars will move westward in a body for the championship proper at Oakland Hills next week. One hundred and sixty-three linksmen, professionals and amateurs, trudged their way over the Worcester Country Club today, and of them forty-five finished with scores of 79 or better.

The Eastern allotment for the Oakland Hills event is forty-one and ties, and figuring things on that basis those who played the course in 80 or better today have an excellent chance of making the grade provided they all do as well tomorrow. Conditions for scoring were by no means ideal today, especially for that portion of the field that drew late starting times. The day was cold and raw, and at noon a few drops of rain fell. Later on the wind came up strong enough to make itself troublesome.

The old guard showed that it had not entirely lost its grip on things when Freddie McLeod, Washington's wee Scot, led the field with a brilliant round of 72, made at a time when the conditions were by no means ideal. Away back in 1909 McLeod, who is now professional at the Columbia Country Club, captured the open championship. Today he set such a fast pace that none of the youngsters could match him. One of them, however, was close on his heels. He being Johnny Farrell of Quaker Ridge, present holder of the Florida West Coast championship and the open championship of Cuba. Farrell might have finished the day in a tie for the lead had he not missed a little two-foot putt on the home green.

Following McLeod and Farrell came M. J. Brady, another member of the old guard, recently appointed professional at the Winged Foot Club, with a 74, tying Jess P. Guilford of Boston, national amateur champion in 1921; the rejuvenated Peter O'Hara of White Beeches, and Dave Spittal, a representative of the South. Except for three holes, Brady played flawless golf and proved that he will be a prominent factor when the championship proper is played on his former course next week. Guilford likewise played brilliantly, showing the best shooting he has ever made in an open championship. He was hitting a tremendous ball and, except for the second hole, was never off the fairway.

Three Tied at 75.

There were three in a tie at 75, Charley Hoffner of Philmont, Philadelphia; W. H. Cox of Marine and Field, Brooklyn, and Arthur Reid, former Ardsley professional, who came up to the last three holes needing only 4s for a 72. The wind carried his drive off the line going to the sixteenth and he took a 6 there and finished with a 4 and 5. A stroke behind them were Willie Ogg, home club professional; Walter Hagen and Cyril Hughes, Lancaster, Pa., professional, who created quite a stir by some brilliant golf in last year's national open at Inwood. Ogg lofted his score considerably by inserting three 6s into his card at the third, fifth and eleventh holes, two of them par 4s. Hagen was not in the same mood he was in yesterday, straying from the fairway on several occasions. His chief difficulty, however, came on the greens.

Among the thirteen tied at 77 was Gene Sarazen, Briarcliff Lodge professional, who is the present P. G. A. champion. Gene was hitting the ball well, but lost any quantity of strokes on the putting greens, complaining of his inability to judge distances. Others sharing the 77 bracket with him were Tommy D. Armour, former Scottish internationalist; Francis Gallett of Laurelton, L. I.; Al Ciuci of Briarcliff Lodge; Gil Nicolls of Inwood, former Metropolitan champion; Cyril Walker of Englewood, Tomy Kerrigan of Siwanoy, Leo Diegel of Washington and Bobby Cruickshank of Shackamaxon, who tied Bobby Jones in the championship last year ago and then lost by a stroke in the play-off.

Cruickshank played a fine quality of golf today, but experienced ill luck on the short holes, failing to get a single 3 during the round. Joe Kirkwood was among nine who turned in cards of 78, while Alex Armour, Tommy Harmon of Hudson River, Jack Forrester of Hollywood, Dan Williams of Shackamaxon and Tom Boyd of Fox Hills were among the eleven to garner 79s for the round. Kirkwood was far off color today and was extremely fortunate to finish with better than 80.

Several Stars in the 80s.

There were eight of the better known stars whose scores went up to the 80 mark or more. One of these was Johnny Golden of Paterson, N. J. Others were Clarence Hackney of Atlantic City, Joe Turness of Elmsford, Jack Pirie of Woodmere, Alex Smith of the Shenecossett, young Henry Ciuci of Bridgeport, Conn.; Marty O'Loughlin of Plainfield, former Metropolitan champion, and John G. Anderson of the Winged Foot, former runner-up in two national amateur events. Smith, winner of several open championships during his heyday, was unable to run down any putts to speak of today, and finished with an 81, as did Ciuci, who qualified with him. O'Loughlin and Anderson had 82s, and hence are faced with the task of doing 77s or better tomorrow to insure their places.

McLeod got away to a bad start when he took 5s at the first three holes. He was short on his second at the first hole and missed a two-yarder for his half and sliced his second to the rough on the third. He more than offset these errors, however, by playing the next six holes in even 3s, getting a birdie 2 at the eighth, another birdie 3 at the tenth and pars on the others. His iron going to the eighth dropped six feet from the pin, while he was the same distance away from the flag after his iron shot going to the tenth.

His first venture off the fairway came at the eleventh hole where he drove into a trap. He was trapped in the sixteenth, costing him a 5 against the par 4, but atoned for the error by reaching the 460-yard seventeenth with his second and getting down in two putts.

Farrell Stars on Greens.

Farrell was aided by dexterous use of his putter and his niblick. He was in three bunkers during the round but none of them cost him strokes. He lost a stroke to par at the third where he sliced to the rough, but ran down a thirty-footer for his birdie 2 at the fourth. He followed this up with another birdie on the fifth, getting home in 2. On the fifteenth he was holed out on his second, but took three to get down. He played a beautiful approach at the home hole but failed to sink his short putt for a birdie 3.

ADLER VICTOR ON LINKS.

Takes Low Gross Honors in City Athletic Club's Tourney.

Golfers of the City Athletic Club yesterday held a one-day tournament on the course of the Millburn Country Club at Baldwin, L. I., with Paul Adler taking the low gross prize and David Dow carrying off the award for the low net card.

Adler went around the eighteen holes in 76 and his handicap allowance of six strokes gave him a net score of 70, but Dow's 89 and handicap of 20 strokes put him one under for low net honors with a 69.

McLeod Won National Open At Myopia 16 Years Ago

WORCESTER, Mass., May 27.—On just such a day as today threatened to be, sixteen years ago at Myopia, Freddie McLeod, Washington professional, gained his national open championship crown. With this achievement in mind, McLeod started out on his qualifying test for the national open at the Worcester Country Club today unfearful of what the weather man might stir up. He had gained his championship under the worst conditions possible and the prospects of rain and wind held no terrors for him. Since 1910 he has played in fourteen championships and finished in the money in each one. In 1910 he was a stroke back of the leaders and yet finished in fourth place, there being a triple tie for the lead, and a similar thing happened in the following year. He has had a successful season this year, winning the St. Petersburg tournament in the South.

MAC SMITH LEADS WESTERN GOLFERS

HAMPTON A STROKE BEHIND

Canton Star Second, With Linares and Weber Tied for Third—53 Are Under 80.

CHICAGO, May 27 (Associated Press).—Splendid golf was played today at the Oak Park Country Club in the first eighteen holes of the elimination round of Western aspirants for the national open golf championship, and it fell to Macdonald Smith, San Francisco, to lead the field of 148, who finished with a score of 36—34—72, which is par for the 6,464-yard course.

Harry Hampton of Canton, Ohio, playing with Smith, was second in the list with a 35—38—73. Third place was shared by Richard Linares of Long Beach, Cal., who had 38—36—74, and Dewey Weber, Chicago, who had a pair of 37s for 74. Four veterans of the links scored 75, Jock Hutchison, Chicago, former British champion, holding the lead with that figure until half of the players were finished. The other three were George Sargent, Columbus, Ohio, of the Professional Golfers Association, who yesterday set a course record of 69; George Bowden, Cincinnati, and Al Watrous, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Emmett French of Youngstown, who scored a 70 yesterday in practice, could do no better than 76 today, sharing that honor with Eddie Williams, Peoria; Alex Cunningham, Toledo; George Kerrigan, Los Angeles; Otto Hachbarth, Cincinnati; Laurie Ayton, Chicago; Abe Espinosa, San Francisco, and Dave Trufelli, Wichita, Kan.

In all there were thirty-five scores of 78 or better and eighteen scores of 79. An even dozen took 80 strokes, while eleven took 81. As the experts have figured that 156 would be the maximum score to admit a player to the final rounds for the title at Detroit on June 5 and 6, few, if any, of those who scored in the eighties today would have more than a slight chance to survive the second elimination round tomorrow.

Eagles Abound on Fifteenth.

Fine weather greeted the golfers today, although a stiff breeze bothered some of the late finishers. The tees were moved back as far as possible and the cups were planted at the treacherous far edge of the greens, making scoring difficult. Although the course is flat, dozens of terrific traps, numerous crossings of a wandering creek and at spots including woods, punished every shot that was not carefully placed. These conditions accounted for such variance in scores, some of the players going over forty on one nine and shooting par or better on the other. There was no open season for eagles on the 435-yard fifteenth, however, Smith and Harry Hampton halved this hole in eagle threes, and the same score was made there by Espinosa and M. L. Wells of Grand Rapids. One exceedingly large eagle strayed far away from this hole and was shot by John Rogers of Dayton, Ohio, on the sixteenth, where he scored a three over the 580-yard route. His drive, aided by the breeze, went some 300 yards and, although it landed in the rough, his brassie reached the edge of the green guarded by a creek, and holed a 40-foot put.

During the forenoon a large gallery followed Hutchison and saw some remarkable long shots and approaches, but the former British open champion did not perform brilliantly on the green. In the afternoon this gallery, joined by many late arrivals, followed Chick Evans and S. Davison Herron, the two former national amateur champions. Both former amateur titleholders required 39 strokes for the first nine, but Evans got home with a 38 for a 77, while Herron took 41 and totaled 80.

Pacific Coast Strong.

The Pacific Coast made a fine showing. Four Californianians and one Oregonian finishing among the leaders. There were nine low finishers from Ohio, five from Michigan and a dozen from Chicago. One of the surprises of the day was the score of 82 by Jock Burke of St. Paul, who tied for second place in the open championship at Toledo four years ago when Edward Ray took the title.

BROWN IS VICTOR ON SCOTCH LINKS

WETHERED ALSO ADVANCES

Defending Champion Scores Over Cox by 7 and 6, and Tolley Conquers Clough, 4 and 3.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 27.—Experts and spectators alike selected the match between Francis Brown of the United States and Allan Graham of the Royal Liverpool Club as the most interesting today in the British amateur golf championships. They were not disappointed. Both players were in excellent form, and the critics were especially impressed by the long and accurate driving of the lone American entrant, who won from his British rival by 2 and 1.

There were many who predicted before the match that Brown, who was developed in Hawaii, would be hard pressed to win, as his opponent is a driver of no mean ability. Win or lose for the American, it was a certainty that the battle would be one well worth seeing.

Although the driving on Brown's part was the centre of much interest, there were others who were watching the putting of the American with even more attention, and their verdict was that the victor was as excellent a player in the putting division as in the driving. His putts today were deadly, and they had to be, for Graham, who never experiences a tremor on the greens, was playing in his best style.

American Outdrives Briton.

In the long game the British star was outdriven at almost every hole, but his unwavering accuracy in the short game enabled him to keep the match on even terms. When he was 2 down at the seventh he was faced with four short holes, and he took advantage of them to even the match at the eleventh. The twelfth was halved, and Graham looked like a certain winner at the thirteenth, but to the amazement of the gallery and to himself, he missed a five-foot putt and the hole was halved. Brown took the fourteenth, but at the fifteenth the match again was all square. This was accomplished when Graham holed a five-yard putt, rather viciously, for a 3.

Brown was unperturbed and took the fifteenth after each had played three shots. Brown was seven yards from the hole while Graham was only six or seven feet away. Brown struck his ball boldly and holed out. His rival followed with a feeble attempt and the end came at the seventeenth, where another thrill was provided.

After their seconds both players were behind a bunker with a road between them and the green. Graham duffed his third, but reached the green on his fourth, a perfect pitch. Brown took a chance and won. He disregarded the bunker and drove straight for the pin. He landed less than five yards beyond it and holed out for a 4 and won the match.

Following the contest the experts gathered at the clubhouse and discussed the merits of the players. The opinion was unanimous that Brown was superior to his rival and that while he is one of the mightiest hitters in the world his putting is more to be feared than his driving. This decision is the reverse of what had been expected, but the critics stated that after his work on the seventeenth green as well as at others Brown was undoubtedly a more deadly putter than driver.

Wethered Wins From Cox.

Roger Wethered, the defending champion, had little difficulty in winning his second round match this afternoon. He was opposed by D. R. Cox and won by 7 and 6. The experts were of the opinion that he could have concluded the match sooner had he been so minded. The champion is in fine stroke and showed again today that he is rightly considered as one of the favorites to gain the final round.

Cyril Tolley, a former champion, and one of the favorites to advance through the semi-finals, had an easy victor again today. He defeated P. Clugh by 4 and 3, but it was evident that he was not trying his hardest. Harold Hilton, the noted veteran who yesterday scored the ninety-ninth victory in an amateur championship and today was striving to reach the 100 mark, was unable to do so and was defeated by Noel Layton. The score was 6 and 5.

Douglas Grant, formerly of California, but playing under the colors of an English club, had a hard match today and did not win until the nineteenth green. His opponent was Alan MacBeth, who played a stronger game than had been expected, and who was in the lead twice during the match. Other survivors were John Caven, Willis MacKenzie, Harry Braid, Carl Bretherton, Robert Harris and T. A. Torrance.

MRS. KOEMPEL GOLF VICTOR.

Wins Low Gross Prize in Met. Association's One-Day Event.

Rain, which has proved the nemesis of practically every one-day golf tournament that has been attempted in this section during the present season, again marred the work of the women golfers at the Essex County Country Club, where the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association conducted a one-day tourney yesterday. However, the participants have become used to the hardships of playing their mashie shots out of casual water, and the shower failed to stop them. Out of the field came Mrs. E. C. Koempel of Glen Ridge with the low gross prize and Miss Marie Jenney, who reached the semi-finals of the Metropolitan championship play, with the low net trophy.

Mrs. Koempel's start was no indication of the fact that she would carry off the honors. On the first hole she got into trouble and finally needed a 7 to sink her last putt. After that, however, she showed a decided improvement and by her consistency finished the outward nine in 47. She took one less stroke coming in and finished with a card of 47, 46—93. Miss Jenny required a 95 to complete the round, earning the low net prize by virtue of her handicap allowance of eight strokes, which gave her an 87. Mrs. Koempel, with a handicap of 5, also had a net score of 87, but as she could win only one prize she took the low gross trophy.

Other low scores included the following: Mrs. Cortland Smith, Glen Ridge, 94, 3—91; Mrs. Thomas Hucknall, Forest Hills, 94, 1—93; Miss Julia Bredt, Essex County, 102, 11—91; Mrs. Charles Lester, Essex County, 114, 22—92; Miss Elsie Sellick, Glen Ridge, 101, 7—94; Mrs. S. Prosser, Englewood, 108, 18—90.

OPPOSES THE WRITER RULE.

New York Tennis Club Votes for Its Repeal by 47 to 33.

The New York Tennis Club, at a special meeting held last night in its clubrooms, at 238th Street, near Broadway, went on record as being opposed to the player-writer interpretation of the amateur rule adopted by the United States Lawn Tennis Association at its annual meeting in February. The vote was 47 against the interpretation and 33 for it. It was by that vote that the following resolution was adopted, with Dr. William Rosenbaum and Harold W. Hastings leading in the fight for it:

Resolved, That the New York Tennis Club is opposed to the interpretation of the amateur rule as expressed by the resolution of the United States Lawn Tennis Association dated February, 1924, and that the New York Tennis Club is in favor of calling a special meeting of the U. S. L. T. A. to rescind such resolution."

'Sure to Play in Olympics,' Mlle. Lenglen Tells Reporter

PARIS, May 27.—"I am all right again, as you can see for yourself," Mlle. Susanne Lenglen, the French tennis champion of the world, informed the Matin's Nice correspondent today. "Please deny the imaginative stories current about my health. The doctors have authorized me to begin training again. I shall do so in a week's time, and without the slightest doubt shall take part in the Olympic Games." The correspondent describes Mlle. Lenglen as having fresh color and an alert mien, and, he adds, if somewhat thinner, her features are not drawn. He was unable to induce her to give an opinion of Miss Helen Wills, the American champion.

JOHNSON IS WINNER IN OLYMPIC TRIALS

LOOKABOUGH ALSO WINS

The leading amateur wrestlers of the country, gathered as sectional winners from the colleges, athletic clubs and the Army and the Navy, competed in the preliminaries of the National A. A. U. championships and Olympic tryouts at Madison Square Garden last night. Approximately 125 men are to appear in the seven classes to be contested, and in order to finish the finals tonight the grapplers will resume competition at 11 o'clock this morning.

William B. Johnson of Columbia University, New York State 158-pound champion, was one of the few wrestlers to win on a fall in the first round. So evenly matched were the men as a general rule that the great majority of the bouts were decided on the points system by the judges after ten minutes of competition.

Johnson threw Eugene Grettan of the University of Iowa with a near-and-arm lock in 5:53 4-5. The fall came unexpectedly after the stiffest sort of opposition. Grettan, who appeared the stronger of the two, was on the defensive up to the time and carrying the fight to the other. Johnson conducted himself very coolly and suddenly clamped his hold on Grettan as the latter was half way under the ropes in the Columbia wrestler's corner.

Another winner in this 158-pound class was Guy Lookabough, the famous Indian grappler from Oklahoma A. and M. College. He defeated C. R. Burr of Cornell University, on the decision of the judges, being the aggressor throughout the bout. Lookabough holds the distinction of having been beaten only once in his lifetime, by Eino Leino, 1920 Olympic champion from Sweden in the 158-pound class.

In addition to the wrestling bouts, the final Olympic gymnastic tryouts were also held. Two events were staged at the Twenty-third Street Y. M. C. A. because of the lack of proper apparatus at the Garden.

Kritz Qualifies for Team.

Frank Kritz of the Bohemian Gym. Association Sokol, the National all-around gymnastic champion, qualified for the Olympic Team, with the highest score in the all-around Olympic gymnastic trials. His score for the seven events was 100.20 points. Alfred Joachim of the Swiss Turn Verein was second, with 96.46. J. B. Pearson of the U. S. Navy, third, with 92.31. Frank Safanda of the Danish American Sokol, fourth, with 89.90. Frank Kruse, unattached, fifth, with 88.62. John G. Maiz, Philadelphia Turnagemeinde, sixth, with 83.01. Curt Rottmann of the New York Turn Verein, seventh, with 79.90. Max Wanderer of the Philadelphia Turnagemeinde, eighth, with 74.63. Adolph Zink of the New York Turn Verein, ninth, with 72.70, and T. Andreason of the Norwegian Turn Society, tenth, with 71.70. These will constitute the United States Gymnastic team. Rudolph Nowak of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, who was eleventh, with 68.17, and Charles Creamer, New York A. C., who was twelfth, with 59.74, are the substitutes on the team.

123-Pound Class—T. J. Pfeffer, University of Iowa; J. Foliart, Oklahoma A. and M. College; C. H. Hootes, Pottstown, Pa.; W. Vesse, Illinois A. C.; L. B. Gayman, Los Angeles A. C.; H. Boresch, Elizabeth Y. M. C. A.; B. Hines, Northwestern University; C. M. McWilliams, Cornell University.

145-Pound Class—C. S. Diver, U. S. Navy; Philip Hart, U. S. A.; E. B. Rogers, U. S. Navy; T. Barish, Harlem Y. M. C. A.; K. Truckenmiller, Mt. Vernon, Iowa; G. Northrup, Oklahoma A. and M. College; B. D. Evans, Penn State; Russell Vis, Los Angeles A. C.

Amateurs Will Box.

As an added attraction to the finals at the Garden tonight and tomorrow night, a number of leading amateur boxers will be seen in action in special bouts, in which five Californians, two from Cleveland and five local boxers will appear in open classes. Prominent among those who will compete in the open classes are L. Haber, Clark House; Frank Montano, Trinity Club; Patsy Ruffalo, Mount Vernon; Murray Fuchs, Union Settlement A. C.; Murray Hychman, Pastime A. C.; Sam Aaranson, Clark House; Edward Mack, St. Vincent's Club; John Fiorio, Pompeii C. C.; Willie Burke, Knights of St. Antony; John Kehr, Pastime A. DUNDEE WILL MEET VICENTINI TONIGHT

The outdoor boxing season at the New York Velodrome is scheduled to open tonight with Johnny Dundee, world's featherweight and junior lightweight champion, meeting Luis Vicentini, Chilean lightweight, in a 12-round bout to a decision. Although neither of Dundee's titles will be at stake, as the men signed to meet at 135 pounds and the South American is pretty certain to come into the ring weighing close to that mark, considerable interest is nevertheless aroused in the match, as it is expected to have a strong bearing on determining the logical opponent for Benny Leonard in a world's lightweight championship bout this year. Both Dundee and Vicentini are entertaining strong hopes of securing the chance to fight for the lightweight championship in the Summer, and it is almost a certainty that the loser will be relegated to the discards for this year at least.

Despite the fact that he will conceede a handicap of nearly five pounds, Dundee is expected to enter the ring tonight a strong favorite. This choice is based on the general belief that the veteran will be too experienced a boxer for the South American. The fact, however, that Vicentini is regarded as the harder puncher of the two is not leaving him without plenty of followers. The latter, too, point to the fact that Dundee has shown unmistakable signs of no longer being the consistent boxer he was some time ago, a notable instance of this being in Dundee's bout with Rocky Kansas, in which the champion not only lost the decision but was floored at will.

An interesting set of bouts has been arranged to precede the main event. In the ten-round semi-final K. O. Phil Kaplan and Harry Martone are scheduled to meet, while an eight-rounder will bring together Mickey Brown and Joe Scoppetone. Al Norton and Jimmy Cancro will meet in a six, and the opening four-rounder, scheduled to start at 8:30 o'clock, will be between Jimmy Hutchinson and Jackie Coburn.

It was announced by Tex Rickard yesterday that the sale of reserved seats at $3, $4 and $5 will be continued at Madison Square Garden today until 6 o'clock, while the $1 and $2 tickets will go on sale at the Velodrome.

BARBARIAN TO BOX HERE.

Detroit Lightweight Will Oppose Bernstein Next Week.

Sid Barbarian, Detroit lightweight, yesterday was signed to meet Jack Bernstein, former holder of the junior lightweight title, in a twelve-round bout at the New York Velodrome next Wednesday night.

Barbarian recently challenged Benny Leonard for the lightweight championship, and an effort was made by Detroit promoters to have the bout held in that city. Billy Gibson, manager of Leonard, however, turned down the offer, stating he preferred to meet Barbarian in New York, provided the Detroit challenger qualified for a championship match against some other opponent in this city.

Mrs. Morgan Bulkeley of Hartford won low net and Mrs. Irving Chase of this city won the approaching and putting contest.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 27.—An ever-increasing roar of motors tuning up for the annual 500-mile race at the Indianapolis motor speedway Friday attracted a throng of speed fans to the track today. Although qualifying trials were on the program, only one driver made the trip of ten miles at a better than eighty miles an hour speed—the test that must be passed by every entry. This was Alfred E. Moss, British driver, who covered the ten miles in 7:02:20, an average of 85.26 miles an hour.

Moss's qualification made a total of twenty cars which have met the test.

Boston Pitcher Gains Strength Following Operation.

CINCINNATI, May 27.—Rube Marquard, pitcher of the Boston Braves, who is ill in a hospital here, was reported to be slightly improved today. Marquard developed a case of acute indigestion, following his recent operation for appendicitis, and was in a grave condition over Saturday and Sunday. A good night's rest Monday however imparted more strength, and hospital physicians said he was a little better today.

TOURNEY TO DECIDE RIVAL FOR LEONARD

PROMOTERS WILL ASSIST

Rickard and Others to Join in Selecting Boxer—No Ruling Made on Walker Case.

Arriving at the conclusion that there appeared to be at the present time no outstanding contender for the world's lightweight championship, now held by Benny Leonard, the New York State Athletic Commission, at its regular meeting yesterday, asked the leading boxing promoters in the metropolitan district to organize a committee and cooperate in the staging of a series of elimination bouts which would determine the logical opponent for Leonard this year. Announcement of this invitation to the promoters was made at the conclusion of the meeting by Chairman George Brower.

According to Mr. Brower, the proposition met with the unanimous approval of practically all of the leading promoters who signified their willingness to do all they could to arrange bouts between the foremost lightweight contenders in the country in order to produce the best man available. The promoters who will form the committee and pledged their support to the movement were Tex Rickard, Charles Henderson of the Nortrand A. C., Simon Flaherty of the Queensboro A. C., Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker for the Polo Grounds and Yankee Stadium, and Charles Brister of the Pioneer A. C. They will arrange for a meeting at once.

While the meeting was in progress, Rickard stated that he considered the plan a sound and logical one, and added that he thought the match scheduled for tonight at the New York Velodrome between Johnny Dundee and Luis Vincentini probably would help to clear the situation. The commission's one stipulation, Chairman Brower stated, was that the series of elimination bouts must be completed before the end of July in order to insure an outdoor lightweight championship fight either in late Summer or early Fall.

It also was announced that the commission had decided to withdraw its stamp of approval upon Johnny Leonard of Allentown (Pa.) as the foremost challenger for the world's featherweight championship, held by Johnny Dundee, and conferred that honor upon Louis Kid Kaplan, Meriden (Conn.) boxer. Leonard was selected a short time ago as the featherweight that Dundee should meet in defense of his title, but Leonard suffered a defeat last Friday night at the Nostrand A. C. when he was outpointed by Tony Vaccarelli in ten rounds.

No action was taken on the fact that Mickey Walker, welterweight champion of the world, had failed to reply to the order of the commission that he must accept a challenge from Dave Shade, recognized by the board as the foremost challenger. The time limit for Walker to make a reply to the challenge expired Monday and though it was announced by Chairman Brower that no word had been received by the champion he added that the commission was not yet prepared to announce what steps it intends to take in the matter. Walker at present is not a licensed boxer in New York State and, therefore, cannot be suspended as would ordinarily happen when a champion refuses to meet a challenger designated by the commission. It is expected, however, that some action will follow in the event that Walker should make application for a license to box in this State.

Jack McAuliffe, Detroit heavyweight, appeared before the commission with the request that he be released from the management of Mark Shaughnessy. The latter took over the contract to manage the boxer originally held by Ben Freedman. The commission told the boxer and all others interested to report at the next meeting.

BRITISH FOUR WINS IN FIRST TRIAL GAME

LONDON, May 27 (Associated Press).—In the first of a series of trial matches preliminary to the selection of the polo team which will try to win the International Cup from the American team in the United States in September, the trial team defeated "the rest," 7 to 4, at Ranelagh today.

The trial team comprised No. 1, Major T. W. Kirkwood; No. 2, Major G. Phipps-Hornby; No. 3, Major F. B. Hurndall; Back, Louis Lacey, who was captain of the Argentine team which visited America in 1923; Major Phipps-Hornby was substituting for Lord John Wodehouse, who injured his wrist a short time ago.

Lord John and Lacey are almost certain to be selected. Several other players will be tested in trial matches for the other two places.

The opposing team this afternoon comprised Lieut. Col. P. K. Wise, Major E. G. Atkinson, who played in America last year with the Indian Team; Major F. W. Barrett, who played against America in 1914 and 1921, and the Marquis of Cholmondeley.

TIGER FOUR MISSES DRILL.

Rain Halts Last Polo Practice Before Arizona Series.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 27.—Princeton's polo team lost its last chance for a practice scrimmage before the openings of the series of the national college title with Arizona on Friday by the rain today. The polo ponies are to be shipped to Fort Hamilton tomorrow morning and the players will be unable to get away until Friday because of the examinations now in progress.

The four men who brought the Eastern title to the Tigers are all in good shape and the team will undoubtedly start with Holbrook, Newbold, Jackson and Bancroft in the array. Captain Andrews, coach of the Tiger outfit, refused to make any prediction on the outcome of the series, but the popular opinion is that Princeton will have a difficult battle against the Westerners.

Robert Lee Bullard, commanding the Second Corps Area, under whose auspices the series will be staged.

Because of final scholastic examinations the Princeton team was unable to play on the dates originally set. The third game of the series, that scheduled for Wednesday of next week, will not be played should either team win both of the first two matches.

HARVARD COACHES DROP 4 OARSMEN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 27.—When Harvard rowing coaches today were announcing selections for second and third varsity crews to row in the American Henley at Philadelphia on Saturday, it became known that four men who have made their letters in rowing at Harvard have been dropped from the crew squad. They are C. J. Hubbard, who rowed in the varsity shell last year and the year before; Richard Storey, a member of the 1922 varsity eight; Stanley S. Brown, who stroked the varsity in 1922 and the second varsity last Year, and C. H. Hollister Jr., who rowed at No. 5 last season.

None of the oarsmen who made up the original second varsity crew at Harvard this year will figure in the second varsity eight sent to Philadelphia. LARCHMONT CLUB SETS DATES FOR TWO RACES

Victory and Six-Meter Craft to Compete June 15 and 22, Respectively.

Fred M. Hoyt, Chairman of the Race Committee of the Larchmont Yacht Club, announced yesterday that the club had arranged a special race for Victory Class sloops, to be sailed on Sunday, June 15, and two races for the international six-meter yachts, to be sailed on Sunday, June 22. These events are not included on the club's regular schedule. Fleet Captain James D. Sparkman has offered a prize for the Victory Class race.

The Victory boats are fast sloops, about twenty-one feet long on the waterline and were the first class turned out by Herreshoff following the war. About a dozen of them will race on Long Island Sound during the Summer. Blue Jacket, owned by Commodore James B. Ford, and sailed by Drake Sparkman, won the championship of the Yacht Racing Association of Long Island Sound in this class last year.

The name of the Herreshoff six-meter Cygnet, recently purchased by Harry L. Maxwell from Gordon Pirie, has been changed to Colleen. The yacht will be fitted out at the Nevins yard and raced as a "trial horse" against Mr. Maxwell's new six-meter Madcap, which sailed in her first races last Sunday and made a good showing with Butler Whiting at the helm.

Mr. Maxwell, one of the most enthusiastic of Long Island Sound racing skippers, will have three racing yachts in commission this season—Madcap, Colleen and the New York Yacht Club forty-footer Banshee.

The new six-meter building at the Nevins yard, City Island, from designs by William Gardner, for W. T. Hoyt and Harold Tobey of the Larchmont Yacht Club, will be launched June 6.

A few American swimmers have defeated him in pools, but he has yet to meet defeat in choppy seas. Beaurepaire, who is now 33 years old, first won the Australian championship when 16 years of age and has held the title ever since.

CARPENTIER HOLDS SPIRITED WORKOUT

Indicates in Training That He Intends to Engage Opponent at Close Quarters.

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., May 27 (Associated Press).—Georges Carpentier, resuming work today after a two days' lay-off, convinced the boxing experts that he is ready to meet Tom Gibbons in their ten-round international boxing contest here next Saturday afternoon. The French light heavyweight knowing his every move, was being checked up by the critics, worked with the speed of a lightweight. He whipped his punches over with the precision of a sharpshooter and was obliged to heed the warnings of Trainer Gus Wilson, who was standing outside the ring continually shouting to Carpentier to keep his blows in check.

Carpentier worked an equivalent of nine rounds. He boxed five rounds with two sparring partners, shadow boxed for a round, whaled the heavy bag for a round and went through a round of calisthenics before an attack on the light bag.

After his workout the critics agreed that to all appearances he was in much better condition than while training at Manhasset for Jack Dempsey. He looked bigger than ever and was eager for work. The Frenchman also was in rare humor and joshed the newspaper men who had been denied the privilege of seeing him work for the last few days.

Carpentier boxed the first two rounds with Battalino Mollner, the Italian middleweight, cuffing him around like a cat playing with a mouse. Paul Fritsch, the French lightweight, carried Carpentier at top speed for two rounds, but Georges pulled his punches and tried mainly to increase his speed.

Carpentier evidently felt in high spirits after the workout, vaulting the top rope of the ring and trotted down the road softly whistling while his trainers trailed after him.

Gibbons gave the critics the impression that he intends to keep close to Carpentier instead of attempting to box him at long range. The St. Paul light-heavyweight boxed eight rounds today, but only got a real workout in two of them against Tillie (Kid) Herman.

Gibbons continually tried to shoulder close to Herman, hooking him to the body with lefts and connecting with right upper cuts. He boxed three other opponents two rounds apiece but took things easy.

Carpentier intends to work tomorrow and Thursday but the boxing will be light as he does not want to risk the danger of opening healed wounds over his eyes. He wears a leather headgear pulled down over his forehead to protect his eyes from rasping punches.

ST. LOUIS, May 27.—Cincinnati and St. Louis broke even on a twin bill today, the Cardinals taking the first game, 4 to 3, and the Reds winning the second, 3 to 1. Cooney's double with Gonzales on second gave the Cards the winning run in the ninth inning of the first game after the Reds had tied the score with a three-run rally in the ninth.

H. B. Miltenberger, a spectator, dropped dead of heart disease shortly after Daubert had hit a homer in the eighth inning of the second game.

GIANTS AND ROBINS KEPT IDLE BY RAIN

Rivals Will Meet in Double-Header Today—Weather Also Stops Yankees.

The long-awaited battle of the boroughs at the Polo Grounds yesterday was washed out by rain, causing intense anguish among several thousand Brooklyn fans who had looked forward to seeing their favorites wipe up the greensward with the proud and haughty Giants. There is a secret suspicion, however, that the postponement was no shock to Charles Hercules Ebbets, the Brooklyn President, who entertains a private hope that the game will be played off in the form of a double-header. That vital race will be determined by the Giants this morning.

As a little consolation for the anguished Flatbushers a double bill will be on tap at the Giants' park this afternoon, starting at 1:45 instead of the traditional hour of 1:30. The Giant management believes that the later starting time is better for this stage of the year, on the theory that the public can't get out as early as it will later in the Summer. Be that as it may, the zero hour will be 1:45, and the fan who hopes to get a good seat is advised to be on hand early to avoid the rush.

It promises to be a large afternoon. Dazzy Vance will pitch one of the games for the Robins, and Ernie Osborne or Burleigh Grimes the other. John McGraw will pick his twirlers from a big panel, including Bill Ryan, Hugh McQuillan, Jack Bentley, John Watson and Joe Oeschger. Any two of the foregoing is likely to receive the nomination. With many thousand ferocious Brooklynites in one corner and an even greater delegation of aroused Manhattanites and Bronxites in the other, it ought to be a thrilling bout. With the right kind of weather the Giant officials expect 40,000 frenzied folk at the bitter and bloody interborough battle.

The Giants were not heartbroken over yesterday's postponement. It gave them an extra day to rest from the exhausting Western Pullman tour. In the morning the Giants appeared at the park for a badly needed practice. During the day John McGraw hobbled down to greet his athletes and talk things over with Hughey Jennings, manager pro tempore. John J. was on crutches, with his injured knee in a cast, but he said he would be on hand today and every day from now on unless he suffered a relapse. Most of the pain has left the knee, but the doctors have ordered him to go slowly and put as little strain on it as possible.

The Yankees' game with the Senators in Washington yesterday was called off when showers fell on the capital.

YALE NINE DEFEATS GEORGETOWN, 1 TO 0

POND OPPOSES BRENNAN

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 27.—Yale today defeated Georgetown, 1 to 0, Billy Neale crossing the plate with the only counter in the tenth inning. His sizzling bounder was stopped by Mudd off first base, but Pitcher Brennan muffed his throw. Neale scampered to third on Lindley's grounder, which Ryan partially checked, and scored when Ewing hit a hot one which Mudd could not return to the plate in time.

SOCRATES CAPTURES BOUQUET STAKES

STABLEMATE IS SECOND

William Daniel's entry of Socrates and Master Billy cleaned up the Bouquet Selling Stakes, for two-year-olds, which had the place of honor on the card at the Belmont Park race course yesterday afternoon, the pair running one-two. Socrates easily carried off first money of $4,375, while his stable companion beat James Butler's White Wash handily for the place and added $400 to the stable's winnings for the afternoon. Socrates ran the five furlongs of the straight course in 0:58 3-5 over a fast track, carrying 102 pounds. Master Billy was in receipt of five pounds from the winner. The entry was the public choice, closing at 11 to 10.

In the other two-year-old event on the program H. P. Whitney's entry of Reminder and Already also ran one-two. Frank Coltiletti gained the riding honors of the afternoon, having the mount on Reminder and also bringing the Greentree Stable's Skyscraper first past the finishing post in the third race. Continued bad weather kept down the attendance, and while it showered at intervals during the afternoon the track remained fast throughout all the racing.

The Bouquet Stakes, the first selling event of the New York season, attracted only half a dozen starters, and there were no bids on the winner when he came back to the post. Socrates raced as if he were the best of the lot as he broke fast and went into the lead immediately. He was drawing away at the end, and while he swerved there was nothing near him at the time. Master Billy was away slowly, but he ran truly, came up in the last sixteenth and outgamed White Wash. The later raced greenly, swerving out badly at the start. Socrates was a bargain yearling at $1,000.

Hempstead to Skyscraper.

The Greentree Stable's five-year-old Ultimus gelding Skyscraper, which returned only on Monday from Canada, captured the Hempstead Highweight Handicap over the six furlongs of the main course, after a thrilling duel with James Butler's Noon Fire. Skyscraper broke fastest, but Noon Fire was right with him and on the outside. The pair raced as a team from flag-fall to finish, coming down the stretch head and head. As they passed the winning post Skyscraper's nose was going down and he won the decision by that margin.

J. S. Ward's Indian Trail, winner of his last outing at Jamaica, when he beat Lord Granite, Miss Cerina and others, was the public choice, closing at 3 to 2. He packed top weight of 140 pounds and could not carry the burden and keep within striking distance of the two leaders.

The Sanford Stud Farm's five-year-old gelding Serenader, by Bachelor's Double —Golden Harp, proved to be the best of the eight which went to the post for the Mineola, for three-year-olds and upward, over the mile course. He was in the lead with 106 pounds, receiving twelve pounds from the favorite, P. H. Sims's Prince of Umbria, and he beat the latter handily by a length and a quarter. The winner closed at 16 to 5, the Prince of Umbria being held at 2 to 1.

Malden shot Serenader into the lead from the rise of the barrier and was never headed. Breuning sent August Belmont's Pricemaker up to challenge determinedly on the turn from the backstretch, but the three-year-old son of Hourless and Fair Priscilla never could quite get on even terms. Prince of Umbria worked his way up gradually, came through on the inner rail in the stretch run and was up to take the place by three and a half lengths from H. M. Howard's Frigate. The race was run in the fast time of 1:37 4-5.

Eleven in Chase.

The Hylas Claiming Steeplechase brought eleven to the post across the infield for the journey of about two miles and the improvement in the quality of the jumping this season was demonstrated by the fact that every one of them held their feet. This race also resulted in an easy victory, the winner being the Dosoris Stable's old Voter gelding Vox Populi II. McNair rated him along in front all the way and he gradually opened up a gap that the others failed to close. The winner carried 141 pounds and ran the distance in 3:56. He was a rank outsider in the wagering, having practically no support at 30 to 1.

A. J. Davis's Peccant, the public choice, closed a good gap during the last turn of the field to take the place, six lengths behind the winner. Five lengths back came Regalia. W. V. Dwyer's gelding, to take the short end of the money.

Headley's Chocolet to Run In the Suburban Saturday

Hal Price Headley's great race mare Chacolet, winner of the recent Dixie Handicap and the $50,000 race at Latonia last Fall, in which she took the measure of In Memoriam, is on her way to New York to run in the classic Suburban Handicap at the Belmont Park race course on Saturday afternoon. The mare will carry 120 pounds in the Suburban and her presence assures the West of a worthy representative against Zev and the other stars of the Eastern thoroughbred world. E. B. McLean's Modest, which beat Chacolet in the Grainger Memorial Handicap at Churchill Downs in a great race, is also coming to fill his engagement in the Belmont, the three-year-old classic, which will be decided on Saturday, June 7, over the course of a mile and three furlongs.

FRENCH EASILY WIN IN OLYMPIC SOCCER

HOLLAND DEFEATS RUMANIA

PARIS, May 27. (Associated Press).—The first round and the third day's play in the Olympic soccer football matches ended today with decisions in two matches. France defeated Latvia, 7 to 0, and Holland won from Rumania, 6 to 0. The results had been generally anticipated. Neither winning team in the opinion of the experts showed as good form as the Uruguayan eleven has shown. Eight teams now have been eliminated from the contest, leaving fourteen qualified for the quarter-finals.

Of the teams still in the running, Ireland and Bulgaria and Switzerland and Czechoslovakia will play tomorrow. The United States and Uruguay, Belgium and Sweden, Egypt and Hungary and Italy and Luxemburg, still in the running, will come together as named on Thursday. The competitors for the winners of these matches, and for the French and Dutch teams in the next round will be drawn on Thursday night.

In today's play the Frenchmen outclassed the Latvians in every department of the game. They undoubtedly could have increased their score had they so desired. The French team played with ten men throughout most of the game, as one of their backs was injured during the first half and was unable to resume play. France's goal shooting was a feature of the one-sided game. Four thousand spectators witnessed the match.

Only a few hundred persons were in the Colombes Stadium to see Holland defeat Rumania. The Dutchmen, like the Frenchmen, virtually had the Balkanites at their mercy after the first few minutes of play.

COMPARE!

After 300 Years—Golf Clubs Have Been Standardized!

You have noticed that a midiron of one make sometimes has about the same loft as a mashie of another make.

You may have asked yourself, "Is there, or is there not, a scientifically correct degree of loft for every club?"

There should be—and in designing Kroydon clubs, this was taken into consideration.

The best professional club makers in America went into this situation very carefully—and after much practical testing, a set of clubs was made—each one of which gives the best result for the shot it is supposed to make.

A bag of Kroydon clubs is a bag full of accurately placed shots. Ask any "pro." The whole story is told in our booklet. Address the Kroydon Co., Newark, New Jersey.

Kroydon Midiron—Model J8—Price $6.00—With Hickory Shaft (Also made with STEEL SHAFT—$7.50)

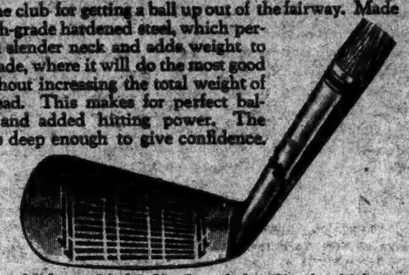
Just the club for getting a ball up out of the fairway. Made of high-grade hardened steel, which permits a slender neck and adds weight to the blade, where it will do the most good—without increasing the total weight of the head. This makes for perfect balance, and added hitting power. The face is deep enough to give confidence.



Kroydon Midiron—Model J8—One of three Kroydon Midirons, each the best of its kind that it is possible to produce.

Kroydon Mashie—Model NO8—Price $6.00—With Hickory Shaft (Also made with STEEL SHAFT—$7.50)

A new Kroydon Mashie, designed for greater distance than our regular model—and to this end, has 5° less loft. A club that is rapidly growing in popularity. Easy to play. Deep face, slender neck, and rounded heel. Beautifully finished.

Kroydon Mashie—Model NO8—One of three Kroydon Mashies each the best of its kind that it is possible to produce.

Forged Bronze Kroydon Putter

Model S8B—Price $6.00—With Hickory Shaft

This Putter is a model designed on the traditional and ever popular lines—but improved and beautified. It is not cast, as are other bronze and brass putters—but forged, exactly the same manner as Kroydon Irons. In the cast Putters, the necks are seldom straight; due to coring the hozzle. The forging process insures a sole, face, and hozzle which are absolutely true—the first essential of accuracy. The material is bronze—not brass—remarkably beautiful, as well as serviceable.

Drop Forged Bronze Putter—Model S8B—One of eight Kroydon Putters, each the best of its kind that it is possible to produce.

Kroydon Driver

"The Ace"—Price $7.00 With Hickory Shaft (With STEEL SHAFT—$9.00)

A horn of Kroydon Metal, light but very tough, insures against nicking and scarring by stones and gravel. The novel back is more than a beautiful fixture; it provides scientific weighting and assists in producing what many experts declare to be the most perfectly balanced club made. A club of distinction and rare beauty, as well as serviceability.

One of ten Kroydon Drivers, each the best of its kind that it is possible to produce.

STEEL SHAFTS—or air-seasoned hickory shafts

Kroydon Golf Clubs

PRESIDENTS DO NOT RESIGN.

When Senator GLASS said in Philadelphia that if he were President and could not get from his party votes enough to sustain a veto of such a measure as the Bonus bill he "would resign," he probably was not laying down either a constitutional doctrine or a political program. His remark was doubtless intended, first of all, as a little squirt of vitriol in the direction of Mr. COOLIDGE. Presumably, CARTER GLASS feels that the President did not exert all his powers as an Executive or bring into play all the forces within his control as party leader in order to defeat the bonus. Then with an eye to his own candidacy, the Senator doubtless sought to give the impression that if he were elected President he would insist upon the jealous and vigorous maintenance of every prerogative of the office.

In cold fact, it is altogether unlikely that if Mr. GLASS were in Mr. COOLIDGE's place today he would resign the Presidency. To do so would, in addition to throwing public affairs into uncertainty and confusion, go contrary to the whole theory of our frame of government. We elect Presidents for a definite term. We do not appoint Prime Ministers with a tenure of office subject to the vicissitudes of party majorities in Congress. It is true that the President is, or may be, the leader of his party, as is a Prime Minister. But the two functions are separate, and ought not to be confounded in the sense that a President might be expected to act in a crisis as would a Prime Minister. President WILSON, as everybody knows, was much enamored of the parliamentary system of government and sought to introduce some of its ideas and methods while he was in office. But when the time came to press his view to its logical conclusion he shrank back. In 1918, very much in the guise of a Prime Minister, he appealed to the country to elect a Democratic Congress. But when his plea failed he did not resign, and evidently did not even think of resigning. It would have been a great mistake if he had resigned. About that time he wisely dropped the theory of an American Prime Minister and quietly reverted to the constitutional plan of a President chosen for four years, whose duty it was to execute the laws and conduct the foreign relations of the country irrespective of the ebb and flow of partisan majorities in Congress.

It is said that resignation may be the only weapon which a President can use against a too powerful and usurping Congress. But is it not obviously a weapon which would break in his hands? He would have no means of direct and immediate appeal to the people to decide between him and Congress. To resign might be merely to surrender to his enemies. What would not Congress have given sixty years ago to induce President ANDREW JOHNSON to resign? Congress was then much more overweening in its desire and purpose to ride roughshod over the President than it is today. It sought to get rid of him by impeaching him. The failure of that process is regarded by all our later historians of politics as a blessing for the nation in establishing for all time the independent authority of the Presidency. If ANDREW JOHNSON had resigned in a pet or a panic, he would have been forgetful of his oath of office and of his obligation to preserve the powers of the President unimpaired, while Congress would have jubilantly stepped across his dead body to seize that supremacy in the Government which it was seeking to wrest for itself and which President JOHNSON's successful defense prevented it from attaining.

In France, at this moment, we see the gathering of another effort to force out a President before his term expires. The French system is mixed. It has a President chosen for a definite period and it has also a Prime Minister dependent upon a majority in the Chamber of Deputies. By the Constitution of 1875, the President of France was made a good deal of an ornamental figurehead. The republic was scarcely expected to endure, and the admitted plan was to create a President of whom it might be said, as of a King, that he reigned but did not govern, and who might easily give way some day to an actual King. President MILLERAND has sought to enlarge and invigorate his office; and in that way, particularly by showing a political preference in the elections this month, has offended the parties of the Left. They are reported to be starting a movement to force him to resign. If they succeed, it will be more than a personal or political triumph over M. MILLERAND; it will be a shattering of the French Constitution.

No American President has ever resigned, although the Constitution provides for the case of his resignation. It seems to be established that Mr. WILSON, early in the days when he was so sorely stricken by illness, thought of resigning on the score of disability. According to Mr. TUMULTY, President WILSON had once before that time vaguely canvassed the possibility that he might resign. But there is no proof that he ever in health contemplated doing so. Nor should any other President. If he suffers a grievous buffet from Congress, there is nothing for him but to grin and bear it, and go on with the work which he has made oath to do to the best of his ability.

A RESPITE FOR THE PARK.

Until next Fall Mr. HYLAN has consented to spare the trees in Central Park. At the Mayor's own request the Board of Estimate voted on Monday to postpone till September action on the proposed war memorial in Central Park. The reason was "pressure of business on the calendar." The nature of the business was not stated, but we suspect that one reason was the approach of warm weather. Summer would be the most inappropriate time imaginable for taking away the Park from the people and handing it over to the building industries.

The efforts of the city press against encroachments on the Park, and the admirable campaign conducted by more than fifty civic organizations of all kinds against the invasion, have borne fruit; conceivably even in the mind of Mayor HYLAN. On the last point we would not be too optimistic. The need for unrelaxed vigilance by the defenders of the Park remains. In order that Mayor HYLAN may be indefinitely compelled to keep his hands off the Park by pressure of business, the business of pressure on him must continue.

One item to the credit of Mayor HYLAN must not be overlooked. So far he has not attempted to impose his anti-fresh-air ideas upon members of his official family. Police Commissioner ENRIGHT has published a civic improvement plan of his own which seems to be based on the principle of adding to the city's open spaces instead of taking away from them. Mr. ENRIGHT's proposed civic centre not only keeps out of Central Park, but, by placing itself right next to the Park, almost conveys a hint to Mr. HYLAN of the right way to beautify and enrich the city. Borough President MILLER, instead of cluttering up our open spaces, keeps bravely at work removing street obstructions. Coming from anybody else but Commissioner ENRIGHT and President MILLER, such conduct would almost certainly have been denounced as a Rockefeller conspiracy.

THE NEW IMMIGRATION RESTRICTIONS.

The new Immigration law limits the number of immigrants annually until 1927 to 161,000, and thereafter to 150,000. In addition, and over and above such temporary sojourners as travelers, business men and others, so-called non-quota immigrants may be admitted without numerical limitation. These include the unmarried children under 18 years of age and the wife of an American citizen. They also include immigrants previously admitted and returning after a temporary absence abroad. It is estimated that the women and children alone, at least for a number of years, will add another 150,000 to the number coming from Europe. Further, native-born citizens of any of the countries in the Western Hemisphere are admitted without regard to numbers. If the admissions of the last two years can be taken as a guide, at least 200,000 such persons may be expected to enter each year. During the first six months of the current immigration year, for example, 108,000 Canadians and Newfoundlanders came in and nearly 60,000 Latin-Americans. It stands to reason that except in bad years the numbers coming in from the Americas will increase in proportion to the decline in the number of Europeans. As a total result, an annual immigration of about 500,000 may be expected despite the severe restrictions of the new law.

In two respects the machinery provided by it shows a marked improvement over the old. In the first place, the immigrant visa system, by which only the number of visas may be issued for any nationality corresponding to the allotted quota, bids fair to do away with the likelihood of persons being refused admission because their quota had been filled while they were on the water. This was generally recognized as one of the worst features of the temporary legislation, and rightly drew bitter condemnation on the ground that it worked cruel hardships. In the second place, the quotas are distributed over ten months, instead of, as heretofore, over five. This should somewhat alleviate the crowding at Ellis Island and other immigrant receiving stations. Incidentally, the foolish system which classified children solely by the geographical accident of birth rather than by the nationality of the parents has been eliminated, thus putting an end to splitting up families because one or more children were born in a country where their parents were only temporarily residing.

One of the most important features of the new bill is the provision that between now and July 1, 1927, a special board shall examine into the composition of the white population of the United States as a whole, according to the 1920 census, and determine what proportion by birth or ancestry may be attributed to the different nations of Europe. When this has been estimated—and the bill itself recognizes that such an investigation can result in only a general estimate—each nation in Europe will have a quota based on the same percentage of 150,000 as the estimated number of persons of that origin in the United States bears to the entire white population. It is expected that this will preserve the quotas at about the same ratios as under the 1890 census basis, with the possible exception that the Irish and German quotas may be somewhat increased.

GERMAN MODERATES FIRM.

Chancellor MARX's resignation is a challenge by the moderate bloc in the new Reichstag to the opponents of a sincere policy of reparation fulfillment. The fortnight's bargaining that ensued after the election is apparently over. Hitherto it has been a question whether the new Government would be organized by the three Middle parties—Centrists, People's Party and Democrats—with the aid of 100 Socialists, or with the aid of 96 Nationalists. All the indications are now that it will be the first combination, the one dominant in the last Reichstag. The negotiations of the last two weeks have been profitable, if for no other reason, by the fact that they have elicited such a firm statement of policy as the reply addressed by the Middle parties to the Nationalist peace feelers:

> The [Dawes] report is a uniform and indivisible whole and must be so recognized by the other nations. The Middle parties accept it with the reservations which the experts themselves made regarding its execution. The Middle parties are united strongly to support the Government in a policy based upon such principles and to approve legal measures for carrying out this policy.

The Reichstag majority represented by this coalition is, to be sure, very feeble. It is less than half a dozen in an assembly of 472 members. But that does not give the correct picture of practical German settlement. Of the 230 men in the Reichstag who would constitute the Opposition to such a Government, more than one-third cannot be counted upon as constructive elements in any kind of government. There are 62 Communists and 32 Ludendorff-Hitlerites who are simply out to make mischief. This they may succeed in doing, but they will never succeed in governing. Moscow's followers in Germany might welcome a conflagration for their own purposes and HITLER's followers for theirs. But of the sane elements in the Reichstag the Middle parties and the Socialists constitute a two-thirds majority.

That fact will have its weight with the Nationalists. When it comes to the test that party, supposed to stand for large industrialist interests, cannot subscribe to a policy of riot and ruin. Actually there is evidence that a very important section of the industrialists is thoroughly out of sympathy with the stand taken by its official party leaders. In an uncertain situation it is courage that will have its way. While the Nationalists have been making faces over the Dawes report the moderate bloc has manfully accepted it.

FRIEND CAPPER.

Kansas farmers are beginning to recover from a spell of hard times. They consented that the State should spend $32,000,000 for a bonus to its soldiers. But many of them see no excuse for the Federal bonus. Why should they be taxed to pay the political debts of their Congressmen? Those patriots voted to override Mr. COOLIDGE's veto. Some of their constituents are making very unpleasant remarks about them and to them. Senator CAPPER, a candidate for re-election, is the nearest head to the shower of brickbats. Mr. CHARLES LAMER of Salina has been an ardent Capperite, looked after ARTHUR's fences and interests in a number of counties. The Senator sent his nomination papers to Mr. LAMER, as usual, this year. But Mr. LAMER refused, this virtuous colportage. "If you do not deem it advisable to sustain the President in his decision on the 'Bonus bill,' he telegraphed to the father of Kansas Pig Clubs, "a great many of your friends and myself think it would be useless and a waste of time to circulate your petition. If you really knew the conditions of the taxpayers of Kansas, you would cooperate with the President."

Mr. CAPPER didn't cooperate. Mr. LAMER, after canvassing many of the Senator's friends, wrote "Friend CAPPER" a very knifelike letter:

> I am returning your nomination papers. It looks as if you are trying to buy votes with our money when you support the Bonus bill far enough to override the President. * * * Quite a few Salina business men thought you probably were intending to withdraw from the party, as you have not been supporting the President in any of his major policies. * * * President COOLIDGE's policies and yours appear to be exactly opposite. I believe we should send a Senator from Kansas this Fall who would be more likely to follow the wishes of his party, and, at least, will try to cooperate on some measures with President COOLIDGE, who, we all believe, will be our next President. If all our Kansas Representatives and Senators were Democrats, President COOLIDGE really would have as much support, and would not have been handicapped by having leaders of your type in his party help swing other Senators from him.

Mr. LAMER might have added that Mr. CAPPER, having steadily fought Mr. COOLIDGE's policies, will "support" enthusiastically his nomination; is not unwilling to be the Republican candidate for Vice President; will make the Sunflowers wilt next Fall with the praises of the man he has thwarted and deserted; hopes, as many other Republican Congressmen hope, to be pulled through by Mr. COOLIDGE's strength with the people. To quite a number of Kansas Republicans this course seems too impudent and double-faced to be borne. Tonight in Topeka there will be a public meeting of protest against the action of the Kansas delegates in Congress. There is talk of candidates against Mr. CAPPER and the other erring Congressmen. Many Republicans are said to be "boiling mad." They see the Republican dilemma. To approve COOLIDGE is to blame the Kansas Congressmen; to praise the Congressmen is to blame the President. It is like enough that Senator CAPPER will be renominated; but against him, against the other Congressmen, the Kansas Republicans who believe in COOLIDGE will have their remedy next November.

HONORING DR. ETTINGER.

The testimonial dinner to Dr. ETTINGER, under the auspices of ten or more civic and educational organizations, was an indication of the real feeling of the citizens of New York toward him. As was brought out, notably in the speech of Dr. ALBERT SHIELS, there are two types of civic interpretation, one being that represented in the failure to reappoint him, the other in this spontaneous expression of approval of his service, without personal attack upon those who prevented its continuance.

Under the first type of civic interpretation, an official owes his loyal service "to a chief or groups of chiefs in virtue of their benevolence"—a conception as old as the feudal system. The other—a loyalty requiring as great devotion but a greater imagination—is the loyalty to a cause. The latter is more difficult to give and its rewards are often of a less tangible sort. Dr. ETTINGER has lost the reward which a chief can give for personal loyalty. He has, however, won the reward which loyalty to the cause of those whose education was entrusted to his guidance has to give. This reward is not all articulate. It is given unspoken from thousands of homes and by those who loyally served the cause with him.

The Commissioner of Education of the State of New York, Dr. GRAVES, gave to Dr. ETTINGER a certificate of character which is as a diploma of highest recognition: "Conspicuous among all school administrators for his wisdom and courage, he has left a permanent impress upon the record of public education in the greatest city of the Union." The regret is that one receiving such commendation could not have been continued in the office in which he served the people of the city so "honestly and valiantly."

DIVIDING JOINT RAILWAY RATES.

The Abilene & Southern Railway in 1921 earned $62,855 balance before fixed charges, paid dividends of $5,250 and added $35,486 to profit and loss. Not a strong road. But there are others weaker. On Monday the Supreme Court sustained the principle of the Transportation act empowering the Interstate Commerce Commission to divide the rates collected jointly in such a manner as to make the stronger roads contribute to the support of the weaker, in this case the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient. But while the court sustained the principle, it annulled the order of the commission on appeal of the Abilene road on questions of procedure.

The error of the commission lay in not supporting its decision in the manner of the New England division of rate cases. The latter illustrates the importance of the principle which the Abilene case reaffirms. The commission based its decision on the annual reports of the railways, without specifying the portions which were acted upon. It also pleaded that there were in the record of the case exhibits filed by the railways justifying its action. But the court thought that the railways were not given sufficient notice of the evidence which confronted them when the Interstate Commission announced its decision.

It happens that on the same day when the court made this decision there was a hearing in this city contesting the New England division case. That added 15 per cent. to the New England roads in cases in which their share of the joint rate was less than 50 per cent. The Supreme Court sustained the principle, but added that the details were open to question. The commission reopened its decision on the appeal of several railways last month. Some railways thought that they were entitled to similar relief. Other companies pleaded that they were losing too much money by the division. Others thought that the division ought not to be altered to their disadvantage until the lawful return had been reached.

The importance of these division cases lies in their bearing on the consolidation of all railways into a few large systems. But the strong roads regard the division of rates as a method of sharing poverty. No one will contest the opinion of the court of last resort in sustaining the principle of equitable division of joint earnings. But final determination of what is equitable division awaits inquiry for hundreds of railways, on millions of rates, at or about the Greek Kalends. Consolidation by agreement may prove easier and quicker than procedure by confiscation.

VICTOR HERBERT.

Mr. HERBERT had the good fortune to be loved both as man and composer. His personal geniality, wit and uncommon talent for friendship bound to him large groups of admirers, while no American writer of music was ever so popular as he with his happy gift for melody. VICTOR HERBERT was no mere improvisateur. He won his way to wide success by diligent training and hard work. As a musician himself, playing in more than one orchestra, and as a conductor, he acquired an unusual knowledge of instrumentation. It has been remarked that his light operas come off as well from the reduced orchestra of a small theatre as from the full band of more pretentious performances. This was only one proof of his mastery of technique. Some musical composers are admired in an awesome way for the grandeur of their creations, or are sympathized with for the tragedy of their personal experiences. Different from these, VICTOR HERBERT won affection from those privileged to know him, and an immense liking from all into whose lives he brought the gayety of his music and of his songs.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

She Jested, but She Meant It.

Lady ASTOR continues to add to the gayety of nations as well as to that of the British Parliament. She is becoming a maker of phrases that stick in the memory, perhaps her most brilliant achievement in that line having been her statement, this week, in the course of a debate on child labor, that some of the extreme members on the side of the present Government "wanted to get to heaven without praying, and to get the best of this world without paying."

Thereby she hit her political opponents, the Communists and Socialists, as with both barrels of her shotgun, for those to whom she referred certainly show both of the aspirations mentioned, though their ideas of heaven are much different from her own. That they want to get the best of this world without paying they hardly would deny, though of course they would talk at length about both the definition of paying and the obligation to pay.

The provision in the bill which excited this lively discussion made fourteen the age at which children, if unemployed, were to come into the category of adults without work, thus receiving Government doles. One would expect this to be defended only by parents eager to exploit the earning capacity of children at the earliest possible moment and in entire disregard of their welfare either of mind or body. It would take children out of school with education hardly begun and condemn them, or most of them, for life to ill-remunerated toil.

Why a Minister of Labor under a Premier like RAMSAY MACDONALD favored that is incomprehensible, but it gave Lady ASTOR a fine opportunity for the exercise of her powers of sarcasm and ridicule and a chance to say that the grinding capitalists of other days had been no more indifferent to the interests of childhood.

Magazines Desert This City.

More reasons than one underlie and explain what has come to be the tendency of magazine publishers to move their producing plants—what may be called the manufacturing end of their business—not only out of New York City but a long way out of it. Standing first, probably, in their minds among the advantages to be secured by this change is that of getting improved labor conditions—improved from the publishers' point of view, and meaning, in many cases, the substitution of the open for the closed shop. Whether that will be a permanent alteration remains to be seen, though it is not obvious that workers in small towns will long remain indifferent to the powers that unionism gives them.

Removal toward the interior counts for not a little to a magazine in the matter of postage, as it gives access to more near zones than does a shop on the edge of the continent. It is probable, also, that the small towns, or some of them, in eagerness to gain enlarged population and business have offered tax favors, for at least a time.

One would think that there would be disadvantages counterbalancing some of these advantages, real or hoped, in the inconveniences of operation due to the separation by considerable distances of the editorial and the publishing ends of a magazine. Of course, monthly publications will not feel that to any such degree as a newspaper or a weekly. Certainly, several magazines that have been running in this divided way for years have shown no ill effects of it.

People who think that steady and endless increase of population is essential to a city's prosperity may make moan over the loss of employment here and the consequent removal hence of several thousand skilled workers. Others, who hold that New York City already is too big for the transportation and other facilities that possibly can be given to it, will view the situation with equanimity and hope that the process may continue in other industries that can be carried on just as well outside of New York as in it.

Confidently Hopes for Victory.

"We are going to conquer cancer and rid the world of it," declared Dr. CHARLES H. MAYO this week at the opening of the New York City Cancer Institute. He spoke with authority for the medical profession, of which he and his brother are such brilliant representatives, and his statement therefore may be taken with confidence, at least as expressing the belief of a man who knows his subject as well as does any man alive. Further statements of his, however, and especially the one that he did not know whether the victory over cancer would be won by means of a serum or by the use of radium and the X-rays, hint that as yet he and the other workers in this field are in the realm of hope and expectation rather than in that of certainty.

His saying that already more than 80 per cent. of cancers are curable if taken in time—that 60 per cent. of them are cured when so taken—only repeated what the surgeons long have said as to the utility of the knife, promptly used. And it is true that the public has learned much in recent years as to the need of haste in resort to treatment at the first sign or suspicion of cancer, but lamentably many still postpone action till too late. They know that death is the penalty of delay, and yet they wait until denial no longer is possible, even by themselves.

THE VANDAL IN THE PARK.

Commissioner Gallatin Tells What Could Be Done If He Were Barred.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Hospitable Gardens" is the title of a most graceful editorial that appeared in your issue of Sunday. And to think that Central Park, the people's own garden, could be as beautiful as those you describe, did the people but wish it and allow it! Even in its present condition it is a spot of exquisite beauty. Lakes and wild forests, rocks and rills, prairies and bloom, all are here to make it, as you quote Cardinal Newman as saying, "A place of spiritual repose, stillness, peace, refreshment, delight."

At this season of the year, before the city's all-consuming heat has dried its leaves and parched its lawns, it is the very embodiment of Spring. What peace and joy it brings to thousands! How many prayers arise to nature's God from the hearts of those who never pray, provoked by its softening appeal!

We also have our rock gardens and we have sparkling pools embedded in moss and surrounded by azaleas of all hues. The forsythia and the cherry blossom have gone, so have the jonquil and narcissus, but we still have the tulip with us, and the other flowers will show their dear faces in due season.

Yet how much more beautiful might all this be if it were true of the people's garden as you say it is in the private garden, that "a vandal visiting a garden is unthinkable. If one in disguise slips in, he should be at once outlawed, the mark of Cain put upon him and the garden know him no more."

"Give the Park Department the signet wherewith the mark of Cain may be impressed on the vandal's low brow, and give it the power to exile the vandal forever, and our Central Park will in a few years be itself again, with few rivals and no peers.

"Hope springs eternal in the human breast," so let us hope for better things; and, besides, the spirit of Spring tempts me to admit that the vandals are few in number, though they do incalculable damage.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

After a man has been convicted and sent to prison we usually forget about him, thinking that by some miraculous process he will be returned to society a better man. The fact is that, unless some one shows kindness to him and helps him to regain faith in himself and in others, it is likely that he will come out of his experience a weaker man. Prison life is barren, monotonous and depressing; the beneficial influence of relatives and friends is cut off and therefore the unfoldment of the latent good does not take place. A cheerful and encouraging letter received in such surroundings is often very helpful.

The O. E. Library League, 1,207 Q Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., aims to put prisoners in touch with persons who will write to them. The league has ten years of existence. Dr. H. N. Stokes, its founder, will gladly give further information to any interested person.

ROUGHAGE.

Not only food fine-fibred, well prepared,
But roughage, too, men need, to keep them fit.
So say the wise ones, doctors and the like.
And so it is with Life—the things we hate,
Discomfort, criticism, cruel thrusts
From those whom we repel, or irritate—
The sharp impact of mordant irony,
The nagging prick of injured self-esteem,
The long, slow agony of bitter grief—
These be the "roughage" of our spirits' food!
Yet look about you: when you need a friend,
Some soul to turn to—patient, tender, wise—
To soothe your pain, to help your unsuccess,
You do not seek the rich, the fortunate,
The man or woman soft from silken ease,
The sheltered girl, as yet unscarred by fate,
The mother who has never faced grim Fear,
The man whose fortune was inherited,
The craftsman who has only known success,
The witty, sharp-tongued, bland Sophisticate.
But rather you evade all these, and turn
To one who knows the face of gray Defeat,
Yet still holds steadfast—to that man who shows
By graying hair and sudden, gallant smile
That he, too, dreamed of leafy Arcady
The while he trod the dusty streets of pain.
The secret is—we learn it rather late—
That these streets reach a gate called "beautiful,"
Through which men pass to pity—and to love!

ELIZABETH NEWPORT HEPBURN.

PEPPER AFFRONT TO BRITAIN

Barring of Dominions Nullifies World Court Proposal, It Is Said.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The editorial article "Peppercorn Politics" in today's TIMES makes some just and witty comments on Senator Pepper's latest improved device for avoiding the appearance while maintaining the substance of opposition to American entrance into the Permanent Court of International Justice. But the most significant feature of his new plan, as reported in THE TIMES of May 23, has not, I think, been fully pointed out. One of his proposed amendments to the statute of the existing court provides that in the two bodies which are to elect the Judges "not more than one vote shall be cast in either Assembly or Council by the British Empire and the States included therein. This is an almost infallible means of insuring that the new proposal shall come to naught; it is inconceivable that any one sincerely desirous of bringing about American membership in any practicable World Court should insert such a proviso. It amounts to the demand that before the Assembly of the League (under another name) sits with American participation, as a body to elect Judges the delegates of Australia, Canada, India, Ireland, New Zealand and South Africa shall be excluded.

It is scarcely imaginable that Great Britain would ever consent to such an affront to the six other great States composing the British Commonwealth of nations, or that these States themselves would accept such exclusion; and the clause can therefore be construed not only as intended to keep us out of the Court, but to transfer to the British Government the apparent onus of keeping us out.

The United States has, of course, no reason whatever for wishing the exclusion of the British dominions from these electoral bodies. In the case of the League itself, which is concerned with questions of policy, a colorable argument can be offered for giving the British Empire but one vote. Yet not even France, at a time when her policy and that of Britain were most opposed, thought it needful or reasonable to make such a demand. But the Assembly, when sitting purely as an electoral commission, has no function except to choose the most competent and eminent jurists available, from a limited panel nominated by the national groups of Judges in The Hague Court of Arbitration, having in mind (Article 9 of the statute) the requirement that "the whole body should represent the main forms of civilisation and the principal legal systems of the world."

It would be an absurdity which no one is likely openly to espouse to maintain that in a body of fifty-five or more members the casting of votes by delegates from Canada, Australia, Ireland, &c., would tend to the election of less able, less fair or less representative Judges. If the inclusion of such delegates made any difference at all it would be a difference wholly desirable, from the American point of view; it would mean that a slightly greater proportion of the electors would be persons accustomed to our own legal traditions and standards.

When a nominal proposal to adhere to the World Court is accompanied by a stipulation which this country has no reasonable interest in making—but which is virtually certain of rejection by Great Britain and other members of the League—the American public can hardly fail to draw the natural inference as to the purposes of the proponents of the scheme.

LEADERSHIP OF TAMMANY.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In his address at the conference of representatives of the different bar associations of Greater New York, called to consider plans for the selection of a higher type of judicial candidate, Martin Conboy made the following statement:

> During the past fortnight we have, in this city, witnessed one of the most heinous attempts to debase the bench that ever has taken place. The leader of a political organization died and a new leader was being sought. The leaders of the party sought to drag from the bench one of the most capable Judges that ever sat on it, in order that he might lead a mere political party. Great pressure was brought to bear on this man. Even the Chief Executive of this State, who should know better, attempted to get him to serve.

I am frankly amazed at this expression. It discloses such a narrow, legalistic and really unwarranted conception of conduct which should properly be examined from a broad, utilitarian viewpoint. The measure of ultimate benefit to the electorate should be the real test. Applying that test to the facts, the following is disclosed:

Tammany Hall is the dominant political organization in the City of New York. It has been reviled and condemned "since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary" for its purposes, its methods, its leadership. It has just lost by death a leader who, now that he has gone to his last reward, is recognized even by the most censorious of his critics as one who did much to elevate the political standards of the organization.

Animated by the spirit which Mr. Murphy had developed and fostered, the leaders "sought to drag from the bench one of the most capable Judges that ever sat on it," in the person of Surrogate Foley, by offering him the leadership of the party in the City of New York.

The press, the people, with a unanimity rarely observed in the matter of comment upon the performances of political organizations, warmly applauded the choice of the leaders. Unfortunately, but for reasons which every one has recognized as wholly justifiable, Surrogate Foley declined the honor, and the bench was the gainer by that circumstance.

But let us assume that he had accepted the leadership. Will any one familiar with Surrogate Foley's career suggest that the standards of Tammany Hall would not, by that circumstance, have been materially improved? Who will question that the quality of the candidates to be placed in nomination by Tammany Hall in future campaigns, especially for judicial office, would not have been raised to a higher level, with the resulting consequence that the community at large would have benefited materially through their election to office? Wherefore, instead of one able jurist being lost to the public service by his selection as leader, we would have, through his intelligent and experienced guidance, many able jurists and a higher standard of public official and public service generally.

I can recall no circumstance in recent political history where the motives or conduct of a political organization were less censurable, or rather, more praiseworthy, than in this, and I feel that Mr. Conboy's known sense of fairness will, upon reflection, prompt him to admit that his criticism was unwarrantably severe, even unjustified.

CONFUSION ON CURRENCY.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your leading editorial this morning you write in reference to the Dawes report: "The sudden controversy over the relative merits of the pound sterling and the dollar as a measure of value for other markets has arisen from a series of actions or suggestions whose authors were probably not thinking of that question at all."

Your editorial added:

> "So far as regards the fixing of the redemption value for notes of the new German bank, the Council's [Advisory Council of the Federal Reserve] reasoning is in the abstract incontrovertible. The dollar is worth its face in gold; the pound sterling is still depreciated something like 10 per cent. Strictly speaking, therefore, a German sterling bank would not be a 'gold bank' and redemption of its notes in sterling would not be gold redemption."

In this respect you are absolutely right, as long as paper currency, and not gold, is meant by the word "sterling."

The fundamental principle upon which standard money is based does not seem to be generally understood, judging by the amazing ambiguity of words and terms used by practically all writers on that and related subjects. It appears as if it is absolutely impracticable for them to use a word or a term meaning money that is susceptible of but one precise meaning.

Take the sovereign, or pound sterling, for example. The act of Parliament of June, 1816, says, in effect, that twenty pounds troy of standard gold shall be divided into 934½ pieces, each of which shall be a sovereign or pound sterling; therefore a sovereign or pound sterling is 123.274 grains of British standard gold, which is 916 2-3 thousandths fine; consequently the sovereign or pound sterling contains 113.0616 grains of pure gold. Nothing else is a sovereign or pound sterling according to that act of Parliament. That and that alone is the British unit of exchange value.

But if the British Government has found it to be desirable or necessary to use its credit in a form of paper currency as a substitute for gold, it is regrettable in the interest of clarity of expression and definiteness of meaning that another word than sterling or another term than pound sterling has not been devised for use when the paper substitute for gold is meant; and that is particularly true when economists engage in discussing such a matter as the Dawes report.

Similarly, the act of the United States Congress of March 14, 1900, says, among other things, that "the dollar consisting of twenty-five and eight-tenths grains of gold nine-tenths fine * * * shall be the standard unit of value." That act doesn't say indefinitely a dollar; on the contrary, it says very definitely the dollar. Consequently, in accordance with our present law, there is but one real dollar of the United States today, and that one is 25.8 grains of standard gold, which contains 23.22 grains of pure gold.

Again, the franc adopted at Genoa in December, 1921, "on which the budget of the League of Nations is to be calculated," consists of 4.9761784+ grains of standard gold—nine-tenths fine—or 4.48084+ grains of pure gold. Paper francs are being used as substitutes, but the only real League of Nations franc is a certain weight of a particular metal—gold—nothing more and nothing less.

And just so long as such words as "pound sterling" or "sterling" or "dollar" or "franc" are used unqualifiedly to mean indefinitely either certain weights of a particular metal or substitutes confusion of meaning will exist.

Hence, in the interest of precision in the use of words when one is discussing important topics, it may be said that the dollar is worth its face in gold because the dollar is 23.22 grains of pure gold; also, our five different kinds of paper dollars—neglecting our gold certificates and silver certificates—are each worth its face value because of the reserves in gold and other commodities that are behind them and also because of the ability of our Government, in the opinion of the merchants of the world, to collect sufficient taxes from us to keep them good. Whereas the "depreciated" pound sterling is the paper substitute for the metal pound sterling, and such paper substitute is still depreciated because the commercial world is still somewhat apprehensive in regard to the outcome of the present attempts to settle the political and economic affairs of Europe.

Women and Economics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is indeed a pity, as Mrs. Beals says in THE TIMES of May 18, that women, now that they have been given the vote—at least, all women who have leisure and independence—should not have hastened to make themselves intelligent voters. And, as she very justly points out, there is no such sure process for making yourself intelligent as the study of economics. It is also a subject of extreme interest; far from being cut and dried, as, for instance, logic is supposed to be. Plenty of its doctrines are still under debate, and hence any thinking that one can do about them will be of the nature of what the psychologist calls real thinking instead of "reproductive" thinking. Economics is not everything, but it furnishes an indispensable groundwork and training for further studies in government.

It has been a fad of mine to form clubs among women and girls for the study of economics—clubs with a real teacher (a university man or woman), a real book, and involving real work. I can testify to the fact that the women have found the subject immensely interesting, as well as to the fact that they have proved themselves to be very keen partisipants in the discussions that are sure to arise.

The League of Women Voters could do no more important, and surely no more fundamental, work in persuading women to become intelligent voters than by forming, on a large scale, clubs for the study of economics. And frequently (if my experience is typical) husbands will be found borrowing their wives' books on this subject, and even by this means adding to their own native intelligence.

Pension of Soldier's Widow.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I want to protest against your editorial on the President's veto of the Burnum pension bill. In it the assertion was made that the "veterans of the Civil and Spanish Wars and their dependents were already amply provided for by the Government."

Now, I am the widow of an officer of the regular army, a graduate of West Point and a veteran of both the Civil and Spanish Wars. He served through three years of the former war, having graduated in 1863, and was constantly on active service till his death in October, 1900, the result of disease contracted in the tropics during the Spanish War. My pension is $50 a month—the highest pension paid to the widow of any officer, whatever his rank, unless by special act of Congress. I have some private means and have no one dependent on me; but the pension would be the same if I were in other respects penniless and however great were my responsibilities. The widows of officers of less rank have even less. Do you consider this an "ample provision"?

Nevertheless I shall vote (as Mr. Coolidge) my previous admiration for him rather increased by his stanch attitude toward the sullying Senate.

BAPTIST ASSAILS COLLEGES.

Dr. Riley Lists Harvard, Princeton and Rochester With 'Hosts of Hell.'

MILWAUKEE, May 27.—The majority of American schools are lost to God and the Gospel, and today are the seats of unsound teaching and the prolific mothers of Modernist preaching, all because Satan is ever busy, according to the Rev. Dr. W. B. Riley of Minneapolis, who spoke here today before the Baptist Bible Union, a Fundamentalist organization.

Schools named by Dr. Riley as having deviated from the course of orthodox teaching are: Harvard, Princeton, Rochester, Andover and Union Theological Seminaries. Among others, falling in line, Dr. Riley said, were Crozer and Newton Seminaries, Colgate College, Brown and Colgate Universities and the University of Chicago.

"When today you call the roll of these schools you name the captains of the hosts of Hell who marshal their forces to fight Christ, the Rock, the Deity of Christ, the blood atonement and every Christian fundamental," Dr. Riley declared.

Speaking of what he termed the Modernist attack upon fundamentals, he said that the Baptist denomination was passing through one of "those spasms of doubt to which the Church of God has been subjected since its birth."

AARON HOFFMAN DIES; PROLIFIC PLAYWRIGHT

Aaron Hoffman, one of the most prolific writers for the American stage, author of a score of plays and countless vaudeville sketches, died yesterday afternoon at his residence, 404 Riverside Drive, after a week's illness. He was 48 years old. His widow, Minna Z. Hoffman, and a daughter, Phyllis, survive. Services will be held Friday afternoon at the Funeral Church, Broadway and Sixty-sixth Street.

A native of St. Louis, Mr. Hoffman spent his youth in Chicago, and at 21 came to this city to try his hand at playwriting. He at once showed a natural gift for the theatre and his services were soon in demand for all sorts of productions. Among his longer works of this early period were a series of vehicles for the Rogers Brothers, nearly all of them successes. Many will recall, also, his "Belle of Avenue A," in which Effie Fay appeared. For Yorke and Adams, the Western favorites, he supplied three plays. In recent years his writings have been more ambitious, the best known being "Friendly Enemies," in which Samuel Shipman collaborated. This appeared during the early part of the war and earned a long run, Sam Bernard and Louis Mann acting the German-Americans who were finally brought to view the war in the same light. "Welcome Stranger" was a Hoffman success of entirely his making. "Two Blocks Away," in which Barney Bernard was the star, "Give and Take" and "The Good Old Days" also came from his pen. At the time of his death his latest play, "Good For Nothing Jones," was being rehearsed by Al Woods.

It has been said that few vaudeville programs are altogether lacking in Hoffman material. Among the famous stars of the two-a-day who have used monologues or sketches by him were the late Cliff Gordon, Lew Dockstader, Joe Welch, Nora Bayes, Henry Lewis, Sam Mann, Bobby North and Alexander Carr. He was a member of the Lambs and Friars Clubs.

THREE NATIONS SEEK 'DIABOLICAL RAY'

France and Britain Make Offers and America Is Reported Interested.

HE REJECTS BRITISH OFFER

LONDON EXPERTS SKEPTICAL

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 27.—H. Grindell Matthews and his "Diabolical Ray" went off to Paris this morning by airplane. The Air Ministry issued tonight a communiqué explaining that it was "willing to consider the invention if Matthews would give it an opportunity to investigate its real potentialities," and an injunction suit was started against him to prevent his selling his ideas without the consent of certain individuals, who claim a 52 per cent. financial interest in them.

These were some of the developments today in the curious story of Grindell Matthews and his ray. The attitude of the press toward it differs greatly. Some newspapers, like The London Times, record it as briefly as possible, while other newspaper, like The Daily Mail, feature it as the most important event of the day.

The developments of today began by Grindell Matthews refusing the offer the Government made to him as a result of the experiments witnessed by its experts yesterday. It had promised him £1,000 down provided he succeeded in putting out of business with his ray a small motor engine which the experts would supply and on the condition that he allowed the Government fourteen days to carry on with him financial negotiations for the purchase and development of the invention.

These terms Grindell Matthews considered unsatisfactory and decided at once to leave for Paris by airplane. Before starting he characterized the Government's offer as absurd, and asserted that the demonstration he gave yesterday was exhaustive and that as a patriotic Briton he was greatly disappointed that the British Government would not avail itself of his invention. He protested it was impossible for him as a poor man to let the contract with Chantiers du Rhode, a French company, slip by. He could not afford, he said, to fail. But he added that there still was time for the British Government to better its offer, as he would not close any deal with the French firm till Friday.

Almost immediately after Mr. Matthews had left his laboratory for the air terminus H. E. Winperis, acting director of the Scientific Research Department of the Air Ministry, and Wing Commander Edwards arrived at the shop, came not to amend the Government's offer but simply to clear up one or two points concerning Monday's experiments. They saw Captain Edwards, Matthews's assistant, the result that Edwards left by the afternoon boat train to see the inventor in Paris.

Attempt to Serve Writ.

Matthews was missed also by Colonel G. S. Brighten, a solicitor, who was acting for E. C. G. Gubbins. Just after his airplane had left an automobile dashed up to the airdrome with Brighten and Gubbins. They wished to serve on him an injunction for temporary injunction against him in the interest of Gubbins and two other men on the ground that they possessed a 52 per cent. interest in the ray and desired to restrain him from using it while his secret was their concern without their consent. They had already appeared before Justice Creer and obtained an interim injunction against Matthews to this effect. It is returnable Friday and the Chantiers du Rhodes is warned against completing any contract with Matthews meanwhile.

Gubbins declared tonight that his action was taken partly because he was interested in holding the "bag," in providing the money for Matthew's work and partly because as a loyal Britisher he was loath to see the ray secret going to any other nation. Ht at any rate has a great belief in its possibilities, and he wishes to see any benefits resulting from it secured by Great Britain.

Air Ministry Is Skeptical.

The Air Ministry, though very reticent, seems much more skeptical. Although it has offered Matthews a considerable sum for the right to test his invention, its attitude seems to be based on three considerations:

First, it is by no means certain that Matthews will tell if anything it does not know. It has already arranged to experiment with a discovery on much the same lines by Dr. A. Wall of Sheffield University, and it has been conducting its own investigations with rays at the Government experimental laboratory for some time past.

Secondly, it is quite possible that, even if the Matthews ray does work, he says, it can be rendered of no practical use by some method of insulation.

Thirdly, so much progress has lately been made toward the development of engines using heavy oil that it is possible that methods of stopping airplanes by destroying the magnetos will be out of date because no more magnetos will be in use.

These considerations made the Ministry glow in promising large rewards to inventors until it is satisfied that they have really something of value to sell, and the communiqué issued tonight suggests that its experts are not yet satisfied. The communiqué explains that the Ministry's relations with Matthews began so long ago as February and that it then gave him an opportunity to prove the value of his invention. As for the test yesterday, it was not conclusive. It consisted in lighting an "osglim" electric lamp and in stopping at will a small motor cycle engine from a distance of about fifteen yards. The communiqué goes on:

"The demonstration was carried out in the inventor's laboratory, all apparatus being provided and arranged by him. Department representatives were shown nothing which would lead them to credit the statements which have appeared in the press as to the possibilities of the invention, and the conditions under which the demonstration was made by Matthews were such that it was not possible to form any definite opinion as to the value of the device."

Consequently the experts asked Mr. Matthews if he would undertake immediately the stoppage of a small petrol motor such as used in an ordinary motorcycle which would be provided by the Government. No request was made on him for any revelation as to the method of producing or the nature of the rays, and he was promised £1,000 down if he succeeded in fulfilling the test. The communiqué ends by remarking, "Grindell Matthews has refused this offer and it is understood he has left the country."

There the matter stands at the moment, and it is understood that the Ministry considers the next move rests with Matthews.

Birkenhead Doubts Claims.

Lord Birkenhead writing to The London Times expresses doubts regarding the value of the so-called diabolical ray.

"When one reads of all the powers attributed to this remarkable ray," he says, "one becomes lost in admiration of the diverse genius of its inventor."

"It is a poignant reflection that all these incredible benefits are denied to an unworthy country because its purblind authorities refuse to put a considerable sum at the inventor's disposal. This gentleman must indeed deplore the publicity which even his reticence has been unable entirely to avoid."

"Ray is, of course, a loose term applied sometimes to a stream of particles, at others to a stream of energy. The latter type has been explored and its characteristics have been determined from one end of the scale to the other. Even beyond the region directly investigated enough is known even to thirty-nine laymen to enable them to exclude anything resembling the alleged death ray. Streams of particles are, I believe, equally familiar to science, and while it is rash for a layman to dogmatize on such a subject, I question with great skepticism whether any competent physicist would seriously consider that they would, in any circumstances conceivable to science, possess properties claimed for the ray in the daily press.

"Physics, after all, is, I believe, an exact and also an exacting science. That an unknown amateur should stumble upon a shock-making discovery is about as likely as that a child of 5 should defeat either the champion chess player or Mlle. Lenglen. Without proof of a most rigid character it is absurd for business men under the contingency seriously, and I myself most strongly support the views of those who insist upon the fullest scientific voucher before handing over public money to a scheme so fantastic."

Paris Movements Kept Secret.

Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, May 27.—The first move in the three-cornered international auction sale for what may be war's deadliest weapon was made in Paris today with the arrival of Professor Grindell Matthews, inventor of the diabolical death ray, from London by airplane. Two special representatives of Great Britain's War Office, hot on his trail, reached Paris late this afternoon, while M. Royer, French scientist, seeking to secure the ray for France, came on the 9:40 o'clock train from Lyons. It was revealed that the United States had entered the race to secure the death-dealing invention when United States Navy Department experts spent a busy day trying to get in touch with the inventor.

Mr. Matthews surrounded his whereabouts and movements with a mysterious veil of secrecy, which is significant in contrast with the former open and free attitude toward the press or any one else. Avoiding every one attempting to see him, Mr. Matthews spent the afternoon closeted with lawyers in their office in Boulevard Haussmann, breaking all appointments. At the Grand Hotel, where Mr. Matthews had not registered, but where he is known to be stopping, the inventor's activities were kept in the dark.

It is reported that a French company, Chantier du Rhone, with Government backing, has offered Mr. Matthews a 75 per cent. partnership in a French corporation for a temporary injunction against him in the interest of Gubbins and two other men on the ground that they possessed a 52 per cent. interest in the ray and desired to restrain him from using it while his secret was their concern without their consent. They had already appeared before Justice Creer and obtained an interim injunction against Matthews to this effect. It is returnable Friday and the Chantiers du Rhone is warned against completing any contract with Matthews meanwhile.

Girl 15 Too Young for Duties Of a Housewife, Court Rules

Justice Boyle, presiding in the Jamaica Children's Court, decided yesterday that Lena Standford, 15-year-old bride, was incapable of assuming the responsibilities of a housewife and declared that what she needed was strict discipline and care. Accordingly, he sent her to St. Germain's Home, Peekskill.

Lena and Thomas Stanford were married on Jan. 20. The girl was then 14 years old. A month ago Stanford complained that his wife was "a disorderly child." He said that she often absented herself from their home in Farmers Avenue, Springfield, L. I., and that she failed to perform the usual duties of a housewife. Lena told the court that she was forced into marrying Standford by her mother and that she was unable to take charge of a home and prepare meals. But she promised to try, declaring that she loved her husband. So the court paroled her. All went well for a week. Then the young wife disappeared again. A few days ago a policeman found her and another runaway girl in a bungalow a few miles from Springfield.

'AVENUE OF STATES' A CONVENTION PLAN

WHALEN TELLS OF FEATURE

Something of how New York City is going to entertain its guests during the Democratic National Convention was explained yesterday by Commissioner Grover A. Whalen, Vice Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Reception to Distinguished Guests, in an appeal to the Board of Aldermen for permission to spend the $200,000 appropriated by the city without the delay that would be caused by public letting.

Mr. Whalen said every cent would be explained in vouchers that would have to be signed by Controller Craig and himself. With this explanation the board granted the request by a vote of 67 to 1, Alderman Bruce M. Falconer, Republican, voting in the negative.

Fifth Avenue, from Sixtieth Street to Washington Square, will be transformed into the "Avenue of the States" during the convention period, Mr. Whalen explained. Each block will bear the name of a State, and will be decorated with the flag, seal and other insignia emblematic of that particular State. Many thousand incandescent lights will be installed to illuminate the avenue by night.

Some Entertainments Planned.

Some of the entertainment features already planned by the city include a dinner to the delegates and other visitors, a garden party in Washington Square and outings for the women visitors under the direction of the Mayor's Committee of Women, of which Mrs. Hylan is Chairman. Mr. Whalen said the city also would arrange for trips to Coney Island, West Point and other near-by places of interest.

Units from the army, navy and the United States Military Academy at West Point will participate in the monster parade on June 23, the day preceding the opening of the convention, in which the men of the three uniformed city departments, Police, Fire and Street Cleaning, will participate. Also, about fifty airplanes will fly over the column as it marches in Fifth Avenue.

Alderman Falconer caused a laugh when he said that $25,000 would be enough to entertain the visiting Democrats. Alderman George U. Harvey, Republican, of Queens, asked how much money Cleveland had appropriated to entertain the Republican National Convention.

"Cleveland has made New York look like a 'piker' by appropriating $200,000," Mr. Whalen replied.

"But what's the Democratic National Convention going to do for the Board of Aldermen?" asked Alderman Peter J. McGuinness, Democrat, of Queens. "Do we get in?"

After the laughter had subsided, Mr. Whalen promised to see that the Aldermen received invitations to the entertainments directed by the Mayor's committee.

Contract for Badges Awarded.

The contract for the official convention badges to be worn by members of local committees was awarded yesterday to Whitehead & Hoag by a subcommittee of the New York Convention Committee consisting of Morgan J. O'Brien, Thomas Thacher, Ralph Pulitzer and John R. Young. The badges will be worn by the members of the General Committee, who contributed the money necessary to get the convention here, and the members of the General Entertainment Committee, which has been decentralized into fifty-four subcommittees. Each badge will indicate the yearer's official position and bear his or her name.

Plans for the entertainment of the delegates and alternates from Tennessee were discussed at a luncheon of the Tennessee Society at the Bankers' Club. The society, of which R. V. Jones is President, and Atchison Kellogg Secretary, will have a theatre party for the women and, for the entire delegation, a dinner, at which Cordell Hull, Democratic National Chairman, who is a Tennessean, will be the guest of honor. It was suggested that Bishop Thomas F. Gallor of the Diocese of Tennessee might be invited to make the opening prayer.

Mayor Peter E. Dever of Chicago has accepted the invitation to attend a dinner to be given by the Woburn Club to the New England delegates in the rooms of the Transportation Club in the Hotel Biltmore during the convention. Mayor Dever informed the club he will arrive here on June 23 and will stop at the Waldorf-Astoria. The Illinois delegation is scheduled to arrive on June 22 and will stop at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

M'ADOO DENOUNCES PLUTO-DEMOCRACY

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 27.—Only the Democratic Party is capable, of the impartial administration of justice, stated William G. McAdoo in an interview published today in The Yale Daily News.

"The growing influence of money and materialism, with all of the sordid influences that follow in their train, is lowering the tone and quality of American citizenship to the grave imperilment of the Republic," said Mr. McAdoo. "It is the influence of money which has brought upon us the evils of pluto-democracy.

"The Democratic Party is the one political party uncontaminated by high finance, big business and monopoly, capable of destroying pluto-democracy and of restoring militant and progressive democracy with all of its force and power to serve the genuine interests of the American people. The Democratic Party is the one political party capable of proving that upon the impartial administration of justice alone prosperity, welfare and happiness can securely rest.

"Christian democracy under Woodrow Wilson stood for world peace, for disarmament, for cooperation between nations to advance the interests of humanity and bring new hope to the peoples of the world.

"Pluto-democracy under Harding and Coolidge stands for isolation, materialism, selfishness, indifference to world peace and to the interests of humanity throughout the world.

"Under the Christian democracy of Woodrow Wilson this nation was elevated to new heights of morality and righteousness and the people enjoyed unparalleled prosperity.

"Under the pluto-democracy of Harding and Coolidge the nation has regressed. Not one step for social justice has been taken. Not one measure for the benefit of all the people has been passed. Privilege has held away and is the sole beneficiary of the two leading measures enacted under this Administration, the Revenue act of 1921 and the Fordney-McCumber Tariff law. Prosperity has not been equally diffused. It has been a prosperity of classes and not of the masses. Agriculture has been prostrated and farm prosperity destroyed by unwise laws and policies. Amazing corruption and scandals abound, impairing the confidence of the people in the integrity of the Administration and in the soundness of our institutions. Discontent and unrest, widespread and deep, prevail throughout the country. This pluto-democracy has achieved in the short space of three years."

BOB-HAIRED GIRL IN LINE-UP

Because of her bobbed hair, Peggy Martin, 21 years old, of 86 Catharine Street, will appear in the line-up at Police Headquarters this morning. She was arrested last night with Rolando Pietrillo, 19, at 170 Madison Street, both being charged with having arms, narcotics and burglary tools. Police said various Brooklynites have recently reported they have fallen foul of another bob-haired bandit, and this morning they will take a look at Peggy Martin.

When Acting Captain Willemse and Detectives Grady and O'Leary entered the Madison Street apartment last night they said young Pietrillo leaped for a bed. Grady caught him, and O'Leary said he found a loaded .45 calibre automatic pistol under the covers. A complete opium layout and a set of burglars's tools, including a large assortment of small jimmies, were found near by, the police said.

Captain Willemse said Pietrillo was out on $2,000 bail pending examination on a charge of stealing a taxicab last February. Peggy Martin was arrested at the same time, but was later discharged.

Texas Instructs for McAdoo.

WACO, Texas, May 27.—Ironclad instructions to support William G. McAdoo for the Presidential nomination were given to the Texas delegation to the Democratic National Convention at the party's State Convention here today.

Texas will have forty votes. Alvin M. Owsley of Dallas, former National Commander of the American Legion, was endorsed for Vice President, but the delegation was not instructed for him. Governor Neff declined nomination as a delegate-at-large because he was opposed to an instructed delegation.

Sixteen Injured in Loft Elevator Fall; Cable Snaps, Letting Car Drop 3 Stories

Sixteen persons were injured just after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the cable snapped on an elevator in the loft building at 79 Fifth Avenue, causing it to fall three stories. Three of the injured persons—John Holub of 329 East Seventy-first Street, Sadie Halpert of 522 East Houston Street and Max Kahn of 8,505 Jamaica Avenue, Woodhaven, L. I.—are in the New York Hospital with fractured right legs. The others went home after being attended by ambulance surgeons.

The accident happened in the peak of the rush hour when hundreds of occupants of the building were quitting work for the day. Walter Sobers, negro operator in charge of the car, started from the twelfth floor on the downward trip with fifteen passengers. The elevator had a capacity of twenty. Although more passengers were waiting, Sobers refused to take them.

At the seventh floor Sobers slowed the car down. At the third a rasping noise was heard atop, followed by a pistol-like report as the cable snapped. The car fell with a crash and lodged in the well at the bottom of the shaft. Screams of women passengers echoed through the building as the car fell and scores of persons rushed down by the stairway, believing the place to be afire. Some one turned in a fire alarm.

Within the car passengers fought to get at the door and it was only with the greatest difficulty that Sobers restrained them. With the aid of persons outside, Sobers finally forced the door open. Then, although injured himself, he assisted in carrying out others who were unable to walk. Two ambulances with four doctors were rushed around from New York Hospital.

Those who were treated and went home were Dinah Somer, 176 Eldridge Street; Rose and Kitty Stringer, 2,041 West Twenty-fifth Street, Coney Island; Ben Goldstein, 296 South Fourth Street, Brooklyn; Ray Bond, 2,844 West Thirtieth Street, Coney Island; Minnie Lipschitz, 1,064 Lafayette Avenue, Brooklyn; Edna Rosen, 49 Forsythe Street; Anna Schultze, 246 Vernon Avenue, Brooklyn; Patsy Politsi, 42 Spring Street; Estelle Kaplan, 152 West 113th Street; May Arrigo, 407 East Ninety-second Street; Philip Kaplan, 65 Lott Avenue, Brooklyn, and Walter Sober, negro, 257 West 143d Street.

STATE REPUBLICANS WAIT ON DEMOCRATS

FEAR GOVERNOR'S STRENGTH

So While Leaders Consider Several Aspirants, All Are Mentioned With an If.

Slatemaking for the Republican State campaign and activities on behalf of Republican Gubernatorial aspirants, virtually have come to a standstill, pending developments at the Democratic National Convention.

Republican leaders say this comparative inactivity is likely to continue until it is definitely known whether the name of Governor Smith will appear on the Democratic national ticket and whether, failing to receive a Presidential nomination, he will permit himself to be drafted again as a candidate for re-election. Until such information is available, the Republicans are not likely to make any decision concerning their course in the State.

One leading Republican expressed the opinion that with Governor Smith a candidate for any office, State or national, the Republican nomination for Governor would not be eagerly sought by Republicans of sufficient importance to fit the office. Other Republican leaders believe that as a State candidate he would prove more formidable to Republican success in New York than as a national nominee. They fear he would win the vote by a majority so large that it would sweep the entire ticket to success.

It has been surmised that with Governor Smith a candidate, Republican leaders might induce Senator Frederick M. Davenport to lead a forlorn hope. Through following Theodore Roosevelt in his Bull Moose campaign of 1912, and repeated insurgency in the Senate subsequent to his return to the Republican party, Senator Davenport has placed himself in a position where his defeat would cause fewer heartburnings within his own party than that of any other man mentioned for the office. Yet many Republicans believe his progressive tendencies make him more available than most others to lead a fight against Governor Smith.

Meanwhile Senator Davenport is reported to have put aside his Gubernatorial aspirations. He is now credited with seeking a nomination for Congress from the Thirty-third Congressional District to succeed Representative Homer P. Snyder. His friends say there is little doubt that he could win in his home district.

With Theodore Roosevelt virtually put out of the running through the Teapot Dome disclosures, every one whose name has been mentioned so far in connection with the Republican nomination is a pronounced "dry."

Chief among them is Colonel William Hayward, United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York. Colonel Hayward has made a determined drive against violators of the Volstead law, and would like to see the State Convention decide upon the nomination of a "dry" candidate. Colonel Hayward might be regarded as the most available man. Nevertheless, in the opinion of some Republican leaders, he would be a disadvantage from the difficulty he might encounter in attempting to enlist the support of the delegates from New York County. He would be dependent upon this delegation to bring his name before the convention under proper auspices. New York County is regarded as the "wettest" spot in the State and the "wet" sentiment among New York County Republicans as almost equaling in strength that within the Democratic organization.

In the entire list of Republican candidates so far mentioned the latest addition, Representative Bertrand H. Snell of St. Lawrence is looked upon as the one most likely to get the strongest backing from the organization, providing Speaker H. Edmund Machold has definitely decided not to become a candidate this year.

Other candidates are Guy B. Moore, District Attorney of Erie County, who took a leading part in formulating the demand for re-enactment of a State prohibition enforcement law; Judge Frederick E. Crain of the Court of Appeals, and Representative Hamilton Fish Jr. of Putnam. Mr. Moore is said to have a following among Republicans in the Western counties of the State where "dry" sentiment is strong.

LOOK TO MINNESOTA FOR LINE ON SMITH

GET FAVORABLE REPORTS

Deny Executive Will Take Second Place on Ticket—Mack May Make Nominating Speech.

The Minnesota Democratic State Convention on Saturday is expected to furnish a more or less accurate line on the attitude toward Governor Alfred E. Smith and William G. McAdoo, generally regarded as the two leading candidates for the Democratic nomination for President. The supporters of Mr. McAdoo, prominent among whom are many railroad men, are working for an instructed delegation. No campaign in behalf of Governor Smith has been made until recently and his friends are working for an uninstructed delegation. Failure of the convention to instruct the delegates would be a victory for Governor Smith.

The situation in Minnesota was said to be somewhat similar to that in Wisconsin, where twenty-three Smith delegates out of twenty-six were elected in the Democratic primaries with little or no campaign for the Governor and much intensive work for McAdoo. Sentiment for a modification of the Volstead act, which is believed to have contributed greatly to the Smith victory in Wisconsin, is reported to be strong in Minnesota.

Reports received at the headquarters of the Smith committee in the Prudence Building, Madison Avenue and Forty-third Street, were said to indicate that the Governor's candidacy was gaining in strength throughout the country, although it has not been generally known, friends representing the Governor have been in virtually every State and their reports, it was said, had confirmed the information received by the committee concerning the Governor's constantly increasing strength.

Friends of the Governor denied that he might take second place on the ticket. "There has been a long campaign that the supporters of Senator Ralston of Indiana might seek such a combination, and belief has been expressed that it might prove a winning one. It was said authoritatively at the Smith headquarters that the Governor would not accept the nomination for Vice President.

The choice of the delegate to make the speech nominating Governor Smith, the Smith floor leader and the Chairman of the New York State delegation probably will be decided after Governor Smith returns from Absecon, N. J., Thursday night, and before he leaves for Albany on Monday. Norman E. Mack of Buffalo, Democratic National Committeeman, and James J. Walker, majority leader of the State Senate, were said to be in the consideration for floor leader. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Chairman of the Smith committee, may be Chairman of the delegation if he does not make the nominating speech, and Charles F. Murphy is under consideration for the chairmanship of the delegation if Mr. Roosevelt should place the Governor in nomination.

Mr. Roosevelt denied a report from Minneapolis that Smith supporters had urged Democratic members of Congress to support the McNary-Haugen agricultural bill on the ground that it might win support for Governor Smith in the West. Mr. Roosevelt said he had received a number of letters urging support of the bill, and had referred them without comment to Representative John E. Carew, head of the New York State Democratic delegation in Congress.

Charles H. McGuie, Chairman of the Massachusetts Democratic State Committee, said at the Waldorf-Astoria that the Democratic candidate for President would carry Massachusetts against President Coolidge next November.

SAYS WILSON FAVORED HOUSTON AS NOMINEE

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 27.—Woodrow Wilson favored David F. Houston for President, according to Charles R. Crane, former Minister to China, and a stalwart Wilson Democrat, who has sent letters to all delegates to the Democratic convention urging them to take Mr. Houston as their second choice if they cannot support him from the start.

Numerous Wilson Democrats are reported failing in behind the boom for Mr. Houston, who held the portfolios of the Department of Agriculture and the Treasury under President Wilson. These men declare their chief did not favor his son-in-law, William G. McAdoo, as the party candidate for President this year.

"Three days before Mr. Wilson's last illness," said Mr. Crane in his letter, "I spent an hour with him, and as I was leaving he turned to the subject of the coming election. With an emphatic gesture he asked, 'Whom can we Democrats nominate who can be elected?' I replied that I was doing all I could in a quiet way among my friends to make them realize the great strength of Houston.

"'Now you are talking,' Mr. Wilson exclaimed, with his old-time enthusiasm. 'Why don't more people get behind him? Houston is the best qualified man we have.'"

Mr. Houston and Mr. Crane called on Mayor Dever about the time this conversation between Mr. Wilson and Mr. Crane took place. A Houston boom in Illinois was launched recently by Louis G. Stevenson, son of the late Adlai Stevenson, who was Vice President during Grover Cleveland's second term as President.

PARTY FUNDS RIDER PASSED BY SENATE

HOUSE EXPECTED TO AGREE

Leaders Think Salary Measure Will Go to President by an Overwhelming Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The Senate adopted today, by a vote of 77 to 3, the Postal Salary bill carrying the amendment submitted by Senator Borah which provides for the publication every ten days during the forthcoming Presidential campaign of all campaign contributions and the name of the donors.

The bill was sent to the House of Representatives. A meeting of that body's Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads will be held tomorrow morning to consider means of expediting the adoption of the measure there. The House now has a bill which differs in some respects from the Senate bill. A member of the committee said today that he believed the Senate bill would be accepted as a substitute in order to avoid the delay which would be caused by sending the proposed legislation to a conference committee.

House leaders indicated that when the test came the bill with the Borah rider attached would be adopted by an overwhelming vote.

Calls for $88,000,000.

As passed by the Senate the pill calls for a readjustment of the salaries of 300,000 postal employes, not including first and second class Postmasters, which would necessitate an additional expenditure of about $60,000,000, according to the Senate committee's estimate. The Post Office Department has estimated that the expense might run as high as $70,000,000 or more. No provision is made in the bill for the raising of revenues, and the burden apparently would fall on the Treasury.

The theory of the framers of the bill is that the additional funds will be provided by an upward readjustment of second-class postal rates and that there will be no additional burden on the Treasury.

The point has been made, however, that President Coolidge might veto the bill because, as a practical proposition, it makes for a heavy increase of Government expenditures without providing for increased revenue to bear the expense. Leaders in both Senate and House contend that a veto would be overridden.

The only votes cast against the bill in the Senate today were those of Senator Borah, author of the amendment for publicity of campaign contributions, and Senators Fess and Willis, of Ohio. Senator Borah, it is understood, was opposed to increasing the governmental expenditures and therefore voted against the measure to place himself on record, although realising that it would receive a big majority.

The outlook is that the Senate bill will be indorsed by the House committee tomorrow and reported as a substitute for the pending House measure and that the bill carrying the Borah amendment will be sent to the President before adjournment. This is said to be the opinion of Representative Rouse, ranking Democrat on the House committee.

The Senate committee, in a report on its bill, contends that the problem of raising revenue to meet the additional expenditure should not be permitted to defeat the measure, although admitting that it is "obvious that the revenue must be provided either by drawing on the general funds of the Treasury or by increasing rates of postage."

Says Increased Business Will Pay.

In the general consideration of the revenue question, the committee reported, "it should be remembered that experience has shown that in every instance when postal salaries were increased a large portion of such increases has been absorbed by the expansion of the business, yielding increased postal revenues. The benefits derived from increases upon the personnel of the service has, to a very great extent, made it possible to accomplish this.

"When the benefit that will derive from the increase in the rate of personnel that will be obtained is considered, in conjunction with the suggestion by the Postmaster General that a substantial increase in revenue may be produced by a revision of postal rates, the problem presented is not difficult of solution."

The question of publicity of campaign contributions, however, was the one which attracted most interest in Congressional and political circles here today. The opinion was expressed among leaders of Congress that the "publicity" amendment has assured quick action on the bill in the House, and that the bill will be made into law before Congress adjourns, either with or without the approval of the President.

DRYS ASSAIL SILZER ALSO.

Anti-Saloon League's Attack Similar to That Made on Smith.

The Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey issued a statement yesterday setting forth what it called the "wet" record of Governor George S. Silzer, similar to the statement issued recently by the Anti-Saloon League of New York concerning Governor Smith, and announced that it had been sent to "dry" leaders throughout the country.

"As the fight draws nearer for holding the National Democratic Convention," George S. Silzer, Governor of New Jersey, is manifestly putting up more lightning rods, hoping to attract publicity as a candidate for President or Vice President," the statement says.

"Mr. Silzer is 'wet.' He always has been a saloon protector and a brewers' spokesman. He would be an appropriate running mate for Governor Al Smith, but his nomination would be equivalent to the National Democratic Party's saying to the voters of America, 'we want more alcohol in our wine and our beer.' For this is George Silzer's unrecanted, unrepented attitude."

BOOM MOORE FOR GOVERNOR

Friends of Erie County Official Are Forming Republican Committee.

The committee, Mr. Botsford said, will be composed, when its membership is completed, of between 500 and 1,000 members.

Edmund D. McCarthy has been named Treasurer. The Vice Chairman and Secretary, who are yet to be named, will be women, Mr. Botsford stated.

HELD FOR KILLING FRIEND.

Charged with hitting his friend and causing his death, Aloysius F. McNally, 26 years old, of 325 Lewis Avenue, Brooklyn, was held yesterday by Magistrate House in Homicide Court in $10,000 bail for examination June 9. He was accused of striking John A. Grady, 30, at 462 Convent Avenue.

Both were salesmen for W. A. Marshall & Co., coal dealers, with offices at 25 Beaver Street. They left the office shortly after midnight Monday, having drunk a large quantity of liquor, and quarrelled outside the building. The police said McNally hit Grady on the jaw with his fist and that Grady was killed when his head struck the pavement.

FOUR DIE IN FIRES, INCENDIARY HUNTED

Mother Leaps With Child to Escape Flames—Many Carried to Safety —Police Seek Firebug.

The negro section of Harlem which centres about 135th Street was excited yesterday, when in rapid succession, beginning at 3:05 A. M., four tenement house fires, undoubtedly of incendiary origin brought fire apparatus clanging into 134th Street.

Before dawn one tree-alarm fire and one two-alarm fire were being fought simultaneously under the direction of Chief Kenlon, two others had been extinguished by apparatus on its way to larger blazes, four lives had been lost and several others threatened, and reserves from four precincts struggled to keep in order the crowds of negroes who flocked from all directions.

Chief Fire Marshal Brophy arrived in the early morning hours and conducted a preliminary investigation. He declared the fires were incendiary beyond question of doubt, and a force of deputy fire marshals and detectives was sent into the section in the hope of finding direct clues.

At first it was thought an irresponsible pyromaniac had set the fires. Later in the day, however, the detectives made a discovery that hinted at a connection between the various fires. It was found that the three places in West 134th Street that were set on fire were all owned by firms with which various members of the Bachrach Brokerage Company, 74 East Ninety-second Street, were connected. The fourth fire, at 2,211-2,219 Fifth Avenue, the least serious of all, was owned by other persons.

This discovery led the investigating forces to believe the fires might have been started by some one who had a grievance against the firm or some of its members. The information on which the discovery was based came from an anonymous letter to the West 135th Street Police Station some hours after the fires had been brought under control. Acting Captain Ryan, in charge of the Third Detective Division, who took personal charge of the police investigation, said there might be an arrest soon.

Irving Bachrach, President of the Bachrach Brokerage Company, scouted the revenge theory last night, when he was asked concerning it. He confirmed the fact, however, that the 134th Street properties affected were owned by companies in which members of his firm were interested.

The firemen were fighting a blaze in a storage warehouse at 50 West 133d Street early in the morning when word was brought to Battalion Chief Patrick Dougherty that there was a fire at 12 West 134th Street, a five-story tenement. By the time firemen arrived the blaze had mushroomed against the top of the building and it was smoke-filled. A second alarm was turned in. The fire escapes were filled with screaming tenants, and ladders were quickly run up. When the firemen finally entered they found bodies of Mrs. Jessie Holmes and Mrs. Holmes and his two daughters, Florence, 10, and Leola, 8, in a room on the top floor. One of the girls was between a bed and the wall, and the other was near a window.

While the firemen were at work at this fire, an alarm came from 20 West 134th Street, also a five-story tenement. Occupants of this house had been awakened by the noise of the engines going to No. 12. An old mattress was found under the stairease on the ground floor. The mattress had been thrown away earlier in the evening by one of the tenants, and it had been dragged back into the hallway and set on fire, so the police believe, it had been soaked in kerosene. The firemen quickly put out the blaze. About a dozen persons were carried down fire-escapes, and more than forty were guided by the firemen to safety.

While Fire Patrol 6, with headquarters at 158th Street and Park Avenue, the Bronx, was going to the first fire, some of the firemen noticed smoke coming from the tenement at 2,211-2,219 Fifth Avenue. Eighteen awnings were found to be ablaze in their storage place under the staease of the ground floor. The fire was quickly put out.

Then the alarm came from 109 West 134th Street. The flames spread rapidly into the top floors of 107.

The window ledges and fire-escapes were full of screaming women. Ladders were run up against the building and firemen carried the tenants to safety. Lieutenant Howard N. Winnes and Firemen Michael Moran and Thomas Dowling scaled aerial ladders and carried tenants from the upper windows. Members of Engine Company 8 carried eight other persons from flame-swept window ledges. The fire was so intense that part of a 30-foot ladder was burned away.

While Engine Company 44 was fighting the blaze the roof fell in. The firemen were showered with burning debris, but none was injured. When the firemen got into the building they found the body of an unidentified negress on the floor of an upper hall. She was car

BRADY PLANS MOVE TO DEPOSE THOMAS

Says Legal Action Will Be Taken to Oust Him as Head of P. M. A.

THOMAS DENIES CHARGES

Another development came last night in the theatrical fight between the Actors' Equity and the Shubert group of managers on the one hand and the Producing Managers' Association on the other, when William A. Brady, allied with the Shubert group, announced that a statement made by Augustus Thomas of the P. M. A. was not true, and said that legal steps would be taken to oust Mr. Thomas from his executive position in the P. M. A.

"The statement issued by Augustus Thomas concerning the proceedings of the P. M. A. on Monday are not based on fact," said Mr. Brady.

Mr. Thomas presided at the managers' meeting on Monday. With reference to the meeting, Mr. Brady made this statement last night:

"The statement issued by Augustus Thomas concerning the proceedings of the P. M. A. on Monday are not based on fact.

"Mr. Thomas attempted to preside as judge backed by a prejudiced jury in the persons of the so-called 'Die-Hard' faction, ruling that the members under charges had no right to vote. He also ruled that William Klein, representing A. H. Woods as a proxy, not as an attorney, had no right to be present. I claimed that Mr. Thomas, being a paid employe of all the members of the P. M. A., had no right to take sides in the controversy and therefore was not qualified to act as a judge. Mr. Thomas ruled against me and our side walked out at my request.

Plans Action Against Thomas.

"Charges have been made against Mr. Harris, Mr. Erlanger, Mr. Thomas, Mr. Belasco, et al., by Mr. Lawrence Weber. Mr. Thomas is undertaking to disregard these charges in direct defiance of our by-laws. Our members are about to take legal action to have Mr. Thomas removed from his executive position in the P. M. A. because of his high-handed methods of procedure not warranted or permitted by our by-laws and constitution."

This statement was read to Mr. Thomas over the telephone. His first remark was:

"Not a single statement that Mr. Brady makes is true." Then he continued: "I did not preside as a judge; I presided as the presiding officer of the organization under parliamentary law. Under our by-laws members under charges are not permitted to vote, and I so ruled. As to Mr. Klein I read from the by-laws that members under charges could not be represented by proxy if there was objection, Mr. Klein representing Mr. Woods. There was objection and I simply ruled Mr. Klein could not remain. So they walked out.

"As to Mr. Thomas being a paid employe' let me say that I am a member, elected unanimously, of the association, and I have the singular distinction of having paid my dues.

"Charges have been made against the men mentioned and they are taking the irregular course under the by-laws. They will be passed on by the Grievance Committee and in due course come before the association. As to the legal action, well, I hadn't heard that.

No Decision on Injunction.

There was no decision yesterday by Supreme Court Justice McCook regarding the application by the Producing Managers' Association, headed by Sam H. Harris and A. L. Erlanger, to continue a temporary injunction restraining the new organization formed by Lee Shubert, known as the Managers' Protective Association, from signing contracts with the Actors' Equity Association. It was said late in the afternoon that because of the press of other court matters Justice McCook had not been able to reach the case.

The court called the attorneys in the case before him in the morning for light on one matter mentioned in the argument the day before. It related to the "round robin" signed by members of the Managers' Protective Association in November last, in which it was agreed not to submit to the closed shop nor to the dictation of Equity unless by a vote of two-thirds of the agners. Ten producers signed them, and others later. Samuel R. Golding, attorney for the Erlanger-Harris group, asserted that the three individual defendants had signed it. In answer to a question by the Court, Mr. Golding said that these signers resigned from the plaintiff organization on April 28.

HONOR HYLAN'S GRANDSON.

John Hylan Sinnott, grandson of Mayor John F. Hylan, was the guest of honor yesterday afternoon at a "Children's Day" celebration in the Children's Museum, Brooklyn Avenue and Park Place, Brooklyn. The ceremonies also marked the taking over by the city of the old Smith mansion and land on Brooklyn Avenue between Prospect Place and St. Mark's Avenue to provide an annex to the museum.

Master Sinnott was taken to the museum by his mother, Mrs. John F. Sinnott, and Mrs. Hylan. When an automobile in which was the Mayor appeared young Sinnott jumped with joy and threw himself into his grandfather's arms.

Borough President Edward Riegelmann, Democratic Leader John H. McCooey and Park Commissioner E. T. O'Loughlin attended the ceremonies. Later the officials crossed the street to the Smith property, where the Mayor reviewed several thousand school children, to whom he was introduced by Frank L. Babbott, head of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences.

The Mayor caused merriment when he told the children that as a boy he liked to play "hookey." They howled with glee at his story of taking a jumping-jack to school and frightening his teacher, for which prank he received a whipping from the teacher and another from his father.

PLANS 10 CONCERTS HERE.

Philadelphia Orchestra Will Give Its Usual Series.

PHILADELPHIA, May 27.—The usual series of ten concerts in New York, five each in Baltimore and Washington, and four in Toronto, Canada, are included in next year's program of the Philadelphia Orchestra, which was announced today at the annual meeting of the Orchestra Association. One concert also will be given in Buffalo, N. Y., and one in Princeton, N. J.

Referring in his annual report to the settlement of the recent wage controversy with the Musicians' Union, Andrew Wheeler, Secretary of the association, said the principle of the agreement was the payment of the men on the basis of merit. "It is anticipated," he added, "that the working out of this principle will result in a still further improvement in the quality of the orchestra."

Stadium Concert Tests Tuesday.

Auditions for soloists at the Stadium Concerts will begin next Tuesday afternoon at Aeolian Hall and will continue for several weeks in order that all of the hundreds of applicants may be heard. All entries are regarded as confidential, and applicants will be called before the judges by number only. Only the names of the artists finally selected will be made public. Artists who have appeared at previous auditions are free to return this year for another hearing. At the first hearing an aria is requested from vocalists and the first movement of a concerto from violinists and pianists. Accompanists will be supplied for vocalists who do not bring their own. Applications are being received at the offices of the Stadium Concerts, 250 West Fifty-seventh Street.

Belmont Choir to Sing Sunday.

The Belmont mixed choir of 125 voices will celebrate its fifteenth anniversary by a concert at Hunts Point Palace, 163d Street and Southern Boulevard, Sunday evening, under the direction of the Rev. Francesco Magliocco, composer of sacred music, who was created Commendatore of San Gregorio by the Pope. The choir will be assisted by an orchestra of forty-five pieces from the Metropolitan Opera. The soloists will be Mme. José Jones, Miss Rocco, Alfred Sibelli, J. Modesti and Mr. Moscato. The following numbers on the program will be heard in New York for the first time: "Mossa d'Averni," by Bossi; "Laudate Pueri," Capocci; "Transfiguration of Christ," by Perosi and "An Ode," by Romualdo Sapio.

Willy Lamping in Recital.

At the Town Hall last evening, Willy Lamping gave a 'cello recital assisted by the Beethoven Maennerchor of New York City (director Paul Engels Kirchen). Mr. Lamping was much applauded for a well matured and mellow reading of a Valentine Sonata. He further illustrated his mastery in two representative groups. Several quartets for four 'cellos were an agreeable feature of the concert; those who shared the honors with Mr. Lamping were, Messrs. Altshuler, Schirmer and Ahler. The accompanists were B. Wagener and Karl Saul.

Pastor's Wife Sent to Ellis Island.

The Rev. Peter J. Pedersen, a Danish Lutheran minister, who arrived yesterday from Copenhagen on the Scandinavian-American liner United States, went to Ellis Island because the immigration officials would not allow his wife to land. They said he might be permitted to enter the country under the exemption clause as a clergyman, but Mrs. Pedersen was excluded because the quota for Denmark was exhausted.

$638,684 RAISED HERE FOR PALESTINE

UNTERMYER EXPLAINS NEED

Emanuel Neumann, National Secretary of the Palestine Foundation Fund, told a meeting that crowded Carnegie Hall last night that $638,684 had been raised in New York City thus far in the drive for money to restore the Jewish homeland. Samuel Untermyer, President of the Fund, and Rabbi Abba Billel Silver of Cleveland were the principal speakers.

The amounts raised by the various sections of New York follow: Brownsville, $97,341; Bronx, $56,000; Eastern Parkway, $53,000; West Side, $50,000; Harlem-Yorkville, $46,000; east side, $44,800; Borough Park, $42,000; Washington Heights, $40,000; Williamsburgh, $38,605; Long Island, $28,000; Bensonhurst, $27,000; Westchester, $26,000; Flatbush $25,000; South Brooklyn, $18,308; Staten Island, $2,200; miscellaneous, including trades and organizations, $50,500.

Mr. Untermyer contributed $10,000 to the Fund, while the following contributed $5,000 each: Herman Conheim, Jacob Siegel, Louis Marshall, Benjamin Winter, Mrs. Israel Unterberg, Mr. and Mrs. M. Blumberg and M. Bergman.

"The Palestine Foundation Fund is primarily an immigration and colonization fund," Mr. Untermyer said. "It assists the newcomers into the homeland in numerous ways, both in the lands of their origin as well as in Palestine itself. You must picture in your imagination streams of Jewish immigrants from many lands of Europe converging toward Palestine. In those lands they are denied the most fundamental need of the human being, a home, and they are going to Palestine to build a home for themselves, and also for their people. These streams are not yet great in volume, but they are growing, as they are bound to, with every other avenue of escape cut off from them.

"There was a time before the narrow passions engendered by a brutal war, darkened the clear vision of the American people, when many of these refugees could find a home in our own country. Now, however, a new and ridiculous fancy, the Nordic superstition, has caught the popular imagination, and our legislators in Washington with their ear always on the ground to catch all popular fads and fancies, have embodied this silly superstition into brutal legislation. Palestine, therefore, is the one place of refuge for the eternal wanderer and we may derive some consolation from the fact that in going to Palestine he is going to a homeland of his own, and here the Palestine Foundation Fund comes to his assistance and helps him find his place in the new land as soon as he arrives."

Rabbi Silver said he had identified himself with the work of establishing a Jewish homeland in Palestine because of the conviction that the time had come when a union of forces was not desirable but feasible.

"Palestine was always and still is the central theme in Jewish life," he said. "Some of the greatest dramas of mankind were played on the stage of that little country and it seems destined to continue to play a crucial rôle in the history of mankind.

"At no time did the Jew need Palestine more than he does today. The unparalleled disorganization of Jewish life which resulted from the war, has made it imperative for thousands to find a home where they are welcome. The war, which may have brought freedom and opportunities to other nations, brought to the Jew especially those living in Eastern Europe, suffering and persecution and intensified anti-Semitism. Thousands of our unfortunate brothers are today crowding the highways of travel, knowing not whither to turn. America, in reversal of its traditional policy and quite in violation of its informative spirit of liberalism, has shut its doors unceremoniously.

"We have not been driven to Palestine by anti-Semitism. We have long ago adjusted ourselves to the sporadic distemper of the world. Israel will not organize its life with an eye to anti-Semitism. It is not the fear of persecution, but the love of greater spiritual freedom which has set thousands of minds thinking about the possibilities of a cultured Jewish centre in the ancient homeland."

FIRPO WINS APPEAL ON $500 VERDICT

LAWYER CRITICIZES JUDGE

Quotes Municipal Justice Hoyer as Having Said "Let the Big Argentine Pay."

The Appellate Term of the Supreme Court reversed from the bench yesterday a decision in a suit against Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine pugilist, by Mrs. Mildred Schwartzlander, in which a verdict of $500 was ordered by Justice Hoyer in the Fifth Municipal Court. The Court directed a new trial. Mrs. Schwartzlander sued Firpo on the ground that he sublet her apartment at 311 West Ninety-fourth Street, in the Summer of 1923, and that persons visiting the apartment damaged the furniture.

Firpo was represented at the trial by Hyman Bushel, who appealed on the ground that Justice Hoyer did not permit him to present his case to the jury properly. He said in an affidavit that when he tried to address the jury on the question of the damages, Justice Hoyer declared: "Let the big Argentine pay." Mr. Bushel added that he then insisted on his right to have the jury determine the damages, and the Court said, "Go ahead," but when the attorney said that "under our system of government even a 'big Argentine' was entitled to the consideration of an American jury," Justice Hoyer again stopped him and said:

"You first insulted the plaintiff and you are now trying to insult the Court."

Mr. Bushel declared that he had not insulted any one, and was only trying to address the jury, but Justice Hoyer again stopped him and said: "You had your opportunity and didn't take it." The Court directed that a verdict for the plaintiff for the amount sued for.

George Plank, superintendent of the apartment house, testified that Mrs. Schwartzlander's furniture was "broken and dilapidated," and was "abused" while Firpo had the apartment. Mrs. Schwarzlander testified that her piano was damaged by cigarettes, but she admitted that she knew that Firpo did not smoke or drink.

BACK IRONWORKERS' STRIKE.

The Building Trades Council of Greater New York, the membership of which is said to total 150,000, voted yesterday to support the structural iron workers in their strike for a minumum wage of $12 a day and recognition of the union.

The Executive Committee of the Council and the Board of Governors of the Building Trades Employers' Association will hold a conference at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the employers' headquarters at the Builders' Exchange, 33 West Thirty-third Street, where the iron workers' demands will be discussed. Roswell D. Tompkins, Secretary of the Building Trades Council, announcing the conference, would not speculate upon its outcome.

Earl R. Calvert, representing the strikers, told the council that general contractors, members of the Building Trades Employers Association, were engaging sub-contractors on structural iron work who were using non-union workmen. These sub-contractors, Mr. Calvert said, were members of the Iron League, an "open shop" organization.

R. B. Thomas, Executive Secretary of the Iron League, contradicted Calvert's assertion that the union "has won a sweeping victory" in the metropolitan area. Only one or two firms have signed up with the union, Mr. Thomas declared. Mr. Calvert, on the other hand, insisted that independent settlement with 250 firms has been made. Four hundred strikers returned to work yesterday on a 28,000 ton steel power house construction job of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, Mr. Calvert said. Every striker, he added, has returned to work in New Jersey, while in New York only one-third were still idle.

FREED OF MURDER CHARGE.

Veteran Not Slayer of Bridgeport Priest, Prosecutor States.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 27.—Declaring that "it is just as important for a State's attorney to use the great powers of his office to protect the innocent as to convict the guilty," Homer S. Cummings, State's attorney, with the approval of Judge Marvin, in the Criminal Superior Court today entered a nolle in the case of Harold F. Israel, former service man, held for the murder of the Rev. Hubert F. Dahme, who was shot in the street here on Feb. 4 last. After analyzing what he said "upon its face, at least, seemed well night a perfect case," Mr. Cummings expressed the conclusion that Israel did not murder the priest.

Israel was automatically freed from a charge of first degree murder. He is serving a sentence of ninety days imposed in the City Court of Norwalk after his arrest there on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, following the murder of Father Dahme. This sentence will expire on June 5.

MODEL ACCUSES BROKER.

Charged with attempting to attack Miss Frances Cashmore, a young model, of 273 West End Avenue, John Liver, who says he is a banker and broker, living at the Allerton House, 22 East Thirty-eighth Street, was held yesterday by Magistrate Henry M. Goodman in West Side Court in $2,500 bail for examination Thursday.

Miss Cashmore showed a number of bruises which she said were inflicted by Liver in an apartment she shares with Ruth Ericson at the West End Avenue address. The complainant told the Court that Liver appeared Saturday in response to a newspaper advertisement offering to sublet her apartment, as she intended to visit her parents in Cincinnati.

JACKSON LOSES $16,000.

MILWAUKEE, May 27.—Judge Gregory today set aside the verdict and dismissed the case of Joe Jackson against the Chicago Club of the American League, in which the jury awarded to Jackson $16,000 damages. Jackson and Oscar (Happy) Felsch, a witness, had committed perjury during the trial of Jackson's suit for alleged breach of contract, the Court decided.

In granting the defense motion Judge Gregory said that "the complaint is based on fraud. The Court ought no longer to retain jurisdiction, thus lending its aid to a fraud."

Bill Asks National Utility Survey.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The House Commerce Committee today reported a bill which would authorize completion within twenty years of a general utility topographical survey of the United States. It would authorize an appropriation of $950,000 for the next year. Witnesses urged the program as one which would insure a uniform map for engineering projects.

FINDS MAYFIELD CASE SLOW.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Disposition of the Mayfield election case before the adjournment of Congress on June 7 was urged upon the Senate Privileges and Elections Committee today by Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, who declared that the procedure was becoming irksome to him.

The remarks of Senator King brought a statement from Luther Nickels, one of the attorneys for George E. B. Peddy of Texas, who is contesting the Senate seat of Earle B. Mayfield, that his side had proceeded with all the diligence possible. Mr. Nickels declared they had encountered numerous obstacles and were particularly hampered by the distance of 2,000 miles between Washington and Texas, where the witnesses were.

Senator King declared that the committee had been in session for weeks and had frequently met with no witnesses ready to testify.

"I must protest against this dilatory method of proceeding," he said. "I am not blaming any one, but I wish to state to counsel it is not fair to the committee to permit this delay. I suggest that the committee say this case must be concluded."

Mr. Nickels replied that the record would show that his side had made every effort to get the witnesses. "We have met with obstacles all the way," he said. "We have had to resort to the written method of getting witnesses and could not get them. We have asked for supposenas, but we have had no control over service 2,000 miles away."

J. F. Collier, of Dallas, a public accountant, was put on this afternoon to tell of an audit of the Dallas Klan's books in 1922 and 1923. He testified that one item found was for $11,102.04 under the entry, "Educational and Propaganda," and that more than 50 per cent. of the amount was paid to Lowrey & Lowrey, but for what purpose he could not state. Later he said that he understood Lowrey & Lowrey were handling the money for the local campaign. He told counsel for Senator Mayfield that he found no item showing that anything had been spent by the Ku Klux Klan for Mr. Mayfield.

ROBBERIES IN JERSEY CITY.

Fur Factory Looted of $10,000 and Shoe Store Held Up.

Three armed men gagged three watchmen, bound them to a safe in the S. W. Klein Company's fur factory, at Fremont and Colden Streets, Jersey City, and escaped early yesterday with furs said to be worth $10,000. The watchman in a near-by building, attracted by the robbers' suspicious actions, went to investigate and was struck insensible with a blackjack. Vincent Scarnaris of 122 Colden Street, John Carabento of 20 Fremont Street and John Bezeneco of 580 Grand Street were the watchmen in the Klein Building. Thomas Taggart of 126 Pearsall Street, Jersey City, guarding the building at 45 Fremont Street, was attacked when he walked near the factory to see what was going on. Detectives later found Taggart unconscious on the sidewalk. He was treated at the City Hospital for scalp wounds.

Two men entered the Beck-Hazzard shoe store at 120 Newark Avenue, Jersey City, yesterday, held up the assistant manager, Marvin Gatoff, whom they compelled to open a small safe in the store and escaped with $110 in cash from the safe after locking Getoff in the cellar. The robbers were armed with automatic pistols, according to Gatoff. When he was ordered to open the safe Gatoff protested, and one of the men struck him in the face with the point of a pistol, cutting the clerk's cheek.

BRITISH GET OIL GRANTS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 27.—A dispatch from Bagdad to The London Times says:

"Among the visitors to Bagdad at present is Major Frank Holmes, consulting engineer, who is primarily responsible for the grant of the oil concession in El Hasa to a British syndicate by the Sultan of Nejd.

"It is understood here that with the consent of the British Colonial office Major Holmes has just concluded a further agreement with the Sultan of Nejd and the Sultan of Koweit for oil rights over an area of 2,000 square miles known as the 'neutral zone' and situated between the Province of El Hasa and the Territory of the Sultan of Koweit.

"The Eastern and General Syndicate has now begun operations both in El Hasa and the neutral zone. A geological survey is being made under the direction of Dr. Helm, the noted Swiss oil geologist.

"It is reported that Major Holmes is now taking an active interest in the proposed development of the Ira oilfields and that in this connection he will shortly submit a definite project to the Government of Iraq."

BEATEN BY JAIL-MATES.

Murderer Who Attacks Women In Prison Is Nearly Killed.

FLORENCE, Ariz., May 27.—Hovering between life and death as a result of a beating at the hands of fellow-convicts, William B. Ward, a negro, confessed slayer of Ted Grosh, a college athlete, was today put back in the death cell at the State Prison here, whence he will be led to the gallows June 20, if he lives till that date.

As punishment for an attack upon two women, who came to the prison at the negro's request to baptise him, Ward was severely beaten yesterday by fellow-convicts, who were restrained from lynching him only by the pleas of Warden R. B. Sims.

The women, Mrs. J. E. Wright and Miss Stella Martin, an evangelist, came to Ward's cell to conduct baptismal services and were attacked by the negro, armed with an ice-pick. Mrs. Wright, the more severely injured of the two, will recover.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 27.—Harry F. Lavenson, Boston lawyer and confessed blackmailer, testified today in the trial of William J. Corcoran, former District Attorney of Middlesex County, and Daniel H. Coakley, disbarred Boston attorney, that in 1917, he, with William Kingston, also known as "Brownie" Kennedy, planned to compromise Adolph Zukor, Hiram Abrams, Jesse Lasky and other motion picture magnates for the purpose of extorting money from them by threats of exposure.

NEW RADIO DEVICE TESTED.

A new device which permits the use of the electric lighting current in the place of "B" batteries for radio sets was demonstrated yesterday afternoon by Harry Houck, the inventor. The rectifier or filter, as the device is known, is attached to the light socket and successfully changes the current from alternating to direct current. Engineers have long been working on the problem, but elimination of the hum from alternating current has been the obstacle which prevented perfection of such a device. The power unit demonstrated yesterday completely eliminated the hum.

The "Super-Ducon," the name given to the device, is simple to install and does away with many unpleasant features of radio reception. It provides a dependable means of power supply and eliminates the trouble of rundown "B" batteries. To users of UV-201-A tubes the "Super-Ducon" provides absolute protection against accidental burning out of tubes because the current output is not in excess of the filament rating.

From a technical point of view the outstanding feature of the device is the satisfactory application of current output direct from the power supply unit to the plate of the detector tube. This has been one of the stumbling blocks in previous attempts to develop the principle commercially.

Engineers who witnessed the demonstration yesterday said that within a short time such a device as the "Super-Ducon" would be made part of the receiving set and concealed within the cabinet. Mr. Houck is research engineer of the Dubilier Condenser and Radio Corporation.

The Golden Throne of an Ancient King

23 Other Beautiful, Colored Photographs of the Royal Treasures of Tut-ankh-Amen

These brilliant four-color reproductions include views of the magnificent sheet gold doorway to the inner shrine, suggesting the entrance to another world. A remarkably well-preserved statue of wood, probably a likeness of the King himself, remains to indicate the personal appearance of the youthful monarch.

Statues of guards and servitors, supplies of food and wearing apparel, chariots and furniture, figures of strange gods, and personal effects, even to a brace of jeweled walking sticks, all show the lavish provisions made for the comfort of the departed upon his arrival in the next world.

Howard Carter, English archaeologist associated with Lord Carnarvon in the work that led to the opening of the Tomb, tells of the present discoveries in the Valley of the Kings and predicts the significance of the uncompleted portion of the work.

Professor T. George Allen, Egyptologist of the University of Chicago, relates the history of Egypt as it was 3,400 years ago in Tut-ankh-Amen's time, and explains the meaning of the furnishings of his Tomb and the inscriptions upon it.

The June issue includes a history of Presidential Conventions, by the Hon. Cordell Hull, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee. This article is of timely interest, as the Democratic Convention is about to meet. World events of the month are presented by thirteen eminent university professors of history.

There are twenty-two other articles by leading authorities on as many subjects of public interest at this time, one special feature being the verdict of a jury of ten American Historians on Professor Barnes's May article, wherein he assigned Germany to fourth place of relative responsibilty for the war.

800 IMMIGRANTS FACE DEPORTATION

OLD RULES WILL APPLY

Secretary of Labor May Make Exceptions Among Aliens Held at Ellis Island.

As a result of the decision of the United States Supreme Court handed down at Washington on Monday, 800 aliens now at Ellis Island may be deported, according to Harry E. Landis, Assistant Commissioner of Immigration. These immigrants, most of them Italians, have come to this country within the past three weeks in the hope that they might be admitted under the ruling of the Federal Court, and subsequently upheld by the Circuit Court of Appeals, granting permission to Gittel Gottlieb, wife of Rabbi Solomon Gottlieb, and Israel, the son, to enter, although the Palestine quota was exhausted.

Solomon Gottlieb entered the United States fourteen months before the arrival of his wife and son. He had declared his intention of becoming a citizen, and his wife and son were admitted on that ground, after they had appealed to the Federal Court. After their admittance by the Federal Court the immigration officials took the case to the Circuit Court of Appeals, which upheld the decision of the lower court. The officials took the case to the United States Supreme Court, which held on Monday that the Gottliebs had been admitted in excess of the quota and would have to be deported.

Commissioner Landis said yesterday that he had received a telephone message from the Department of Labor at Washington informing him that "the practice followed prior to the Gottlieb decision being rendered in the District Court would be again put into operation."

Although it is quite likely that the 800 immigrants now at Ellis Island will be deported, it was said among officials at Ellis Island yesterday that Secretary of Labor James J. Davis may see fit to deal with each case individually and to allow some of these families to enter. The Gottlieb family were reported to be in Philadelphia yesterday, according to information received by officials at Ellis Island. Mr. Landis explained that the Supreme Court would have to pass its decision down to the Circuit Court, which in turn would have to inform the District Court, so that it might be a month before the Gottliebs will have to appear at Ellis Island for deportation.

MOSCOW, May 27 (Associated Press).—The All Russian Central Executive Committee has ordered suspension of the execution of 17 former judges, court officials, lawyers and persons connected with the operation of the new economic policy, who were sentenced to death on Saturday after they had been tried on charges of corruption and bribery in connection with the fraudulent granting of legal immunity to prisoners.

SAILING FOR BALLOON RACE.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The army Air Service team, which will be one of three entries representing the United States in the Gordon Bennett international balloon race at Brussels on June 15, will sail from New York tomorrow on the steamship President Harding.

The members of the team are Major Norman W. Peek, pilot; First Lieutenant William A. Gray, aid; First Lieutenant Max F. Moyer, alternate and operations officer. They represented the army in the elimination race which started from San Antonio, Texas, on May 23, landing at St. Angars, Iowa, on May 25, after having gone a longer distance than any army balloon in such an event.

In the Gordon Bennett race they will use a balloon weighing approximately 425 pounds less than the one used in the national race. Because of the decrease in weight they are hopeful of being able to remain in the air for a much greater distance. The international record is 1,890 miles.

ANY DAY - ANY HOUR - ANY WHERE - ANY WEATHER

is not a thing of individual fancy or personal prejudice. It is determined by an Editorial Council which meets every day. After thorough discussion by all members present, the leading editorials are delegated to staff writers who are best fitted for the particular subject because of especial knowledge or access to original sources of information. Topics touching national and international policies are handled by men who are frequently sent to Washington to study the questions at close range through personal contacts with official authorities. Subjects affecting local city and State interests are written by writers who follow the same method here at home.

New York is a cosmopolitan city and demands the best obtainable—in newspapers as well as everything else. That is what the Evening Post aims to give its readers—the best from any source, avoiding petty provincialism and narrow partisanship. Its independence of thinking as reflected in its editorial policy cannot be hampered by the fads, fallacies or idiosyncrasies of any one man.

The NEW CANDIDE

By JOHN COURNOS

Have you ever read such enthusiastic reviews?—Here are excerpts from four of the most important newspapers in the country.

The Boston Transcript says: "He cannot be compared with writers like Cabell or Van Vechten because he is more amusing than either. All readers who appreciate brilliant satire will delight in this novel. The book is too diabolically witty to be censored on the ground of impropriety."

—St. Louis Globe Democrat

N. Y. Evening Post writes: "A book for all those who like Huxley and enjoyed 'Prancing Nigger.' Altogether a gay, good-humored, adventurous and entertaining book." And The N. Y. Times writes "Among the modern novels there is no book quite like 'The New Candide.' Just where it shall stand with the great books, in whose manner it is written, only that most competent of all critics, Time, can tell."

PROTESTS AGAINST N. Y. RAILWAYS PLAN

WANTS A FULL INQUIRY

In the continued hearing before the Transit Commission yesterday upon the reorganization plan of the New York Railways Company Thomas E. O'Shea, a stockholder, who, though not a lawyer, had been permitted by the commission to take part in the proceedings, suggested the possibility that the bondholders who sponsor the present plan might profit to the extent of $2,000,000 or more by having acquired the bonds at low prices in the last few years and by now turning them in for new bonds and cash.

Mr. O'Shea pointed out that under the plan favored by the Bondholders' Protective Committee and sanctioned by Judge Julius M. Mayer of the Federal court no new capital would be turned into the company's coffers, but that the stockholders, who are at least the nominal owners of the company, were to be wiped out in favor of the bondholders. He suggested that the Transit Commission should take testimony to determine whether or not the bondholders stood to profit personally by the arrangement, and, if so, to what extent. He said the holders of the common stock never had received a notice to attend a meeting looking to the reorganization, but had been simply ignored by the bondholders.

Commenting on the testimony of Charles W. Kellogg, an expert of the engineering firm of Stone & Webster, who had testified that the cost of reproducing the properties of the New York Railways at prices current last October would be $83,718,000, Mr. O'Shea continued: "Mr. Kellogg's estimate of the reproduction cost pleases me well enough. I have no quarrel with his figures, for, if they be accurate, they simply prove that we common stockholders have a very substantial equity in this property. All I ask is that this $90,200,000 of stock for which the plan provides be allocated to the holders of common stock, who are the real owners of the property."

Taking up the reproduction figure of $83,718,000, Assistant Corporation Counsel Devery asked the witness whether he really imagined that any responsible persons would undertake a reproduction of these lines at any such valuation. Mr. Kellogg admitted that it would be impracticable to try to finance such a reproduction on the basis of a five-cent fare. Mr. Devery reminded him that the five-cent fare was a charter provision.

As the Transit Commission is required by law to determine the capitalization of the new company on a basis of the valuation reached by first cost and reproduction cost, Joseph P. Cotton, for the Bondholders' Committee, next tried to ascertain Mr. Webster's ideas of the first cost of the company's properties.

The witness said Stone & Webster had made an effort to determine the original costs of the system, but had been unable to do so because of inadequate data, though the company had placed at their disposal all it had available.

F. V. Fialkiw, also of Stone & Webster, testified that his study of the proposed plan showed that after all obligations were met out of the reorganization capital, there would remain in the treasury of the new company not less than $750,000 for working capital. He meant by that, he said, that the reorganized company could start free and clear of all debts except its bonded obligations and the inter-company accounts between it and its subsidiary companies still in the system, balancing assets against liabilities, the assets including the proceeds from sale of the new bonds.

The hearing will be continued on Thursday, June 5, at 10:30 A. M.

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 27.—Stanley Cole of Watrous is the champion rodless, lineless and baitless fisherman of the northern tier of counties, in the opinion of officials of the Department of Forests and Waters. However, his gain, a sixteen-inch brown trout, was a fishhawk's loss. Here's the story as the department made it public tonight:

Standing on the bank of a branch of Pine Creek in Tioga County, Cole watched the bird circle over the stream and as it dived to the water, he gave a terrific yell, at the same time throwing a stone which hit the water just as the hawk seized the fish. In its fright the bird flew directly at Cole and dropped the fish at his feet.

Reginald A. Stanley, an auditor and adjuster of physicians' accounts, disappeared from his home at 33 Post Avenue, the Bronx, last Saturday. Mrs. Stanley expressed fear last night that he was suffering from a nervous breakdown or amnesia brought on by overwork.

The Stanleys were married January last. Mrs. Stanley said her husband had not taken a vacation since his discharge from the American Expeditionary Force, after the armistice, and she believed close application to increasing his business had brought him on the verge of nervous collapse.

Belgo Canadian Paper's Earnings.

MONTREAL, Que., May 27.—For the six months ending December 31 Belgo Canadian Paper showed operating earnings, before interest and depreciation, of $1,275,000. Interest, depreciation and preferred dividend absorbed $622,000, leaving a net of $653,000 available for the half year on the $8,500,000 outstanding common stock. Earnings for the full year will be somewhat in excess of the showing made for the first half, ended December last. January and February were only about up to the previous average, as a new machine was being installed and tuned in, with consequent costs charged to operations. March, however, established a record and this was again eclipsed last month, with the May output indicating maintenance of the level.

Swedish Foreign Trade Gains.

STOCKHOLM, May 27.—Sweden's imports during the month of April exceeded her imports by 65,000,000 kronor, or about $17,420,000. The major part of the surplus were due to heavy imports from America, especially of automobiles and mineral oils. At the same time the exports to America were larger by $700,000 than in March, the principal items being wood pulp, iron and steel, and paper.

Study Raw Silk Classification.

An extensive study of raw silk classification is being undertaken by Division A of the Silk Association of America, composed of raw silk importers, dealers and brokers. It was announced yesterday. The aim is to overcome the confusion which now exists in the American market as to the definition of grades. Part of the present situation is held to be due to the results of the Japanese earthquake on silk marking and trading. The announcement says: "It is time to place a check upon indiscriminate and haphazard grading and for cooperation with the American manufacturers and with the exporters and reelers of Japan." It is expected that the recommendations will be presented to the trade within a comparatively short time.

Warm Weather Apparel Selling.

Despite the continued failure of the sun to do its duty, business in children's garments is reported by the Children's and Infants' Wear League to have taken a definite turn toward hot weather apparel. The call for ginghams has now given way to a demand for little dresses of voile, organdie and pongee in sleeveless effects. Voiles are most favored by buyers for both playtime and more formal wear, and many dresses of this material are offered with underthings and slips to match. Most of the trimmings take the form of embroideries and narrow ruffles.

Gray Goods Trading Fair.

Trading in gray goods in this market yesterday was fairly active, with most of that done in printcloths for quick deliveries. Bids of 9 1-16 cents were made for prompt shipments of 38½-inch 64-60s, but sellers would not trade at anything less than 9¼ cents. Sales of 39-inch 68-72s were put through at 10¼ cents, while spot lots of 38½-inch 60-48s moved at 9¾ cents. In the sheetings much of the day's business was again confined to the lightweight goods, which sold in a fair way for the later deliveries. For 39-inch 5.50s buyers paid 8 cents, and for similar shipments of 36-inch 5-yard sheetings the best they could do was 9 cents. For 31-inch 5-yard cloths 8¼ cents was asked. In the specialities there was some trading in pajama checks. For 64-60 checks buyers paid 9¼ cents, and 11¼ cents was the bottom figure quoted on 72-80s.

Ecru and Ochre Laces Wanted.

Figuring in the lace business passing are venise bands from 4½ to 9 inches wide, venise galloons and 18-inch all-overs in ecru and ochre. Wholesalers say that white is little called for. Chantilly bands and galloons in the widths mentioned are also wanted, favor again being accorded the ecru ochre shades. In smaller lace items, running between 5 and 10 cents, foreign dyed ecru "Vals" are selling principally in round and diamond meshes.

Worsted Yarns Continue Quiet.

Spinners find that the worsted yarn demand is changing very little. They have curtailed their production and in large measure are unprotected on future raw wool requirements. There has been but slight business from the men's wear trade recently, the orders booked so far being confined to only a section of it. The market in dress goods yarns is extremely quiet, the cloak strike being the factor here. There is a feeling that there may be improved buying of outerwear knit yarns shortly, but there is nothing definite yet to warrant any marked change for the better. Wool spun yarns, however, have been in fairly good call from the weaving trade.

Offers Novel Type of Cap.

A cap that is said virtually to be three in one and to do away with the need of special headgear for sports wear has been put on the market by a local manufacturer to wholesale at $18 to $24 a dozen, according to the kind of linen used. It is said by the maker to be easily adjustable, always comfortable, attractive in appearance, and to be especially adaptable to golfing, motoring or tennis. It has the further virtue of being cravenetted. When worn in the ordinary way it is impossible to distinguish the new cap from any other, but if the wearer wants a little ventilation it has to do is loosen the detachable top and let as much air play on his head as he likes. If he wants to keep really cool and yet have his eyes shaded, he removes completely the cap, so that the cap in the form of a headband remains, to which the peak is fashioned, thus affording the desired coolness and shade for the eyes.

Favorable Weather Much Needed.

Lack of favorable selling weather is handicapping retailers considerably in their desired turnover of Summer dresses and sports apparel. With Decoration Day almost at hand, sales totals for this period are nothing to become enthusiastic over, according to reports reaching the wholesalers. The latter consequently find they are not getting the active repeat business that usually comes at this time. This slowness in the general dress situation, it was pointed out yesterday, may be a factor of importance in connection with the early buying of Fall merchandise. The attention of retailers will be directed to the turning over of Summer merchandise rather than the covering of next season's wants.

Luggage Demand Keeping Up.

The recently reported increased demand for luggage continues here with the approach of the vacation season, with bags and cases still holding the lead over trunks that they established earlier in the season. Although all lines of these goods are moving more or less freely, manufacturers have not failed to consider the demands of the buyer who wants things to sell at a price. One of them, for instance, has just put on the market an imitation cowhide overnight bag, fitted, to wholesale at $3.50. Another offer is of a limousine case to wholesale at $4.50. This case is elaborately fitted with ten pieces in imitation ivory, the fittings being in a smaller case that can either be closed and carried by itself or left open and carried as a tray in the larger one. To wholesale at $4 is a man's fitted 18-inch traveling bag that is guaranteed to be made of cowhide leather. There are eight pieces in the fittings, including hair brushes, comb, razor case, &c. This bag is made with sewed leather corners, is equipped with an inside pocket, is lined with a waterproof material and has sturdy brass fastenings.

Silk and Flannel Skirts Lead.

In skirts for Summer wear, those of silk and flannel are leading. Pleats in the silk merchandise are most favored, while in the flannels the trend continues strongly to the wrap-around styles. High colors dominate in the flannel merchandise, yellows, reds, blues and greens being emphasized. Use of color is also a feature of the white silk skirts which have horizontal colored stripes for a hem finish. Ensemble effects are displayed by some skirt houses, these showing the sleeveless jacket to match the skirt for sports wear. Many of these skirts are hipline models with the jackets held in place by a single button.

Jabot Blouse a Style Leader.

The so-called jabot blouse has established itself as an excellent seller this season and, made up in white voile, is proving a popular item with retailers both in tuck-in and over-blouse effects. Irish crochet lace is the favored trimming for this model, which exploits the V-shaped neck that is now coming into vogue. A decided factor in the popularity of this garment is the recognition that manufacturers are giving to the mature woman, who cannot always wear the round, close-fitting type of collar and who prefers a touch of daintiness with her tailored suit. The costume blouse is holding its place for the same reason. It is frequently shown in white crepe de chine trimmed with colored embroideries, as well as in pastel colorings set off with beaded designs.

BUSINESS NOTES.

July 23 has been set as the date on which the style show of the Infants and Children's Wear League will be held at the Hotel Astor. It will be held in the grand ballroom and will be the first of its kind ever staged. It will be preceded by a dinner.

The Associated Retail Credit Men of New York City, Inc., will give a shore dinner and dance at the California Rathskeller Inn, Pelham Shore Road, the Bronx, on Tuesday, June 10, at 7 P. M. Buses will leave the offices of the association, 32 West Thirty-fourth Street, at 6 P. M. sharp.

STATE KEEPS LIQUOR TAXES.

Court of Claims Rules That $200,000 Was Legally Collected.

ALBANY, May 27.—Liquor taxes collected by New York State under the so-called Walker-Walters liquor tax law of 1920 and amounting to $200,000 may be retained by the State, under a decision of the Court of Claims in litigation involving the constitutionality of the law, Thomas H. Cullen of Auburn, Deputy Attorney General, represented the Attorney General in the case, instituted by the Friedel Winery Company of Hammondsport, Steuben County, a stockholder of which filed a claim in the Court of Claims for the recovery of the taxes paid under the law up to the time it was repealed by the Mullan-Gage act.

The court held that the volume tax, which raised $200,000, was legal and constitutional, but that the provisions for collection of the excise tax upon the business of trafficking in liquors was unconstitutional. The court's permission of $28,000 will be required under the provision declared void, taxes being graduated according to the places the law aimed to affect. The volume taxes applied to the sale of liquors for non-beverage purposes and were graduated according to the alcoholic percentage of such liquors.

Breen, Chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, declared today on receipt of a notice requiring representatives of unions and the road to appear in Chicago Thursday for a hearing. Mr. Breen said the strike vote would be counted tomorrow and predicted an almost unanimous vote for a walk-out.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The downward reaction in prices on nearly all markets yesterday represented little more than the reverse swing which has repeatedly occurred this year, whenever a brief speculative movement in one direction or the other had spent its force. In that respect the history of the year has been curious. Taking the Stock Exchange as a case in point, there have been five of such reversals of direction since the year began, and each successive forward or backward movement has on the average been within the range of four or five points. A market in which the typical "average" rose from 84¾ to 88¾ in the first month, fell back to 84¾ in the ensuing fortnight, rose in another month to 87, receded to 81½, and had returned to 85¾ last Monday, can hardly be described as engaging in a definite or significant movement of values.

With certain individual stocks, the swing in each direction has been wider, a fact which had somewhat obscured the general drift of prices. It is true, also, that while the industrial shares averaged lower in price this week than at the end of 1923, the railways averaged higher. But the course of the market as a whole has indicated all along a disposition to inaction rather than to action. Very much the same remark may be made of the more speculative markets for commodities; which, although lower than at the beginning of the year, have held for long stretches of time around a virtually unchanged level.

Usually, such markets mean either that nothing has happened to change intrinsic or prospective values, or else that the influences making for a fall have been closely counterbalanced by forces making for a rise. Decrease in trade activity has on this occasion been offset by easy money, dislike of political developments by the admittedly sound position of finance and industry. Even in a market such as cotton, subject to influences seemingly apart from those which prevail in all the others, progressive reduction of home spinners' purchases has gone far toward neutralizing the effect of impending scarcity on prices.

Yesterday's downward movement on the Stock Exchange appeared to reflect merely the realizing sales of recent speculative purchasers for the rise, emphasized in their effect on the market by renewal of speculative sales for the decline. It was repetition of what has become too familiar to cause surprise, and it had little relation to the news. The day's declines were as numerous in the railway shares as in the industrials, and the general run of stocks ended at or near to the lowest prices.

Foreign exchange rates were as reactionary as stocks and commodities. If the European exchanges were moved by the day's political developments, the convening of the new German Reichstag, with its signs of legislative and governmental deadlock, might reasonably have been assigned as a cause. This evidence of a struggle to keep the machinery in existence, by which the Dawes plan may be applied to settle the reparations controversy, would presumably have checked any tendency of exchange rates to advance. The United States is not the only country confronted with a seemingly unworkable Legislature; it is yet to be determined whether France also will not have to face something of Germany's dilemma. These difficulties were bound to arise from time to time in a political situation still deranged by the effect of war and the high taxes and high cost of living which followed the war. They are not as ominous as other difficulties which arose in Europe's governmental affairs four or five years ago, but they serve as an uncomfortable reminder of the slowness with which political as well as economic recuperation returns on such occasions.

MONEY.

TUESDAY, MAY 27, 1924.

Stock Exchange call money was easier, Monday's advance proving an attraction to the replacement here of funds recently withdrawn, which helped to swell the reservoir and cheapen accommodation. Opening and renewing at 4 per cent., which was a half point concession from Monday's closing, rate later eased to 3½ and then to 3. Turnover, however, was not really as heavy as previously. There still continued an evenness in the time-period market, quotations ruling the same, with actual business confined to four and five months' funds at 4 per cent. Elsewhere money market was without feature.

RAILROAD REVENUES DECLINE FOR MONTH

Gross of 24 Companies in April $156,685,000, Against $172,230,000 in April, 1923.

Gross revenues for April of twenty-four railroads were $156,685,000, according to figures compiled yesterday. This compares with $172,230,000 in April, 1923. The net operating income of the same railroads was $19,001,000, compared with $27,322,000 in March and $28,586,000 in April, 1923.

Because of a drop in income for April of $11,325,194, as compared with $12,631,717 in the same month of 1923, the Chicago & Northwestern reported a net income of $240,506, compared with $606,043 in April, 1923, and $1,610,937 in the same month of 1922. For the four months the earnings of the Chicago & Northwestern reached $2,758,668, compared with $2,668,281 last year, despite the unfavorable showing in April of this year.

A falling off of business in New England was reflected in the report of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, with a gross for the month of $10,671,884, against $11,519,101 last year, and $9,670,099 in 1922. The management of the New Haven through its policy of strict economy was able to effect a saving in operating expenses sufficient to return a net operating income of $1,751,623, compared with $1,152,195 in the same month last year. For the first four months of the year the New Haven shows a net operating income of $6,094,502, against $5,509,943 in 1923, and $4,858,138 for the same period in 1922.

Typical of the conditions in the trunk line district is the report of the Erie with a gross revenue for the month of $6,233,435, contrasted with $11,086,495 in the same month, 1923. Despite this loss the net for the month was $1,402,309, against $1,886,599, showing that the Erie was successful in cutting its operating expenses for the month. For the first third of the year the net operating income of the Erie is still considerably ahead of the same period of last year, with a total of $5,055,184, against $4,109,858.

MALLINSON PLANTS BUSY.

H. R. Mallinson & Co., Inc., announced yesterday that it was operating at 82 per cent. of capacity its plants in Astoria, West Hoboken, Trenton, Paterson, Allentown and Erie.

Company officials said that the decline in raw silk, which has carried this commodity down to the lowest price since the Summer of 1920, was not having any effect on the corporation's current earnings because the silk bought at high prices had been liquidated through the sale of finished products and the company was able to take advantage of the lower silk market.

BIG POWER MERGER REPORTED ON WAY

Stone & Webster Said to Be Negotiating for American Electric and Columbus Light.

According to information obtained here yesterday but which was not confirmed at the local offices of Stone & Webster, Inc., this corporation plans to acquire the American Electric Power Company and the Columbus Railway, Power and Light Company, and is now negotiating for the properties. The American Electric Power Company controls more than forty electric railway, light and power companies in Pennsylvania, Ohio, the Virginias, Delaware and Illinois, while the Columbus Railway, Power and Light Company owns and operates the commercial light and power and street railway systems of Columbus, Ohio, with suburban lines.

A report received in the financial district yesterday regarding the possible acquisition of the American Electric Power Company by either Electric Bond and Share Company interests or the American Electric Company was denied by officers of both these companies.

This report also mentioned Stone & Webster and said that a contest was being waged among the three interests for control of the American Electric Power Company. At the Stone & Webster office it was said that any inquiries regarding the matter should be made of Chester Anthony & Co., members of the Stock Exchange, at 60 Broadway, but no information was available there.

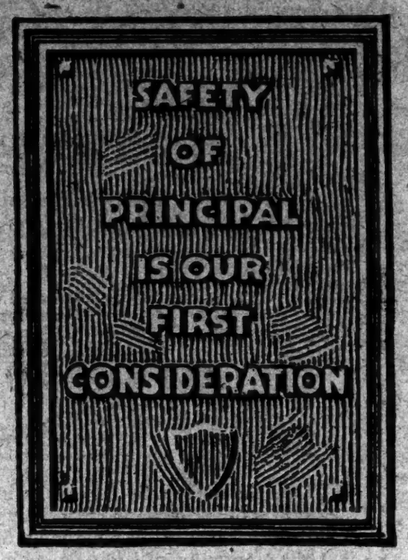
Number 3 of a series of advertisements on sound investment



What Makes an Investment Sound?

WHAT DOES make an investment sound? Certainly not the glowing enthusiasm of the promoter,—not the fact that other projects of the same kind are successful,—not the hopes of a friend or relative, be he ever so honest,—not the promises of an irresponsible borrower whose chief asset is the gift of persuasion.

To be sound an investment must have certain qualities that every careful investor insists upon. They are: (1) Safety of principal, (2) Certainty of income, (3) A reasonable degree of marketability.

Safety is of the utmost importance. No careful investor will subject his principal to a known risk. He realizes that one loss of principal equals the loss of fifteen or twenty years' income!

Safety of principal depends on the solvency and credit of the user of capital. Governments, and municipalities of high credit rating are given that position because their people possess large unimpaired wealth subject to taxing power, and because they have consistently paid their bills. Corporations of standing have credit for similar reasons.

Income must be certain; and this depends largely upon the income or taxing power of the user of capital. Visible source of revenue and proof that the revenue exists or can be produced are essential.

The degree of marketability required varies with the investor's needs; but no investment can truly be called sound which could not be sold at any time at a price in line with other investments of its class.

Selecting sound investments is not easy. The careful investor avails himself of the experience and facilities of a responsible investment banking house,—one whose standards of judgment and counsel warrant his complete confidence.

NEW YORK CENTRAL HAS GREATEST YEAR

NEED OF MERGER IS URGED

Elimination of All Grade Crossings in Manhattan Also Discussed by the Late President.

The annual report of the New York Central Railroad completed by A. H. Smith, the company's President, a few days before he was killed by a fall from his horse in Central Park, was made public yesterday. It showed 1923 to have been the most successful year in the history of the company in volume of traffic, earnings, improvements and acquisition of stock in subsidiaries.

Net income of the company totaled $45,339,426, an increase of more than 120 per cent. compared with 1922, when $20,635,136 was earned. After allowing for funded debt and the sinking fund the earnings were equivalent to $16.47 a share on the common stock, compared with $7.66 in 1922.

Much of the success of the company was attributable to the increase in gross revenue, which totaled $365,175,188, or $48,550,090 more than in 1922. The freight revenues increased $37,671,514, passenger revenues $8,094,001 and express revenues $1,048,543.

Operating expenses increased $28,201,551, including $10,616,283 in transportation cost, $9,530,803 in maintenance of equipment and $7,181,989 in maintenance of ways and structures.

Surplus for profit and loss	27,748,777	7,645,871

Consolidations Are Proposed.

Because of his sudden death Mr. Smith had no time to impart to his co-workers his plans for developments. Hence his annual report forms perhaps the last expression of Mr. Smith as to his hopes for the property. In this connection, P. E. Crowley, successor to Mr. Smith, already has announced that he would carry on the work of his former chief.

"The principal reasons assigned by the management of the New York Central Lines for the acquisition of the Central Railroad of New Jersey and the Catawissa Branch of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad," said the report, "were, first, that it would afford the system an opportunity to develop an additional trunk line between Ashtabula and New York, which would provide for a portion of the increasing business now converging upon the main line of the New York Central Railroad at Buffalo; second, that it would provide a short line for the transportation of bituminous coal from the Clearfield region to New York City; third, it would bring the New York Central into the anthracite coal fields as an originating carrier of that commodity; fourth, the New York Central system has greater incentive to develop the Central Railroad of New Jersey than would the Baltimore & Ohio system; fifth, the assignment of the Central Railroad of New Jersey to the New York Central would be consistent with the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Reading case."

Discusses Castleton Cut-Off.

In discussing the Castleton cut-off which consists of a high level line connecting the West Shore with the Boston & Albany and the Hudson Division of the New York Central about ten miles south of Albany, he declared:

"Not only will the project save about four and one-half miles in distance, avoid 130 feet of rise and fall and long, steep grades at the crossing of the Hudson Valley at Albany, and obviate drawbridge delays at the river, but the concentration of traffic lines at one point will produce a sufficient volume of business moving from the Niagara River frontier and possibly beyond, destined for Albany gateway distribution, to permit full train loading to the point of concentration, thus eliminating intermediate classification with attendant economy in time and expense. The entire project was a little more than one-half completed at the end of 1923. To that time the New York Central had advanced $9,910,000 for the work."

One of the projects to which Mr. Smith had devoted no small amount of time was the improvement of the west side tracks along Riverside Drive. In the report to the stockholders he said regarding this improvement:

"The improvement of the company's line on the west side of Manhattan and of the freight stations and facilities on that line has been under consideration for many years. The important freight stations, Manhattanville, Sixtieth Street, Thirty-third Street and St. John's Park, do not meet present-day requirements. It will not be possible to modernize these stations until some agreement shall have been reached with the public authorities under which the use of streets and avenues at grade will be discontinued and electric operation extended to this part of the road. The elimination of grade crossings on this line is one of the few important problems of this kind remaining on the company's lines east. Since operation by electricity has become practicable it is desirable that this line be operated by electricity as a motive power.

Grade Crossing Hearings Held.

"After long negotiations with the city authorities under a special act passed in 1911 an agreement was substantially reached; but owing to opposition which resulted in hostile legislation in 1917 amending the Act of 1911, the agreement was not consummated. It is perhaps just as well for the company that it was not, because it would have been impossible on accounts of war and its incident conditions, to have carried out the improvement at that time.

"At the session of the Legislature in 1923 an act was passed making it unlawful for any railroad operating within the limits of Greater New York to operate after Jan. 1, 1926, within the limits of the city with any motive power except electricity, to be generated, transmitted and used in a manner to be approved by the Public Service Commission, which was also directed to prescribe the various facilities required for electric operation. The company has applied to that commission for its action under this statute.

"The Transit Commission, which is the New York City Commission, has jurisdiction with respect to the elimination of grade crossings on this line. At the same time the company presented a petition to that commission for the elimination of all grade crossings, some 100 in number.

"Since the presentation of these two applications, hearings, practically joint by the two commissions, have been held and the company has put in the principal part of its evidence bearing on the two questions of grade crossing elimination and electrification and the hearings have been postponed until January, 1924."

Holdings in Subsidiaries Increase.

During the year the New York Central added materially to its holding in subsidiary companies. It acquired 2,181 shares of the preferred stock of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railway under its offer of Dec. 14, 1921, and 467 shares of the common stock, so that it now holds 94.58 per cent. of the total outstanding. The company also obtained 588 shares of the preferred stock of the Mahoning Coal Railroad Company, thus giving it 82.19 per cent. of the total outstanding. In connection with the Reading Company it acquired the Trestle Realty Corporation of Buffalo, including a third of a mile of track, a dock and some real estate.

The total assets of the company were $1,359,536,970, a decrease of $76,496,798 compared with the previous year. This was accounted for to a large extent by writing off of $90,690,607 of deferred assets as a result of a settlement with the United States Government. Current assets of the company were $100,403,901, against current liabilities of $76,595,359. Cash on hand at the end of the year was $12,192,062 and compared with $15,367,392 at the close of 1922.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

European exchanges were weak again yesterday, all leading rates showing good size declines from Monday. The political uncertainty which continues in England and on the Continent was the underlying reason for the heaviness. Dealers reported a resumption of the selling of "future" francs, the discount running up to 14 points on 90-day maturities, while sterling was subject to bearish pressure on the difficulty which faces the MacDonald Ministry in sponsoring its housing bill.

Opening rates were generally the best of the session, the market showing only fractional improvement after the start. London checks were quoted at $4.33 9/16, off ¾ cent from Monday's final, while Paris reacted 10¼ points to 5.34½ cents, with Belgian 6¾ points lower at 4.60½ cents. Proportionate losses were also found in the Spanish, Scandinavian and Italian remittances, while Holland exchange closed up 2 points at 37.31 cents. South American and Far Eastern were firm, and the Canadian dollar improved to 98.52 cents, from 98.46 previously.

*These figures are furnished by the City as the official estimate of the 1924 valuation which will become effective as of May 1, 1924. We are advised that any final changes will increase rather than decrease the valuation as liberal allowances have been made for any possible reduction in assessments.

Detroit, the fourth largest city in the United States, is also fourth in the value of manufactures. While Detroit is the center of the automobile industry and leads the world in the production of automobiles, trucks and tractors, this industry accounts for only about 50% of its total industrial output. For example, the City leads the United States in the production of adding machines, stoves, pharmaceutical products, varnishes, salt and soda products, steel stampings, aluminum castings, and copper and brass plates and sheet. Its location near the source of raw materials and its excellent transportation facilities, having the finest harbor on the Great Lakes and being served by seven of the largest eastern and middle western railroads, assure the continuation of Detroit's remarkable progress.

These bonds, issued for school, sewer, lighting, parks and playgrounds, markets, street railway, library and art museum purposes, are direct obligations of the City of Detroit and are payable from a direct ad valorem tax against all the taxable property therein.

We are officially advised that the City will at all times keep within the 7% debt limit prescribed by the New York Savings Bank Law and that no more bonds with the exception of special assessment bonds will be sold within six months.

DOHENY NOT SELLING HIS OIL INTERESTS

ANNUAL REPORT OUT SOON

Edward L. Doheny, Chairman of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company, yesterday denied reports in the financial district that he contemplated selling his interest. He said that no one could get control of the company without purchasing his holdings, and that he was not negotiating for the sale, nor had he received an offer for his holdings.

The report was to the effect that a large producing company controlled by foreign capital, which recently acquired approximately $30,000,000 cash from the sale of some of its investment, was negotiating for the acquisition of the Doheny holdings. Mr. Doheny said that he would under no circumstances sell his interest to a foreign company, and declared that he had not received an offer from a foreign organization.

The company's annual report for 1923 is now in the hands of the printer, and probably will be ready for publication early next week. Mr. Doheny declined to comment upon it, but it is understood that the earnings for the year will be more than the $5 dividend paid on the capital stock last year.

Regarding the situation in the oil industry, Mr. Doheny said that it was in good shape, although gasoline stocks have been drawn upon during recent weeks to meet demands. As to new production, Mr. Doheny said that the prospect for new fields, both in and outside of the United States, is encouraging, and that new fields will have to take the place of old ones which are now showing a falling off in production. In California production has fallen off rapidly during recent months, he said, but the discovery of new pools is going on. The holdings of these new fields, according to Mr. Doheny, are in larger tracts and in stronger hands, and as a result he intimated that there will not be the extensive drilling in the future which caused the record-breaking production in the Southern fields last year.

"In Mexico, where, of course, we are more greatly interested than any other place, and better informed," Mr. Doheny said, "I can say with much confidence that our company's development of new wells and territory is being pushed energetically and that we are getting good results."

Commenting upon developments in the South American oil fields, Mr. Doheny said these were promising. "Our holdings in South America are of no importance, but we have information that recent good developments have been made in that section, from which large quantities of oil will be obtainable in the future. This should be good news to the consumers of petroleum products everywhere, especially along the Eastern seaboard of the United States, which is the most available and greatest consuming maret for South American oil. Most of the prospective oil lands in that country is held by American corporations, and this should also be satisfactory to the American public."

The number of stockholders of the Pennsylvania Railway Company on May 1, was 145,325, 48 less than oon the first of April, but 6,165 more than on May 1, 1923.

NATURAL GAS COMBINATION.

Report Says Companies in Panhandle District Will Merge.

A new company is to be organized to take over the natural gas properties of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company, and several other companies in the Panhandle district of Texas, according to reports in the financial district yesterday. The Prairie Oil and Gas Company, it is understood, will hold 51 per cent. of the stock of the new company, which has control of the natural gas production of about 400,000 acres of land in that State. Control of two pipe lines will also go to the new company, thus giving it virtual control of all the district.

According to the advices, the natural gas properties which will be taken over in addition to those of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company include those of the Amarillo Oil Company, the Amarillo Gas Company and the Producers and Refiners' Corporation.

TAX PROVISIONS: The Corporation will agree to pay interest without deduction for any Federal Income Tax not exceeding 2% which it or the Trustee may be required or permitted to pay thereon or retain therefrom and to reimburse the holders of these Bonds, resident in the respective states if requested within 60 days after payment, for the Pennsylvania Four Mills Tax, for the Maryland Security Tax not exceeding four and one-half mills, for the Connecticut Personal Property Tax not exceeding four mills per $1.00 per annum, and for the Massachusetts Income Tax on the interest not exceeding 6% of such interest per annum.

Company: The Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Corporation is constructing a power plant on the Youghiogheny River which will have an initial installed capacity of 24,000 hp., under a head of 437 feet, and which is expected to be ready for operation in the Fall of 1925. This plant is in Maryland fifteen miles from the Pennsylvania state line and the southern terminus of the transmission system of the Penn Public Service Corporation, which with subsidiary and affiliated companies, owns and operates an extensive power system, generally known as Penn Public System, serving approximately one-sixth of the total area of Pennsylvania.

Power Contract: The Penn Public Service Corporation, which with subsidiaries has gross earnings of over $7,600,000, has contracted for the use of the entire generating capacity now being installed by the Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Corporation under a contract extending beyond the maturity of these Bonds and providing for payments, commencing when the initial or Deep Creek development is placed in commercial operation, conservatively estimated to produce, annually, net earnings well in excess of twice the annual interest on these Bonds.

First Mortgage: These Bonds will be secured in the opinion of counsel by a direct first mortgage on the entire physical property of the Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Corporation. The project as planned by the Corporation includes the development of three additional power sites on the Youghiogheny River and its tributaries, and according to present plans the completed project will have an aggregate generating capacity of 150,000 hp., including its initial development.

Equity and Control: The very large equity over the $2,750,000 First Mortgage Bonds presently to be outstanding will be represented by $2,500,000 Convertible 7% Notes and $2,524,600 common stock, all of which are owned by the Pennsylvania Electric Corporation, which also owns 97% of the common stock of Penn Public Service Corporation and all of the common stock of its affiliated companies, with one exception, where it owns 74% of the common stock.

We offer these Bonds for delivery when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to the approval of our counsel. It is expected that temporary bonds of the Corporation (or interim certificates) will be ready for delivery on or about June 10, 1924.

We recommend these bonds for investment

EXPERIENCED investors have come to judge the investment value of bonds on these three tests:

1. Trend to Maturity. Will money rates tend to work higher or lower as the bond approaches maturity? Should you buy long term or short term securities?

2. Future of Industry. How will changes in the "business weather" affect the industry represented. Will its position be stronger or weaker under coming conditions?

3. Comparative Condition of Issuing Concern. Are comparative conditions such as earnings, funded debt, fixed charges, etc., as favorable as those offered by other corporations within the industry?

It is the business of Babson's Reports to supply the facts on fundamental business and financial conditions that the investor may anticipate trends and profit accordingly. In addition, the Supplement on Bonds analyzes the investment market in detail and makes unbiased and specific recommendation of bonds selected on these three points. The pro-rata cost of this service is small indeed.

NEW PUBLIC SERVICE PLANS ANNOUNCED

CALL FOR SINKING FUND

Propose Means of Obtaining New Capital and Extension and Development.

Revised plans for readjustment of the securities of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey to care for the recent merger of properties were announced last night by Thomas M. McCarter, President of the company. The plan provides for the merger of the Public Service Electric Company, the Public Service Gas Company and the United Electric Company of New Jersey, as already approved by the Board of Public Utility Commissioners of the State of New Jersey.

The purpose of the plan, according to Mr. McCarter, is "to enable the system to meet the requirements of service to the public, to strengthen and improve the position of the holders of its securities and to provide an adequate means of procuring new capital for necessary extension and development."

The terms of the plan as originally announced have been supplemented by provisions for a sinking fund for the purchase and eventual retirement of the perpetual interest bearing certificates and the pledge of a 7 per cent. instead of a 6 per cent. preferred stock of the Public Service Electric and Gas Company as collateral for these certificates.

The plan provides that the companies be consolidated into the Public Service Electric and Gas Company, all of whose common stock will be owned by the Public Service Corporation. Besides perpetual interest-bearing certificates the plan provides for the exchange of the general mortgage 5 per cent. bonds for new 5½ per cent. bonds, due 1959, to be issued under a mortgage to be made by the Public Service Electric and Gas Company, which will have a direct lien on the company's owned property and leasehold estates. A sinking fund will be provided to retire these new bonds at the rate of $300,000 a year.

The plan further provides for the redemption of the twenty-year secured 7 per cent. bonds from funds to be provided by the Public Service Corporation.

Besides these provisions offers will be made to "certain others of the leased gas and electric companies to exchange their stocks for other securities so that eventually these companies also may be consolidated with the Public Service Electric and Gas Company."

According to President McCarter the holders of the 5 per cent. bonds will be asked to deposit their bonds with depositories for the purpose of making the exchange. A notice to this effect will be issued by J. P. Morgan & Co. and Drexel & Co. who are to be the depositories.

WHOLESALE PRICES FELL LAST MONTH

RETAIL TRADE PICKED UP

WASHINGTON, May 27.—A further recession in wholesale prices, with a decline in factory employment and production of basic commodities, is shown in the Federal Reserve Board's summary of general business and financial conditions for the month of April and part of May.

Retail trade was greater in volume than in March, chiefly because of Easter buying, and was at about the level of earlier months of the year. There was a decrease in the volume of borrowing for commercial purposes and a further easing of money rates.

In the five week period ended May 14 the volume of borrowing for commercial purposes at member banks in leading cities declined somewhat from the high level reached early in April. There were increases, however, in loans of stocks and bonds and in investments in securities, so that the total of all loans and investments at the middle of May was higher than a month earlier and in larger volume than at any time in more than three years.

The volume of borrowing by member banks at Federal Reserve banks declined further in the last week of April and in May, while holdings of securities bought in the open market increased slightly. Total earnings assets declined to $795,000,000 on May 21, the lowest figure since the Autumn of 1917.

Further easing of money conditions in the last week of April and the first three weeks of May was reflected in a continued rise of the prices of Government securities, in a reduction from 4½ to 4¼ per cent. in the rate for prime commercial paper, and a decline in the rate for bankers' acceptances from 4⅛ to 4 per cent.

The Federal Reserve Board's index of production in basic industries, adjusted to allow for seasonal variations, declined 2 per cent. in April. Declines were particularly large in the iron and steel, coal and woolen industries. Mill consumption of cotton, on the other hand, showed less than the usual seasonal reduction between March and April. Factory employment declined 2 per cent. in April, owing chiefly to large reduction of forces at textile and clothing establishments. Contract awards for new buildings reached a higher value than in March and were also larger than a year ago; the value of building permits granted, however, declined and was smaller than in the corresponding month of 1923.

Department of Agriculture estimates on May 1 of the yield of Winter wheat, and rye are somewhat above the forecasts made in April. The acreage of Winter wheat is estimated at 7 per cent. less than last year.

Wholesale trade in April was in about the same volume as in the preceding month and as in April, 1923. Sales of dry goods and hardware were smaller than a year ago, while sales of drugs and shoes showed some increase. Department stores sales were considerably larger in April than in March, partly owing to the unusually late Easter. Total sales for the two months were 2 per cent. greater than in the corresponding period of 1923. Merchandise stocks at department stores showed less than the usual seasonal increase in April, but were at a higher level than a year ago.

Wholesale prices, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics index, declined 1 per cent. in April and reached the lowest point since May, 1922. Farm products, however, advanced 2 per cent. in April. Metals and foods showed substantial reductions; prices of clothing, fuel and chemicals also declined, while prices of building material and house-furnishings remained unchanged. In the first half of May quotations on cotton, wheat, flour and hogs increased, while prices of sugar, silk, wool and metals declined.

White Eagle Oil Sales Grow.

TOBACCO PRODUCTS STOCK.

80,000 Shares of Cumulative 7% Preferred Will Be Retired.

Directors of the Tobacco Products Corporation at a special meeting yesterday authorized the retirement of the 80,000 shares of cumulative 7 per cent. preferred stock outstanding at $120 a share, on July 1, 1924. The retirement will call for an outlay of $9,600,000.

This issue always has been closely held and trading in it on the Stock Exchange never has been active. The bid price was $118 a share yesterday. The high for the current year to date was $119¾ on May 23 and the low $113 on Feb. 19. In 1916 this stock sold down to $76.50.

Holders of the stock have been notified to deliver their certificates at the trust department of the Guaranty Trust Company for payment on and after July 1.

The directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred stock yesterday, payable July 1, to stockholders of record June 16 and the 1½ per cent. dividend on the common stock, payable July 15, to stockholders of record July 1.

AGAIN ASKS HOUSE FOR PHONE INQUIRY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Charging that telephone rates in the United States are arbitrarily fixed by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company through an elaborate system of corporate relations, giving to it complete domination of the industry, Representative John J. O'Connor, Democrat, of New York, today renewed his demand for a Congressional investigation of the "Telephone Trust."

Mr. O'Connor recently offered a resolution providing for an inquiry into telephone rates and service by a special committee of the House. It is pending before the Rules Committee. In a statement issued today Mr. O'Connor outlines the system which he insists gives to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company a complete monopoly of telephone service.

"The American Telephone and Telegraph Company owns all the telephone instruments used by its local companies," said the statement. "It buys them from Western Electric Company, its subsidiary, at prices agreed on by the two companies and leases the instruments to subsidiaries, together with 'service,' at 4½ per cent. of the gross revenue. This amounts to about $3 or $4 a year for each station when it is estimated that a reasonable return on the investment would be about 90 cents a year. The American Telephone and Telegraph Company, of course, controls the stock of the subsidiary companies.

"All the stock of the Western Electric Company is owned by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. This company sells its products to its subsidiaries at a price it chooses to fix and at prices very often higher than the products could be purchased by the subsidiaries in the open market. This is accomplished by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company compelling each subsidiary to appoint the Western Electric Company its purchasing agent."

Central control of all toll lines, the statement continues, enables the American Telephone and Telegraph Company to "milk" its subsidiaries and the public on long-distance service.

"It is estimated that the subsidiaries, on an average, charge off about 15 to 20 per cent. of the operating costs for depreciation. But that is not all. They also have a maintenance fund. For instance, although they charge off depreciation on a switchboard, they also make a charge for maintenance whenever they repair this switchboard, with the result that these two funds, 'depreciation' and 'maintenance,' amount to about 6 per cent. of what the company itself claims to be a fair value of the property. In other words, they duplicate the charge under 'depreciation' and 'maintenance.'

"The American Telegraph and Telephone Company itself has a contingency reserve of hundreds of millions, probably about $500,000,000. At least half of this is unnecessary reserve and undoubtedly is surplus profits.

"In New York City the recent increase of 10 per cent. on top of prior increases of about 13 per cent. since the war is probably also due to the installation of the 'dial' system, with its accompanying increased operating costs and capital expenditures. No subscriber ever asked for this system and it is generally believed to be a nuisance and may ultimately have to be abandoned. The company, however, has nothing to lose by such experiments because the cost is passed on permanently to the public."

ATLANTA, Ga., May 27.—Suit for $6,833,469 was filed in the United States District Court here today against the Coca Cola Company of Georgia for unpaid income and excess profits taxes for 1919 and a 50 per cent. penalty assessed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for the alleged making of a fraudulent and false return.

The Government asserts that the company paid income and excess profits taxes totaling $1,548,194 for 1919, when a tax of $6,105,830 should have been paid.

It was explained by company officials that the suit is against the old Coca Cola Company and not against the present corporation, which is chartered under the laws of Delaware. The Delaware corporation purchased the goodwill, formula and all other assets of the old Georgia corporation for $25,000,000.

The Government's petition sets forth that $4,555,646 additional taxes are due, and that a penalty of $2,277,824, or 50 per cent. of that amount, is also collectible because of alleged filing of a fraudulent and false return. These two items, plus the legal interest from March 15, 1920, the date the taxes fell due, are the total amount sought.

The Government claims that the company's net income for the period beginning Jan. 1, 1919, and ended Sept. 11, 1919, was $15,782,292, and that an excess profits tax at the rate of 31.86 per cent., totaling $5,028,536, together with income tax at 10 per cent., totaling $1,075,273, should have been paid.

As it was, the suit sets forth, the company paid excess profits taxes amounting to $1,326,225 and an income tax of $221,905 on a net income of $3,547,782.

A formal statement issued by Charles H. Candler, President of the Coca-Cola Company, a Georgia corporation, says:

"My attention has been called to the suit filed by the United States Government against the Coca-Cola Company, the Georgia company, due to Federal tax assessment for the year 1919, which is based on the assets of the incorporation.

"At the outset, it is only fair to say that this suit can in no way involve the Coca-Cola Company, the Delaware corporation, which corporation is now being operated and selling the product, Coca-Cola. The Delaware corporation was a purchaser for value of the entire assets of the Georgia corporation. It happens that both companies are of the same name, but the Delaware corporation, having purchased the entire assets of the Georgia corporation for value, could not be responsible for this tax.

"As President of the Georgia corporation I want to say the tax return for 1919 in behalf of the Georgia corporation was made by a person who was recommended as being an expert accountant and that company depended upon this tax expert to make a correct return. It was but fair to add that neither our accountants nor the attorneys representing the company had anything to do with this return.

"I have not yet seen a copy of the suit that was filed and therefore cannot discuss the merits of that suit."

PENN SEABOARD STOCK PLAN

Stockholders of the Penn Seaboard Steel Corporation, at a special meeting called for June 2, will vote on a proposal calling for the sale of the company's holdings of the capital stock of the Penn Steel Castings Company, which consist of 5,000 shares of preferred stock of $100 a share par value and 10,000 shares of common stock without par value. The sale of this stock, according to officials, will strengthen the working capital position of Penn Seaboard.

In a letter to stockholders President J. B. Warren says the directors have recommended concentration of the company's activities on the New Castle plant and the installation of finishing mills there.

Paper Company Defers Meeting.

The organization meeting of directors of the International Paper Company, scheduled for today, has been postponed for one week, according to Philip T. Dodge, President of the company. Reports have been in circulation in the financial district that important changes in the personnel of the company are planned. Questioned on these reports, Mr. Dodge said, "one can't tell until the meeting comes." He made it clear, however, that harmony prevails in the company's official family.

Old Spain's interesting experience with gold

When the Spaniards discovered and conquered the gold producing districts of America, they thought that nothing but gold and silver was wealth. They were dazzled by the brilliant prospect of becoming wealthy without labor. They expected to become the rulers of the world simply by amassing enormous heaps of gold; not discerning that the precious metals were precious only when used as capital to set human industry in motion and give employment to the people.

The precious metals poured into Spain in greater quantities than she could use. The country became saturated with gold and silver. Money immediately began to decline in purchasing power, and it declined until Spain had been tumbled into chaos and economic ruin.

A TREMENDOUS supply of gold is becoming one of America's problems today. Like old Spain, America has been flooded with the yellow metal, something like 40 to 50% of the world's supply being now concentrated here.

Foreign trade and foreign investment form a safety valve for America, to prevent excessive amounts of gold from causing higher prices and inflated values.

There are limits to the amount of capital American industry can use in supplying the home market. But there are unrealized opportunities for employing American capital in foreign trade.

If you are interested in foreign trade you will find at the Seaboard an organization which will help you take advantage of your opportunities. Long practice and a large volume of foreign business has built for the Seaboard a reputation for quick, accurate, discriminating service.

NEW BONDS ELIGIBLE IN BANK INVESTMENT

ADMIT DENVER SECURITIES

The State Banking Department of New York has compiled its 1924 list of State, municipal bonds and railroad bonds that are eligible for investment by savings banks under the State law. Compared with the 1923 list, the following changes are noted: Eighty-seven municipalities not eligible in 1923 have been added to the new list, and 101 municipalities and counties that were eligible last year have been stricken from the new list. Twelve railroad issues came into the legal class in 1923 with three new issues brought out in that year. None of the railroad group, save maturing or called issues, was taken off.

In the municipal group, seven issues were brought into the legal classification as a result of the Davison amendment to the State banking law adopted at the last Legislature. These were Atlanta, Ga.; Charlotte, N. C.; Denver, Jacksonville, Fla.; Oklahoma City, Okla.; Richmond, Va., and Salt Lake City, Utah. The remainder included thirteen municipalities in Connecticut, nineteen in Massachusetts, fourteen in New Jersey, twenty-two in Pennsylvania, one in Rhode Island and six in Vermont.

The 101 towns, cities and counties that were removed from the list were dropped either because they exceeded the 7 per cent. maximum debt limit allowed by the New York banking law to make securities eligible for investment by savings banks, or because they failed to answer questionnaires. The list includes Akron, O.; Covington, Ky.; Dayton, O.; Huntington, W. Va.; Lansing, Mich.; Springfield, Ill., and the following cities and counties, which are grouped by States:

CONNECTICUT.

NEW JERSEY.

The comparative lists of railroad bonds eligible for investment by savings banks show the loss of one old issue, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad general 4s of 1930, which are no longer outstanding. Eight underlying issues of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company were added to the list: Series A, 5½s, issued in 1921, and the Series B, 5s, issued in 1923, whose refunding was provided for under the first and refunding mortgage of 2003.

Also Mobile & Montgomery first 4½s, 1945; New Orleans & Mobile Division first 6s, 1930, and second 6s, 1930.

Paducah & Memphis Division first 4s, 1946; Atlanta, Knoxville & Cincinnati Division 4s, 1955; South & North Alabama Railway consolidated 5s, 1936; South & North Alabama Railway general consolidated 5s, 1963; Lexington & Eastern Railway first 5s, 1965.

Three Philadelphia, Baltimore & Washington Railroad assumed bonds were added to the list: Philadelphia & Baltimore Central Railroad first 4s, 1951; Columbia & Port Deposit Railway first 4s, 1940; Chester Creek Railroad first 6s, 1933.

A third group added to the list comprised the New York, Lackawanna & Western Railway first and refunding mortgage 4½s and 5s, 1973.

A PANAMA TRAFFIC RECORD.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—A new high record for traffic in one direction on one day through the Panama Canal was set on May 2, when fifteen vessels made the transit from the Pacific to the Atlantic, according to an official announcement at the War Department today. The number of transits was the same as in the traffic from the Atlantic to the Pacific on May 25, 1923, but the northbound traffic on May 2, 1924, exceeds former records in other respects.

These fifteen vessels which passed on May 2 of this year from the Pacific to the Atlantic were of 78,651 tonnage, paid $80,364 in tolls and carried 138,776 tons of cargo. These figures are compared with those of May 25, 1923, when fifteen vessels passed from the Atlantic to the Pacific with a tonnage of 77,628, paying $65,514 in tolls and carrying 63,895 tons of cargo, and those of Jan. 14, 1924, when twelve vessels passed from the Pacific to the Atlantic with a tonnage of 73,636, paying $77,061 in tolls and carrying 135,757 tons of cargo.

In the first five days of May, 1924, forty-four commercial vessels passed through the canal from the Pacific to the Atlantic and forty-one from the Atlantic to the Pacific, a total of eighty-five vessels.

Denies Woolworth Disagreement.

Hubert T. Parson, President of the Woolworth Company, denied yesterday that there were any differences between the managments and the owners of the company, as has been rumored in the financial district for several days. According to these reports, the daughters of the late Mrs. Jennie Creighton Woolworth were planning to oppose the re-election of some of the officers at the annual meeting on June 11. Mr. Parsons expressed the belief that the report had been started for stock market purposes.

Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company reports for April gross earnings of $3,555,876, an increase of $501,282 over the same month last year, and a balance after depreciation, interest and Federal taxes of $492,810, a gain of $44,930. For the first four months of 1924 the balance was $2,372,718, a decrease of $101,654.

MORE PROFIT TAKING SENDS COTTON DOWN

WEATHER IS NO INFLUENCE

New High Levels on New Crop Months Reached at Liverpool for Current Movement.

The profit-taking movement that developed in cotton when October arose over 27 cents on Monday increased in volume yesterday and caused a half cent recession in prices. Though there was no change for the better in weather conditions to cause an improvement in the character of private advices regarding progress of the crop, sufficient realizing prevailed to ease the market. While temperatures proved higher, heavy rains occurred over a large area with predictions of unsettled weather for the day. Trading was less active than during the two previous sessions and final prices showed a loss of 15 to 32 points.

From the opening the nature of trading reflected an increasing disposition in several directions to reduce outstanding obligations. Though Liverpool made a further advance in new crop months to highest levels of the movement, the July position abroad ruled easier throughout the session. Over-night selling orders were executed on the call, supplying sufficient contracts to meet all demands without an advance in quotations. Room operators took December contracts against sales of October at a difference of 80 points and for a few moments scattered buying of Winter positions caused a slight gain in prices. Selling abroad started a set-back there and liquidation from commission house sources eased both New York and New Orleans. When the morning weather map indicated heavy rains over many sections of the South, where warm, dry conditions are urgently needed, the unfavorable showing failed to stimulate the market. Instead of a rush of buying such as followed evidences of unsatisfactory surroundings for the growing crop, as had happened previously, cotton appeared in the ring on an increasing scale. October sold off 40 points to around 26.80, compared with a high figure of 27.22 the previous day. This set-back of $3 a bale brought a moderate demand for cotton and a quarter of a cent recovery followed. During the afternoon the market became quieter under a limited volume of business, attended with narrow price fluctuations.

Reports from wholesale drygoods sections stated that considerable interest had been aroused by large purchases of certain lines of goods by houses identified with the cotton market. Owing to slow demand and unsatisfactory textile conditions generally, prices in some instances are said to be on a basis of 25 cents or lower for raw material.

BEET SUGAR OUTPUT.

Production for 1924 Expected to Equal That of Last Year.

Production of American beet sugar in 1924 is expected to equal that of last year, the shortage in California's crop being offset by an increased output in Colorado, according to R. Walter Leigh, President of the American Beet Sugar Company, at its annual meeting. Of the 818,000 bags carried over from last year, he said, a large amount was disposed of at a fair profit.

Mr. Leigh said that two years ago the company's bank loans totaled over $5,000,000, whereas now the company has no loans and has $3,000,000 in cash and about $2,500,000 in accounts receivable and sugar. Eberhard L. Lueder of Minford, Lueder & Co. was elected a director at the meeting.

RAW SUGAR DROPS AGAIN.

The market for raw sugar was weak again yesterday, prices dropping to the lowest level since 1922. The McCahn Sugar Company was credited with having bought 32,000 bags of Porto Rican for early June shipment at 4⅛ cents a pound c. i. f., equal to 3 3-6 cents for Cuban sugars. E. Atkins & Co. bought 10,000 bags of Cuban for the second half of June shipment at 3¼ cents. This is the lowest price quoted for Cuban raws since 1922, and, with that exception, is below the average reported for any year since 1914. The average price for the ten years preceding 1923 was 4.784 cents, c. i. f.

CHICAGO, May 27.—A pause in the advance came in the wheat market today, due to rains in Kansas and Oklahoma and weakness at Winnipeg, and the close was ½ to ⅞ cent lower. This, however, put the market in a better technical position; it was somewhat strained at the close last night by the persistent buying and the steady upturn of late. Profit taking sales were in evidence, but on the decline strong commission houses absorbed the offerings.

Out of twenty-two stations in Kansas reporting to the Weather Bureau, only seven points had a half inch or more of moisture, and further rain is badly needed. The western part of the State received little rain.

Houses that have been the largest buyers of wheat at Winnipeg of late were the best sellers today and the finish there was ½ to 1¼ cent lower. Foreign cables brought reports of resellers and fewer bids, saying that buyers were slow to follow the advance here. Prices given in Continental cables were ½ to 2¼ cents out of line, and more crosscurrents were apparent in the news than of late.

Export sales at the seaboard were 400,000 bushels of Manitobas and durums and 250,000 of rye. Late reports said Germany was inquiring for wheat and rye.

An exporter says that the best way to help the farmers is to pass a bill authorizing the loaning of $250,000,000 to Germany with which to buy grains and foodstuff from us. This, he says, will bring a demand for our surplus and the country will not lose any money.

The trade decided today that the big buying of September corn yesterday and today was for Livermore and not for local interests. Houses who get stock business from Fynchon & Co. did the buying, and the trade assumed that it was for local interests. The latter deny that they were interested in the buying. The close was ⅛ to ¼ cent lower.

Corn receipts were 609,000 bushels; week ago, 351,000; last year, 544,000, and shipments, 1,351,000 bushels; week ago, 813,000; last year, 428,000.

During the year twenty-eight new members were elected and fifty-three memberships were transferred. The report also shows that members contributed $99,721 to the American Cotton Association to help the fight against the boll weevil.

The reports of the Treasurer, Executive Committee, Building Committee and Trustees of the Gratuity Fund also were received. The members gave a rising vote of thanks to the officers and various standing committees for their work during the year.

The American Petroleum Institute yesterday published figures on gasoline consumption in March, covering fourteen States which have a gasoline tax, which show an increase of 21.3 per cent., compared with the same month last year.

The total consumption of the fourteen States was 132,605,998 gallons, against 109,287,080 gallons in the same month last year, while the consumption for the first three months of the year aggregated 389,056,230 gallons, against 328,472,405 gallons in the same period in 1923. SEES HOPE IN LABOR BANKS.

PITTSBURGH, May 27. — Labor, through the establishment of banks throughout the country, hopes some day to curb the vast powers of certain of its enemies in the financial world and to "break their control over the industrial life of our country," said Mrs. Sara A. Conboy, director of the Federation Bank of New York and an official of the United Textile Workers of America, addressing the annual meeting of the Catholic conference on industrial problems here late today.

"Labor has ventured forward into a new and promising field; that of banking," said Mrs. Conboy. "This movement, still in its infancy, has grown so marvelously as to become a romance of industry, and may be America's distinct contribution in solving the problem of the relations of capital and labor."

The great problems for society and the entire country today centre, for the most part, around the wages of the unskilled and the lowest wage classes, the Rev. Francis H. Haas, Ph. D., of Milwaukee, Wis., declared, while L. E. Kellar, statistician of the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes and Railway Shop Laborers, told the delegates that "American industry, except when compelled to do so by the collective economic strength of its employes, does not pay a living wage."

WANTS HER DECREE VOIDED.

Mrs. Adriance, Husband Now Rich, Seeks New Settlement.

Alleging that her husband has become a millionaire, Mrs. Matilda R. Adriance of 824 Greenwood Avenue, Brooklyn, has begun an action in the Supreme Court there to set aside a decree of separation from John S. Adriance, a former professor in Williams College. She that the settlement was unjust and inadequate and that the defendant could afford to make a much more generous one. Justice Van Siclen signed an order yesterday permitting her to serve her husband by publication.

Mrs. Adriance was the widow of S. D. Van Sicklen when on June 25, 1910, she married Mr. Adriance. When they separated in 1912, she received $15,000 outright besides an allowance of $4,500 a year.

At the time they parted, the petitioner alleges, her husband's income was $35,000 a year, whereas now it is $105,000.

In an affidavit attached to the papers, William B. O'Connor, the plaintiff's counsel, tells of attempts he made to ascertain the whereabouts of Mr. Adriance. He made two trips in this month to Williamstown, Mass., seat of Williams College, having been told by two New York banks that was where the professor might be found. He said he was told by Mr. Adriance's brother, Dr. Vanderpool Adriance, that the former was in ill health in this city.

FOR WAR FLIERS' BURIAL.

Morgan Firm Receives Funds of Escadrille Lafayette Association.

The Escadrille Lafayette Memorial Association has arranged with J. P. Morgan & Co. to act as depositaries in financing its proposed memorial cemetery in France, it announced last night.

The French Government recently ceded an eleven-acre strip of forest land near Paris for a burial ground, where the association will assemble the dead of the famous war squadron. A central shaft will commemorate the dead beneath, the dead who went unfound and those who survived. Smaller individual monuments will be provided for the sixty graves the cemetery is expected to contain. A fund of from $150,000 to $200,000 is now being raised to meet the cost and upkeep.

Parents and next of kin of Chapman, Rockwell, Genet, Hoskier, Lufbery and other deceased pilots have pledged about $25,000, it was said.

LATEST DEALINGS IN REALTY FIELD

WERE HELD AT $1,250,000

One of the largest and most important transactions of the year in the Lincoln Square section of the upper west side was closed yesterday when the City and Suburban Homes Company, of which Reginald Auchincloss is President, sold nine new-law model tenements, held at $1,250,000, to the Adaray Realty Corporation for investment.

The property is located at 214 to 220 West Sixty-ninth Street, extending through the block to 217 to 223 West Sixty-eighth Street, 175 feet west of Amsterdam Avenue, covering a frontage on Sixty-ninth Street of 225 feet and on Sixty-eighth Street of 250 feet, extending through the block a depth of 200 feet, with a total land area of approximately 45,000 square feet.

The nine buildings are all six stories in height and contain five stores on the Sixty-eighth Street side. Four of the buildings are each of the dimensions of 41.4 by 100 and five of the buildings are each 53.10 by 100.

The City and Suburban Homes Company purchased the land from Elizabeth S. Clark in 1890 and erected the present buildings, known as the Clark Model Tenements, since which time the property has not changed hands.

Lexington Av. Investment Deal Involves $850,000.

The Dunnode Realty Company (Bins & Bing) sold 1,185 Lexington Avenue, northeast corner of Eightieth Street, an eleven-story apartment with pent house, on plot measuring 100 feet on the avenue by 61.8 on the street. The building contains seven stores and houses forty-two families in suites of 3, 4 and 5 rooms each. It has eleven separate maid's rooms. The buyer is an investor.

Included in the sale was the three-story private dwelling at 155 East Eightieth Street, on lot 16.8 by 100, which protects the light and air on the east side of the apartment house.

Suppose You Could Turn Back the Clock?

Suppose you could buy Queens Boulevard and Hillside Ave.-Jamaica lots at the prices they brought at auction, in 1888, when the lucky buyers at an auction sale that year paid as little as $150 apiece for lots which, to-day, are valued at $5,000 and up.

Well, get ready to turn back the clock, for you are going to have one more chance to buy lots on and near Queens Boulevard, Parsons Boulevard, Briarwood Boulevard and Grand Central Parkway "at your own price," even if some of them bring no more than $150 each.

And—some of the Queens Boulevard lots are only a little way beyond Hillside Ave. and Jamaica's famous "Four Corners," where a plot, 200 x 140, is held now at $200,000, although these same lots sold for $500 and $600 each at the auction sale held in 1888.

The Towers

Fireproof, Detached Elevator Garden Apartments

There are only two apartments on a floor

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, May 27.—On the weather chart of Tuesday night the air pressure was high off the South Atlantic Coast and off the North Pacific States and it was low generally east of the Rocky Mountains with centres of minimum pressure over Ontario and the Rio Grande Valley. This pressure distribution has been attended during the last twenty-four hours by widespread cloudiness over the country and by general rains east of the Mississippi River and in Missouri, Kansas, North Oklahoma and at widely scattered points in the Rocky Mountain and Western Plateau regions. Heavy rains have fallen in Eastern Colorado, Southwestern Kansas, Northern Mississippi, Tennessee, Northern Georgia, and parts of the Carolinas.

Temperatures have risen somewhat since Monday in the South Atlantic and East Gulf States and the Northern Plains States, and cooler weather has overspread the Middle Plains States and the Central Rocky Mountain region.

In New England and New York, the Ohio Valley and the lower lake region the weather will be unsettled with showers Wednesday, and cloudy on Thursday, without material change in temperature. In the Middle Atlantic States the weather will remain cloudy through Wednesday and Thursday with occasional showers and moderate temperatures. In the South Atlantic States there will be local showers and thunderstorms Wednesday and Thursday, except in the Florida Peninsula.

Public School Notes.

DR. O'SHEA DISCUSSES RELIGION—Superintendent of Schools Dr. William J. O'Shea, in discussing the question of religious instructions recently before the Jewish Teachers Interested in Religious Instruction, said this, among other things:

"We hope the age of the reformatory institution is passing, and that increasingly in the future we will find it unnecessary for the reason of the work done in the way of crime prevention, not by repression and punishment, but by the improvement of social conditions affecting decent living and wholesome recreation.

"The practice of religion is the best preventive of crime. Our Government is no firmer committed to the principle of separation of Church and State that it would be inadvisable, even if it were possible, to teach religion in the public schools. We want to preserve that separation of Church and State, and yet we want our children to know God and to serve Him. The State realizes the importance of the teachings of religion and the helpfulness of religious instruction in making good citizens. Our great commonwealth does not officially approve, but it cannot fail to appreciate the tremendous value of the plan you are developing here today, to give religious instruction to our young boys and girls in their own churches outside of school hours."

BOARD OF EDUCATION MEETING—Among the matters which will come up at the meeting of the Board of Education this afternoon is a resolution requesting the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to authorize the sum of $13,500,000 corporate stock, the proceeds of sales, construction of buildings, &c.

FLYING BOAT HERE FROM PORTO RICO

Carried 2,000 Passengers During Its Stay in Porto Rico and Took In $6,144.50.

The Morro Castle II., a flying boat with a metal hull, arrived here yesterday afternoon from Porto Rico, having flown about 3,000 miles in four days, or about half the distance covered by the round-the-world fliers to date.

Its arrival at the Columbia Yacht Club, at the foot of West Eighty-sixth Street, marked the return trip of the first flight of a commercial airplane between this country and Porto Rico, the boat having flown from here on Jan. 16 last when the Atlantic fleet was conducting its Winter manoeuvres in the Caribbean Sea.

The boat was piloted by C. J. Zimmermann of the Aeromarine Plane and Motor Company, with Floyd Whalton as mechanic. The flying boat left Manteo, N. C., yesterday morning on its last lap, and was due at the yacht club at 4:30 o'clock, flying at the ordinary speed of seventy-five miles an hour, but a strong tail wind brought it up to 110 miles an hour, with the result that Zimmermann broke through the gray mist of the North River, circled around the cruiser Detroit, and taxied up to the wharf, about half an hour ahead of the scheduled time.

At the wharf were Mrs. Zimmermann, I. M. Uppercu, President of the Aeromarine Plane and Motor Company; P. G. Zimmermann, a brother of the pilot, and Owen Shannon, Assistant Secretary of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America.

The return flight to New York was started on May 23. Antilla, Cuba, was the first stop and the boat reached Key West at 4:30 P. M. the next day, where the flying boat remained over Sunday. The next stop was Southport, N. C., 800 miles from Key West, further than the round-the-world fliers have traveled in any one day. The boat left Southport at 6 A. M. yesterday, arriving at Manteo, N. C., at 10:30 A. M.

Since its launching on June 1, 1923, the Morro Castle II. has flown about 22,000 miles up to its arrival here. During its stay in Porto Rico it carried more than 2,000 passengers, and between Jan. 31 and April 1 the boat's receipts have amounted to $6,144.50, or $97.50 per day.

FILES FORMAL COMPLAINT

Ellison Declares That Searles Regarded Him as His Presumptive Heir.

The complaint in the suit of Angelo Milton Ellison against Arthur T. Walker, who inherited the estate of Edward F. Searles, and Lewis L. Delafield, the attorney who drew the will of Mr. Searles leaving the property to Mr. Walker, secretary to Mr. Searles, was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday. The complaint charges that Ellison was damaged $17,000,000 by the acts of the defendants.

The complaint says that Mr. Searles was 79 years old when he died at his home in Methuen, Mass., on Aug. 6, 1921, and that for several years previous Ellison, who is a Greek and had been employed as bellboy at the Murray Hill Hotel, where Mr. Searles lived, was the "most cherished object in his life." It is alleged that during this time Mr. Searles "had neither wife nor child or other descendants, and during all said times, down to the making of his will, his affections were centred upon the plaintiff, toward whom he felt and upon whom he lavished the most devoted care and solicitude, and whom he regarded and treated as his presumptive heir."

Ellison says that the defendant Walker "sustained fiduciary relations with Mr. Searles and with the plaintiff, and was acting as adviser to the plaintiff in preparing the plaintiff by training and education to fill the important financial station which the said Edward F. Searles intended and designed the plaintiff to occupy as successor to his estate and property." Ellison charges that for a month before the aged recluse died he attempted to see Mr. Searles and to send him letters, but Walker persuaded him that Mr. Searles was too ill to see him, because "the shock of joy at seeing the plaintiff might be injurious to him in his condition."

The complaint asserts that Mr. Searles was not in such a condition that he would have suffered a shock from seeing Ellison, but that he was "longing for, expecting and in need of the plaintiff's presence, comfort and sympathy, and was unfavorably affected physically and mentally by the plaintiff's absence." Ellison contends that because of the trust he imposed in Walker the latter was able to keep him and his letters from Mr. Searles and was thus able to bring about the success of his plan to obtain the estate for himself.

Ellison charges also that Mr. Delafield was brought in by Walker to draw Mr. Searles's will, and that Mr. Searles was not permitted by the two defendants to make his will at a time when he was in condition to remember that the plaintiff was the chief object of his affection, but that Mr. Searles was subjected to improper, prejudicial and dangerous medical treatment, which impaired his health and rendered him amenable to fraudulent designs and practices of the defendant Walker.

Ellison asserts that when Mr. Searles was in a weakened condition, because of the alleged improper treatment, he was caused to make the will giving more than $16,000,000 to Walker. It is alleged that Mr. Delafield received more than $500,000 for his services. Ellison contends that had he been permitted to see Mr. Searles during his last illness he "would have given him the sympathy of his presence and filial affection, and the consummation of the evil and fraudulent designs of the said Walker would have been impossible."

Ellison also charges that Walker, in violation of the duty he owed to Ellison, made statements reflecting on his character to Mr. Searles and asserted that he was of "bad and corrupt habits."

TO GUARD AMERICAN FILMS.

State Department Agents Abroad to Aid in Barring Pirated Pictures.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Instructions to make all proper efforts to prevent the showing of pirated motion picture films were sent today by the State Department to its representatives abroad, acting on the request of Will H. Hays, President of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America.

Mr. Hays represented that pirating of motion picture films had become a common practice, those engaged in the illicit traffic smuggling the films from the United States into foreign countries where they are not protected under American copyright laws and are exhibited on a wide scale.

State Department agents also were directed to cooperate with representatives of American motion picture producing companies abroad, who, in turn, have been directed by Mr. Hays to prosecute such violations to the full extent of the law prevailing in the nations where they reside.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Without roll-call or debate, the House adopted today a resolution declaring that Representative Royal H. Weller, a Democrat of the Twenty-first New York District, had been legally elected a member of the Sixty-eighth Congress. The House thus accepted the report of Elections Committee No. 1 that Martin Ansorge, the Republican contestant, a former member of the House, had failed of election.

As a result of today's action the Democrats remain in control of the New York delegation—22 Democrats to 21 Republicans—which may prove important if there is a deadlock in the Presidential election, and the selection of the President should devolve upon the House.

Ranches, from 1,000 to 550,000 acres, in California, Nevada, Utah and Mexico, now paying reasonable returns and with great potential future value, are among those which we are offering for sale.

Sedan Longevity Increased by Balloon Tires

BALLOON tires enlist low-pressure air to cushion the passengers from bumps and road shocks. They also cushion vital power units against the same adverse conditions.

The shock-free cradling of power units in a double frame has always been a Reo feature, and a vital reason for Reo chassis longevity. Balloon tires greatly promote it.

Mechanical goodness is further emphasized by the famous Reo high-powered six-cylinder engine. Intake valves in head and exhaust valves at side,—short crankshaft, turning in four large bearings and balanced dynamically and statically,—ground, glass-smooth cylinders with aluminum alloy pistons,—improved carburetion,—these are typical of many features that make Reo motordom's most enduring "six."
